High-Class Model Suits Worth $35, $40, Will Go on Sale Today at $14.95

M ODEL SUITS! That's the important factor in this purchase. Makers are extremely particular when turning out models. They are the representatives of their regular stock and cannot show the slighting of even the merest detail. Models stand for perfection in style, in material and in workmanship. That's why we consider ourselves particularly fortunate in acquiring this stock of over 400 suits (3 of which are here illustrated), at a very remarkable concession.

The models are the best to be had-all the new ideas for the coming Fall season. There are coats from 30 inches to full length, in semi-fitted, tight-fitted and new modified directoire models, as well as the new empire effects and cutaway

The materials include imported fancy weave chevrons, imported novelty materials, chiffon broadcloths and worsteds in many new weaves.

The linings embrace pretty fancy satin striped taffetas, guaranteed satins and plain taffetas.

The trimmings include braid effects, fancy buttons, as well as satins; some are strictly tailored.

There are but one or two of a kind, and those who come first will naturally be benefited. A sale like this should influence an early breakfast Thesday morning. Get here just as quickly as you can and choose from these suits, worth $35, $40, $45 and $50.

GIRL WOUNDED IN FACE

Mrs. Imbler, of Grants Pass, Who Shoots From Ambush, Expresses Regret at Outcome - Is Taken Into Custody.

JOHNSON BOUGHT POISON GRANTS PASS, Or., Sept. 7 .- (Special.) -Ella Williams, daughter of J. L. Williams, of Applegate, was seriously wounded by being shot in the face by TELL-TALE ENTRY IS FOUND ON Mrs. A. E. Imbler about 1 o'clock Sunday morning, as Miss Williams and party were returning from a neighborhood dance at the Cork hopyard.

dance at the Cork hopyard.

Miss Williams and party had concluded to spend the remainder of the night at the home of Widow Toppings, a short distance from the Imbler residence, and on passing the latter place they stepped into the vineyard and began picking the stepped in the place who was lying in grapes. Mrs. Imbler, who was lying in wait for trespassers, immediately fired a double-barrelled shotgun, the charge taking effect in the face of Miss Williams. Some of the number six shot passed through the fleshy part of Miss Williams' cheek into her mouth. Miss Williams screamed that she was shot, whereupon another shot was fired, without results.

Miss Williams was immediately taken care of and word was telephoned to this city, and the Sheriff arrested Mrs. Mrs. Imbler declared she had aimed to shoot the intruders in the legs and

The date of Miss Gilchrist's death has been established as October 31, 1905, and parts of the body of the woman were unearthed Saturday afternoon by searchers sent out from Nome to the Johnston cabin. Special United States Deputy Marshal Joe Warren, who is working on the case, claims also to have evidence to prove that the woman came to her death on October 31, 1905. was sorry that Miss Williams was struck in the face. It is alleged by the in-truders they had permission to enter at any time and pick fruit.

Three Men Are Precipitated Into Hold of Steamer and One Dies.

31, 1905.

While searching among her husband's papers this morning at her home, 1902 Fourth avenue, Mrs. Johnston discovered an old will, drawn up by Belle Gilchrist in which property in Maxwell, Ont., in Manitoba and in Butte, Mont., is bequeathed to the testator's brother and two sisters. VICTORIA, B. C., Sept. 7.—A fatal accident occurred on board the Dutch steamer Nederland this morning. While preparing to discharge nitre brought from Iquique a strong-back holding the hatch cover of No. 1 hatch gave way and three men were thrown into the hold, falling a distance of 35 feet. William Vandrinmelen, a native of SALEM, Or., Sept. 7.—(Special.)—The Salem Board of Trade today arranged to move its quarters to a new two-story brick building to be erected by F. W. Durbin and Frank Hughes on Liberty street, between State and Court. The second floor will be planned especially for the Board of Trade, and when the building is completed Salem will have the best commercial organization quarters in the State outside of Portland. Masslius, Holland, 26 years of age, was killed. He died soon after being re-moved from the hold. His skull was crushed and his arm was broken in two places and he sustained serious internal injuries.

The second mate, Gustav Koenders, a Hollander, and another sailor were also injured but are expected to re-

sheep camp, when John C, Midland shot

NEWPORT, Or., Sept. 7 .- (Special.)-What will the squatters in the Siletz eservation do? is the question asked today. Word has been received from the Portland Land Office that Frank Priest and John Fogarty, on whose claims squatters were located by Portland at-torneys, had been awarded their patents. As these two cases were the test cases of the Government there is not only great jubilation in Newport over the outcome, but there is also the problem of what the but there is also the problem of what the squatters will do.

These men paid large sums of money to be located on the disputed claims and have steadfastly refused to recognize civil writs, asserting that their rights were defined and that they would not quit under any circumstances.

The word of the decision of the Land

Office in the test cases is taken as an earnest of the promises made by the Washington authorities. handwriting was discovered penciled on the flylesf of a Bible by the first Mrs. Johnston this morning, while she was searching her husband's effects: "Bought cyanide of potassium, Octo-ber 25, 1905."

The date of Miss Gilchrist's death has been established as October 31. Washington authorities.
Inspector Horace Jones has been detailed to investigate the other contests now pending and he is now on the ground. The settlers are much rejoiced at this opportunity to assert their rights and are confident of a speedy hearing.

AGENTS ARE INVESTIGATING

Commissioner Desires to Dispose of Contests Without Delay.

The report that the homestead claims of Frank Priest and John Fogarty had passed to patent was confirmed by the Land Office officials here yesterday. Regarding the position of the men who squatted on these claims, it already has been published that they have gained nothing through their efforts to establish a rightful claim to the land originally filed on by Priest and Fogarty.

It is the policy of Commissioner Den-It is the policy of Commissioner Den-nett, of the General Land Office, as he recently declared, to consider all squat-ters in the light of trespessers and a further occupation of land by them after patents have been issued amounts to trespass and all such trespassers can be arrested and prosecuted under the state statutes. If the squatters paid a fee for being located on the lands that were being held up in the General Land Office, they are the loser and have absolutely no recourse.

in the first place the proceeding was questionable and Commissioner Dennett has said that the Government does not for an instant propose to back them up in their efforts unlawfully to intimidate or to acquire land that had been settled on
