PREPARING FOR SYNOD.—The synod of Oregon, Washington and Idaho for the United Presbyterian Church, will convene in the Grand-Avenue Church Tuesday, September 15, and continue Wednesday and Thursday. Monday, September 14, the presbytery will meet the First Church on the West Side. Tuesday night, September 15 there will be the annual sermon and election of officers, and the business sessions will open Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock. Rev. R. A. Hutchison, D. D., of Pittsburg, Fa., the new general secretary of the Home Mission Society, will be present and will speak to the synod several times on topics of interest to the church, especially on extension work. Two subjects of special interest are coming up at the ly on extension work. Two subjects of special interest are coming up at the synod, the election of a general synodical missionary, and the disposition of $10,000, which was realized by the sale of property. Weiser, Idaho, wants the money with which to erect a school, and the church at Pullman wants to use it to build a dormitory for students of the United Presbyterian Church who are attending the Agricultural College. Rev. A. W. Wilson, of Portland, is moderator.

ATEMPT TO BURN MOUNT TABOR

John's Catholic Church, of Oregon City, Rev. A. Hillebrand will officiate.

ATTEMPT TO BURN MOUNT TABOR BUILDING.—Discovery of an incipient blaze in the grocery store at the corner of the Section Line road and West avenus Saturday morning at an early hour prevented destruction of the property, and possibly saved Mr. and Mrs. George Kirth from being cremated. Fire had been kindled underneath the addition to the main structure in which the oils are kept. Fortunately Mr. Kirth was walting on his wife, who was sick, and discovered the fire, which he extinguished with a bucket of water. Evidently it had just been started for no damage had been done. Some fragments of a work basket near where the fire was started is the only clew. J. Applegate, owner of the store, purchased the property six months ago. AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE EXPE-DITION STARTS.

Specialists Will Travel Through Eastern Oregon and Investigate Problems of Irrigation.

The study of conditions of irriga-tion and dry farming in Eastern Ore-gon is the purpose of an expedition, headed by President W. J. Kerr, of the headed by President W. J. Kerr, of the Oregon Agricultural College, which will leave this city today. The party includes the following, in addition to President Kerr: Professor H. D. Scudder, of the department of agronomy of the State Agricultural College; Proder, of the department of agronomy of the State Agricultural College; Pro-fessor William Jardine, Government expert in dry farming, of the Burcau of Plant Industry, of the Department of Agriculture at Washington; A. P. Sto-ver, irrigation expert, of the Depart-ment of agriculture, and in charge of ment of agriculture, and in charge of Government irrigation work in Oregon, dent Kerr. Among the counties to be visited are Sherman, Gilliam, Morrow, Umatilla, Union and Baker. Later the same party will continue its investigations in Crook and Harney Counties. It is the purpose of these specialists not only to study irrigation, but the crops for which the different districts are particularly adapted. A complete investigation of agricultural conditions in Eastern Oregon will be made, and data collected by which the visitors will be enabled to determine the extent to which it is desirable and feasible to undertake experimental work and es-tablish substations of the Agricultural College. The area and quality of the land, climatic conditions, precipitation and the topography of the country, particularly with respect to winds, will be observed.

If it is found that the people of that section of the state are in need of assistance, for which they have applied and on which the prospective investigation is based, it then remains for the investigat-ing party to determine how many sub-stations will be required satisfactorily stations will be required satisfactorily to render the assistance, where the sta-tions shall be placed, and the cost of maintaining the service.

Retired Merchant Passes Away After Brief Illness.

CAME TO OREGON IN 1864

Was Long Member of Merchandising Firm of Lewis & Strauss. Ex-President of Hebrew Benevolent Society.

L. H. Lewis, retired merchant and capitalist, died at 7 P. M. yesterday, aged 67 years, at the Good Samaritan Hos-pital. The death of Mr. Lewis was sudden. Accompanied by Mrs. Lewis, he re-turned only last Friday from a month's sojourn at the various seaside resorts, insojourn at the various seaside resorts, in-cluding the regatta at Astoria. On the following day he was taken ill at his apartments in the Eaton Hotel, his con-apartments in the Eaton Hotel, his con-dition necessitating an operation from which he failed to recover. Funeral ar-rangements have not been completed. Mr. Lewis was born in San Francisco in 1841. At the age of 23 he came to Port-land and engaged in the general mer-chandising business, becoming a member chandising business, becoming a member of the firm of Seller, Frankenaur & Co. A few years later he became senior member of the firm of Lewis & Strauss, from which he retired in 1886 personally to manage his business interests. After coming to Portland Mr. Lewis returned to San Francisco, where on August 1 of that year he was married to Cecil Strauss, that year he was married to Cecil Strauss, who survives him.

For 14 years Mr. Lewis was president of the Hebrew Benevolent Society of this city, and, aside from his official connection with that organization, was known for his charitable acts. He also served one term as City Treasurer in the early Sos. Besides his widow he leaves two brothers and four sisters, all residing in San Francisco, as follows: Barney Lewis, Godfrey Lewis, Mrs. Annie Nathan, Mrs. Sadie Gregory, Mrs. Kate Halberstadt and Mrs. Irvin Cook.

"Spotted Bill" at the Orpheum

BY ARTHUR A. GREENE.

HE big vaudeville theater has spotted bill this week. On the list are a number of good acts and a number that are decidedly mediocre. ber that are decidedly mediocre.

Will Cressy's inimitable little comedy,
"Town Hall Tonight," contains the element of saving grace and keeps the tone of the performance well up toward average. The single line about the depth of degradation that any town can reach that is to be a one-night stand for a that one can forgive many things. The

With five planes in action or phiends. the stage and a ten-piece orchestra in the pit one might reasonably expect some-thing unusual in the musical line and when nine performers are added hope might well take another spring. The possibilities of such a turn are so great possibilities of such a turn are so great that the disappointment is all the more poignant when the result turns out to be so entirely ordinary.

The cheap and shoddy shadow of George M. Cohan is over it. A girl sings through her nose, a la Cohan, a timeworn song about some one borrowing her husband, and a raw youth with a pempadour contributes some tiresome numbers. As for the rest the girls display more or less attractive hosiery and lingerie and engage in the ancient device of marching up and down the stage to badly-executed syncopation. If the planos would only give us some good ragtime and one or two selections of standard music the effect would be so very much

It is worth seriously considering, that little playlet called "Fagan's Decision," which Claude and Fannie Usher do in which Claude and Fainine Usher do in capital fashion. It's an essentially human document of the "hick" variety and deserves a place in the literature of the street. The couple play it well, too, and I have no fault to find with them.

The show is opened by "General" Edward La Vine, an eccentric comedian, who does everything he can think of the who does everything he can think of to get a laugh. La Vine is undeniably funny, his juggling being a feature of his

The Cressy sketch, while hot the best that this brilliant author and actor has given us, is hilariously funny as a charac-teristic bit of life in a back-country town Like all of his efforts it is refreshing and near enough the truth to suft those who discriminate. The Reiff Brothers, a well-dressed and sufficiently agile pair, introduce some attractive dancing. The show closess with the usual moving pictures which are sufficiently good to hold the attention.

At the Grand.

HERE is an exceptionally good bill at the Grand this week and although not all of the acts are just the sort to arouse enthusiasm there is sufficient merit to the show to warrant some de-gree of approval. Of course the big act is that of George Street & Company who present important historic events in the careers of the world's great military The scenes range from the etreat from Moscow to the surrender of Port Arthur and in spite of the inpse of a century or thereabouts the staging is very effective. It differs from the customary vaudeville act so widely that there is left no room for adverse criticism. There are few acts in the business that carry out so well as this does the popular idea of what should be done in an historical act, for the customary thing is miles away from the eternal verities. This man Street is something of a genius in his way and because he offers a relief he is entitled to unusual consideration.

Armstrong & Davis do a decidedly clever sketch called "The Amateur Chaffeur," which is quite well worth stopping for. They have a style of comedy all their own and it affords a decided relief from the stereotyped and out and dried laughter turn that fills the soul of the observer who has not a thrill left in his extens with real enjoyment.

system with real enjoyment.

Doro Rocanca, the violinist, who professes to be a gipsy, with no doublers, is quite effective, and he does some genuinely good playing of the instrument that has stood through the ages as the that has stood through the ages as the finest of all music-making machines. The turn offered by Charles Kondai, which is called "The Marvel," is a pleasant deviation from the ordinary act and should increase the sale of autos in Portland. The McLinn Brothers in a clever horizontal bar act do much to sustain the Sullivan & Considine standard. The show as a whole is, while not the best of the season, worth going to see, and you'll make no great mistake in visiting the Grand this week. Grand this week.

Pantages.

TYPICAL holiday audiences taxed Pan-tages at both the evening and afteron performances. For once, two separate dumb animal acts made mere man sink into oblivion. The top-notcher on the programme is Leon Morris and Company, with La Belle Helene and her leaping greyhounds.

As an introduction Morris brings out six Shetland ponies of the watch-charm variety, which display remarkable intelligence and training. After appearing in various steps they give an imitation of a pony ballet, executing the difficult figures with remarkable grace and precision. The ponies in addition give an exhibition of waitzing and cake walking, their piece de resistance being a boxing match in which the two small Shetlands not only give a clever fistic ex-ing, their piece de resistance beling a boxing match in which the two small Shetlands not only give a ciever fistic exhibition but intersperse their act with comedy. As a finale is given a high jumping exhibition by a half dozen greyhounds who are assisted by a small white Spitz dog, who can hold his own in that graceful sport. Elliott Beamer, baritone, gives an illustrated song in a pleasing manner, having a particularly good voice. A one-act farce, "A House Warming," by the author of "Sis Hopkins," has a silly plot and in addition abounds with unnecessary horseplay. A Venetian violinist, Francesco Marracci, was forced to respond to several encores. Maracci's playing is quite charming, his technique is good, and he has an excellent tonal quality. He does not resort to makeup but is tremendously temperamental in both his music and appearance and has a wonderfully luxuriant growth of artistic hair.

As a whole, the bill is a most enter-taining one, and patrons of vaudevile will find it well worth their time to visit the down-town theater this week.
