BRYAN TALKS ON SCARES OF TAFT

Speech to New York Democratic Convention Closes Eventful Day.

FLAYS ROOSEVELT

Triumphal Tour Through Empire State Marked by 17 Speeches. Calls Taft Bankrupt Politician and Roosevelt's Appointee.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Sept. 18.—A speech by W. J. Bryan, Democratic candidate for President, in this city tonight on "Mr. Taft and His Scares" and two over-flow talks formed the climax of an event-ful day, in the contractors ful day in the present campaign, ful day in the present campaign.

Arriving here shortly after 6 o'clock and met by thousands of persons, Demiocracy's leader was accorded an ovation. Along with him from Syracuse came the new Democratic nomines for Governor of New York, Lewis Stuyvesant Chanler. Among those at the station here to meet him. those at the station here to meet him were National Chairman Mack, William J. Conners, chairman of the Democratic state committee; Charles F. Murphy, the Tammany chieftain, and Daniel F. Coha-

Tammany chieftain, and Daniel F. Cohalan.

The principal speech tonight was in convention hall, which was packed to the doors, with several thousands on the outside unable to gain admittance. Mr. Bryan was accorded a great demonstration.

Presiding over the convention hall assemblage was Judge A. B. Parker, the Presidential candidate four years ago, who took advantage of the opportunity to pledge his fealty to the National ticket. As Mr. Bryan and Judge Parker stood side by side before the great assemblage, the cheering welled up in a deatening roar. Mr. Bryan acknowledged Judge Parker's pledge of his own support and the support of the "united Democracy of the Empire State" in words as gracious as the pledge that had been extended.

Flays Roosevelt and Taft.

Mr. Bryan's journey through the Empire State was a triumphant one. Everywhere along the lines of the West Shore and New York Central roads immense crowds turned out and greeted him with cheers, handclapping and the waving of flags and banners. At each piace a speech was insisted on and when he had got through for the day he had spoken if times.

He never lost an opportunity to flay both Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Taft. Mr. Taft he characterized as "President Roosevelt's appointee," and he declared that Mr. Roosevelt's indorsement of Mr. Taft was "the indorsement of the bank-rupt against whom one could not col-lect."

Utica, the home town of Representa-tive James S. Sherman, Republican nominee for Vice-President, vied with the other places in the greating of Mr. Bryan, and he made a short speech to a crowd at the depot. In addition to the plaudits of the multitudes during the day, the Democratic candidate was showered with bouquets, and several campaign contributions of considerable size were handed to him.

Says Taft Makes Threats.

Reverting to his prepared speech upon he topic, "Mr. Taft and His Scares," the topic, "Mr. Mr. Bryan said:

Mr. Bryan said:

Mr. Taft confesses that his arguments are not convincing when he attempts to introduce scarce and to threaten the public with disaster, if he is not elected. The threat is always an admission that argument and persuasion have not been effective. Measured by this test, Mr. Taft has already abandoned hope of convincing the public of the rightedunters of his position. Let us take up the subjects with which he has been dealing.

the subjects with which he has been dealing.

On the labor question he declares that our-demand for a trial by jury in cases of indirect conferent is the most insidious attack on the judicial system in the history of the quantry. According to Mr. Tafi, it would bery much impair the administration of justice. He seems to forget that the very reform which we indozes was indozed by the inited States Senate 12 years ago. His logic, if it were sound in cases of indirect contempt, would eliminate the jury satirely. The criminal judge does not feel that his dignify is assailed when the accused is given a trial by jury; the common law judge does not feel that his facility is assailed when the accused is given a trial by jury; the common law judge does not feel that his lie as reflection on him for a party to a suit to insist upon trial by jury; why should it seem such an unlawful thing for a jury trial to be enacted in a case of indirect contempt."

Defense of Bank Guaranty.

Defense of Bank Guaranty.

In discussing the guaranty of bank deposits, he betrays the same rendency to substitute glooms forcoolings for reason and argument. What is this difficult thing that will devastate the country if his aspirations for the Presidency are theartest? It is the protection of the deposition who is invited to entirest his savings to the care of banks. There are 15,000,000 depositors in the United States and they are calmly assured that the banking system can only be asfe when the depositors are insecure—that to secure the depositors would make banking insecure. This logic may estainly the big financiers from whom he has drawn his arguments, but it will not eately the millions whose deposits make banking profitable.

Exterminate, Not Regulate Trusts. Exterminate, Not Regulate Trusts.

Exterminate, Not Regulate Trusts.

The third scare procedured by Mr. Taft is in the decursion of the trust question. He mays that "Mr. Boosevelt would compel the frust to conduct their business in a lawful manner and secure the benefits of their operations, the maintenance of the prosperity of the country of which they are an important part; while Mr. Bryan would extirpate and destroy the entire business in order to stamp out the cylls which they have practiced.

In using this emphatic language Mr. Taft has rendered us a service, because he admits that the Republican party does not intend to prevent trusts. It only proposes to regulate them and if we can judge the future by the past, that regulation will not be effective. If Mr. Boosevelt with all his strenuesity has not succeeded in imprisoning a single trust magnate, how much can the complacent Mr. Taft hope to accompilsh in the way of regulation?

Bevision of Tariff. The fourth scare which Mr. Taft presents is excited by the Democratic declarations on is excited by the Democratic declarations on the tariff questions. Speaking of our plat-form proposal to make such radical reduc-tions as may be necessary to restore the tariff to a revenue basis, he declares in his notifica-tion speech that the introduction into power of a party with this avowed purpose cannot but half the gradual recovery from our recent, financial depression and produce business dis-safer compared with which our recent panic and depression will seem, very small Indeed. setter compared with which our recent panic and depression will seem very small indeed. Surely Mr Taft cannot contemplate any margrial reduction of the tariff if he really believes that a gradual return to a revenue basis would involve us in any blustness disaster compared with which our recent panic and depression will seem small indeed.

Mr. Taft began his candidary a year ago as a champion of tariff reform, but each month has witnessed a lessening of his zeal until now his temperature, measured by the month has witnessed a lessening of his seal until now his temperature, measured by the fariff reform thermometer. Is close to zero. His platform begins with what at first glance might seem a piedge that swmething would be done. It says: "The Republican party declares unequivocally for a revision of the tariff by a special resident of Congress. Immediately following the imauguration of the next President." The word "reduction" does not appear in the platform. It is "revision" not "reduction," and Mr. Taft has already interpreted the word "revision" to mean the raising of some of the schedules and the lowering of others, but with no indication as to whether the average will be above or below the present.

What is there in the Democratic platform that can be construed as a threat to any legition those articles that are sold abroad cheaper than at home? If we can compete in foreign markets, do we need a high tariff to enable us to compete in the home markets? Since Mr. Taft has gone into the business of predicting panies if he is not elected, it is only fair to ask what guaranty he can give if he is elected. No one can doubt that he honestly helieves the country will go to ruin if he is elected, but what guaranty have we that his opinion is well founded?

Bryan in several speeches to-day on the way to Rochester, explained the difference in the performance of the Democratic and Republican parties and severely arraigned both Mr. Taft and President Roosevelt. His first remarks were made at Cornwall, where he spoke for two minutes. At Newburgh, the home of ex-Governor Odell, he denounced the Republican platform and declared he could call Mr. Taft as a witness against it.

It.

To a great crowd at Kingston, the Democratic candidate warned his hearers not to allow the Republican leaders to scare them from support of the Democratic ticket by threats of panic. He referred to Mr. Taft as "Mr. Roosevelt's appointee," and said that the President's indorsement of Mr. Taft "is the indorsement of a political bankrupt, against whom you cannot collect, even if you tried."

Mr. Bryan expressed his gratification that the East and the West were this year united and harmoniously fighting in defense of the Democratic platform.
"It might be possible to win a Democratic victory," he declared, "by the electoral votes cast in the South and in the states west of the Alleghanies, but

DEFEAT DES MOINES PLAN

(Continued from First Page.) Des Moines plan, and to submit both to the people, who, he said, are the final arbiters. Mr. Montague then made his arbiters. Mr. Montague then made his motion, which was later defeated.
Several favored this method of procedure, holding that it would obviate a minority report and would be better in every way. However, Mr. Holman clung to his motion with vigor, and was seconded by Senator Gearin. The latter then spoke at some length, saying that he believed it a better course to adopt a definite scheme, and to recommend some form of government, rather than to submit both plans.

Senator Gearin said he thought it would be expected of the commission that it report to the Council only one plan. The argument that some had advanced, he said, to the effect that there is a public clamor for a radical change, and that the commission was suspected of having been created merely to perpetuate officeholders, was unworthy of consideration.

Logan Favors New Plan.

Mr. Logan had said that he knew there is a strong demand among the people for a radical change in the char-ter, and declared that, in his judgment, the people would have a change, and that they would prepare the way them-selves, unless the commission took the selves, unless the commission took the opportunity and offered such a charter. He also said he had heard it said that the members of the commission were appointed by the Mayor and the Council for the purpose of stranging such a charter as would continue in office all the city officials. He expressed the belief that, if the commission falls to submit both forms of government, its report will be rejected and another charter, submitted by the initiative, will be voted in by the people in June.

submitted by the initiative, will be voted in by the people in June.

After moving that it be the sense of the commission that the present plan of city government be taken, as the guide for the new one. Mr. Holman proceeded to laud the virtues of the one now in operation. He said it is just such a charter as Theodore Roosevelt introduced in New York, and which had met with great success everywhere. He said that it seems to be the Fall style for 1968 that we must have the Des Moines plan of city government. "and God only knows what the Spring fashions will bring forth." Mr. Holman favored "conservatism." and branded as "cranks" those who were urging radical changes. The present charter, he said, is a good one, although no charter is perfect. While a member of the commission which drafted it, he said, "I am not like Joe Teal, and would keep all unholy hands off it." Mr. Teal was also a member of the former commission. Mr. Holman admitted that the present charter "needs a great many changes and "revisions." present charter "needs a great many changes and revisions."

Predicts Use of Initiative,

Dr. Chapman, replying to Mr. Holman, declared that it is untrue that the charter, which Theodore Roosevelt introduced into New York was successful. He said that it proved decidedly unworkable, and that another must be substituted. Dr. Chapman prophesied that the people will not tolerate anything in the line of a charter short of a radical departure from the present one, and that unless the commission submits it, the initiative will be invoked. The people, he said, are in no mood to be trifled with, and will regard with great suspicion anything the commission puts out that falls short of the principle of the Des Moines plan.

Dr. Chapman continued his re-

That the present Portland charter is a good one, Dr. Chapman denied in the most vigorous terms. He declared it to be defective and "a diagrace to the city," and said the principle upon which it is based has led to great corruption everywhere in the United States. He also deviced that it does responsibility and where in the United States. He also de-nied that it fixes responsibility, and pointed to several local instances to prove the point.
