The home guard, with Long Bobby Groom on the mound, won the opening contest and thereby made it six games in a row from the visitors. In the second contest Portland found Browning too much for them, and because of their inability to hit his delivery as well as poor base running, were treated to a white-wash.

The second game opened with Jesse Garrett on the mound for Portland, and also introduced McCredle's new catcher. Frambes. Frambes made a good impression despite his bad tuck in being responsible for one of the two Seal tailles. He receives neatly and throws quite accurately. His error—a bad throw to second in the eighth—was the means of Mohier peaching third and eventually registering the first run.

Mohier got on in this inning by rapping a hot one at Johnson, who knocked it down, but was unable to throw in time to get the Seal captain. Mohier went down on the first pitched bull, and Frambes' throw carried wide of Casey, allowing the Seal to take third. Claude Berry was sent in to bat for Killifer at this juncture, and promptly laced the first ball to left field, scoring Mohier.

Hildebrand, the first man up in the ninth, was safe on Cooney's error, and took second on Bergor's sacrifice. Interspersed throughout the games were sensational plays by both teams. Johnson pulled off an unassisted double play in the opening contest that was a hair-raiser, and cut off a threatening Scal run. In the second contest the visitors figured in three speedy doubles, while the home guard officiated in two such retirements.

It was the completion of one of the doubles on the part of the home itsem that caused Zeider's banishment. Rolly was safe in the seventh on an error by Casey, and when Melchier grounded to Johnson, tried to make third on the play, but Dannig shot the ball back to Johnson just in time to nip the speedy Seal. Zeider thought he should have been declared safe and attempted to convince Umpire Cheyns. However, his protest was too vigorous, and the official gave him the high sign.

Pitcher Patrick, the ex-Portlander, who was to have hurled one game for San Francisco, was unable to do so because Kid Mohier had falled to secure the consent of the Jacksonville. Ill., club, to which organization Patrick still belongs. McCredie had simply purchased an option on the player and when he required his services no longer, Patrick reverted back to the club from which be came. Mohier will take the youngster to San Francisco with him and hopes to have matters straightened out with Jacksonville by the time the Soals get home.

The stringent laws of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues also prevented Mohier from securing another Portland player. Carl Drubot, the clever little southpaw who pitched fine ball for the champlon Indianapolis team of the American Association, was to have been taken on by San Francisco, but Mohier was informed that he could not use him unless the owning club gave its consent.

Country Club's Livestock Show and Races Promise to Be Great Success.

THRONGS GO TO GROUNDS

Interest in Exhibition Is Shown by Large Crowd That Inspects New Track, Grandstand and Stables.

Today is grand opening day of the first annual Pacific National Livestock Show and Country Club harness race meet. There is splendid promise that the six days of the sport and exposition will break all records for attendance, and attractions in the annals of similar enterprises in the West. The total of cash prizes to be awarded in the races and stock exhibition exceed in value the highest awards ever distributed by any similar display in the field of sports or industrials in this part of the country. Great as was the Oregon State Fair, just ended, the pageantry of high-blooded animals which will be exhibited in the show ring and prize-winning parades during the week is not to surpass what the Country Ciub and Livestock Association promises to do for the next six days. All that went to make the livestock feature of the State Fair a success will be here, with notable additions from will be here, with notable additions from a stock-producing territory considerably broader than that from which the Sa-lem fair drew its regal blood of horses and other divisions of the show.

Thousands Visit Grounds.

That the splendid attractions offered will draw the multitudes that love the majesty of the race and admire the form, beauty and breeding of fine-nurtured beauty and breeding of fine-nurtured stock is a foregone conclusion, judging from the preliminary interest taken in the event all day yesterday. Estimates of the number of people who visited the beautiful and picturesque grounds Sun-day run anywhere from 15,000 to 20,000. They began packing the streetcars early in the morning, and hour by hour the facilities for handling the throngs had to be increased, until from I o'clock in the afternoon until late last evening a the afternoon until late last evening a five-minute service with two-car trains was maintained. At times during the afternoon when

At times during the afternoon when some of the brilliant performers in the coming races were sent around the track to "warm up" and test the new mile oval there were close to 2000 people seated in the grandstand. The racing stables where the best trotters and pacers of the West will be housed for the week were besieged with curious sight-seers and lovers of horse flesh. The big group of a dozen livestock barns, where the horses, cattle, sheep, swine and feature of a dozen livestock barris, where the horses, cattle, sheep, swine and feature exhibits will be shown, were literally jammed while the stock was being unloaded from the O. R. & N. trains into the pavilions. In addition to this there was a steady procession of automobiles from town out to the Country Club durants out to the Country Club durants. ing the greater part of the day, while hundreds of other pleasure vehicles went to the track to spin around the course. Saddle horses without number were also awhirl about the oval in pairs, groups and squads, by both men and women riders.

Enjoy Ideal Weather.

The magnificent weather of Sunday ontributed largely to the estentation and pomp of the Sunday outing. And all who went marveled at what they saw. Most of them had heard and read of the matching says and the says the matching says and product the says are says and product the says are says and says are says are says and says are says and says are says are says are says and says are says are says are says and says are says and says are say saw. Most of them had heard and read of the matchless scenery and picturesque setting of the natural amphitheater of the Country Club, but few of them had taken the pains to see and approve all this with their own eyes. Contrary to the usual custom of charging a small admission fee at such a time, the Country Club threw open the gates and allowed the crowds to see and come as they pleased, affording go and come as they pleased, affording them a chance to decide for themselves in advance something of the magnitude of the week's sport that begins today. Fully 75 per cent of the racehorses entered in the various events arrived from the State Fair Saturday night and yestorday, and a big force of attend-ants were busy until a late hour last light assigning the entries to their proper stables and stalls. Scores of car-loads of livestock arrived at the loads of livestock arrived at the grounds yesterday, and the pavillons were fairly well filled by dark, and the remainder of the speed kings queens and show stock will be on the grounds early this morning. Stock Ready for Exhibit.

With the big staff of people at work on the grounds and with the prompt manner in which the stock is being handled, it is expected that before noon today every department of the exposi-tion will be ready for the week's work. Every hour of each of the six days will be filled with some interesting function of the big show. The work of judging some of the divisions of the livestock some of the divisions of the livestock department will begin this morning, and the exact order in which the classes are to be judged is to be determined by Superintendent George Gammie. It will depend upon what classes are ready for the show-ring first. The judges will continue each day until the huge task is completed. Of as great interest as the judging in the showinterest as the judging in the show-ring itself will be the daily grand pa-rades of the prize-winners in front of grandstand and pavilion and around the track.

Captain Savidge, of the University of Idaho football team, says the varsity squad this year will be one of the fastest the bookworms have ever turned out, and he feels confident that the Northwest championship will go to the Gem State. This means that the opening game with Oregon must go to Idaho.

For the past two weeks the various Southern Idaho players who expect to make the regular varsity team have been putting in some hard practice before leaving for Moscow and are now in excellent trim.
