Portland People

You did nobly last Saturday. It seemed no trouble for you to pass up the Beef Trust Markets and arrive at Smith's. Why shouldn't you? Our fight is your fight. It is a battle with a corporation that seeks to control the price of meat throughout the civilized world. And at Smith's you get better, cheaper meat than at any other market around about us. Just read the prices over there

DECLINE TO REPLY

Commissioners Not Ready to Discuss Grand Jury Report.

SHERIFF WINS LONG FIGHT

Expected He Will Assume Control of County Prisoners, as His Position in Controversy Is Completely Vindicated.

The grand jury report, wherein it touches upon conditions of the prisoners at Kelly Butte and the management of affairs at the county rockpile, will attract the attention of the County Commissioners and County Judge L. R. Webster today. The report was a vindication of the attitude of Sheriff Stevens in contending that his authority to control the prisoners be recognized, and indications are, now that the findings have been made public, that Sheriff Stevens will win out in his long fight for control of the convicts. Neither Judge Webster nor Commissioner Lightner were willing to discuss the outcome of the grand jury's investigation. Mr. Lightner said that Sheriff Stevens had never made a formal demand that the prisoners be turned over to his keeping. Sheriff Stevens, on the other hand, says that he wrote a letter to the Commissioners in July, asking that the matter of handling the prisoners be taken up and expressed a willingness to meet with the Commissioners and Judge Webster to discuss the matter. One Commissioner was willing to meet him, the Sheriff says, but the others were not. Judge Webster refused yesterday to discuss the report of the grand jury until the entire report was placed before him. He declined also to say whether he and his Commissioners would act upon the suggestion that Superintendent Briggs should be removed. "We have investigated many of the charges made against Briggs," said Judge Webster, "and in every instance we have found the charges false. Whether the grand jury has found additional evidence against him I do not know. Until I have read the report, I would rather not discuss the dismissal of Briggs. We will call a meeting of the Commissioners tomorrow, unless the cases set for Monday will occupy all of my time, and we will take up the grand jury's report at this meeting." Sheriff Stevens, who has been contending for more than two years for full control of the prisoners, was naturally quite pleased at the jury's report. "So far as I am concerned," he said, "I have always been willing to work in harmony with the County Court for the best interests of the people who elected me to the office. From the beginning of the controversy, I have had in view no other end than the administration of the affairs of the Sheriff's office in accordance with the law. My predecessor in office had full custody and control of the prisoners at all times, and was charged ing the county 1 1/4 cents a meal for feeding them. My right to continue on the same lines was well established by law and precedent, but the County Court exhibited such antagonism to me that rather than precipitate a legal fight, I temporarily waived my claim to full custody of the prisoners until the Legislature would have an opportunity to define exactly what were the duties and rights of the Sheriff. "The bill also provided for my feeding the prisoners although the remuneration was reduced from 3 1/4 cents a meal to 1 1/2 cents a meal. After the bill became a law, the County Court invoked the referendum and attempted to defeat the measure. The vote at the June election sustained the bill by a two-to-one majority. Soon after the result was known, I notified each of the County Commissioners that I would like to have a conference with them in regard to the best manner in which the prisoners could be worked under the new law. In order that there would be no misunderstanding or misinterpretation of the law, I asked that my attorneys be present at the conference. One of the Commissioners verbally expressed a willingness to take the matter up with me, but the others made no reply. "The treatment which I have received at the hands of the Commissioners in the past, however, will in no way influence me in my desire to work harmoniously with them in the future."
