The vocal music was exceptionally well rendered, and it was a rare privilege to listen to it, the singers being Mrs. Rose Bloch Bauer, soprano and director: Mrs. Imogene Harding Brodle, contraito: Will-lam H. Boyer, tenor, and Dom J. Zan, baritone, with Edgar E. Coursen, organ-lst, and Henry Bettman, solo violinist. After an organ solo by Mr. Coursen the celebrated "Kol Nidre" music as arranged by Max Bruch for the occasion was played as a violin solo by Mr. Bettman, with artisito skill and solemn interpretation. This was followed by the "Kol Nidre" air, sung by the quartet, and this portion of the sorv-toe was so satisfying and so much in line with the spirit of real worship that one would have to travel far to have such cultured singers in Portland, who can render an elaborate musical pro-gramme of high ideal without calling for outside assistance. The other portlon of the service com-sisted of ritual numbers and a finely rendered solo sung with excellent intona-tion and expression by Mr. Bauer.
