IMPROVEMENTS IN SELLWOOD.—Property-owners are asking for the improvement of Clackarmas avenue, between East Ninteenth and East Twenty-third streets, but on a grade different from the estab-lished one. Property-owners on Marion avenue want the street improved from the Milwaukie road to East Twenty-third avenue want the street improved from the Milwaukie road to East Twenty-third street. At the next meeting of the Council, Councilman Wills will introduce an ordinance for the sewer system in Sellwood, between East Fifteenth and the river, the plans for which have been completed by the City Engineer. Fast of East Fifteenth street establishment of a sewer system is a great problem that the future must work out. Councilman Wills says he cannot see a way out except to run a conduit along Johnson Creek to the Willamette River at Milwaukie. It would be impracticable, he says, to cut a tunnel under Sellwood on account of the rocky formations that would make such an undertaking very expensive. He believes that it will be necessary to wait until the Ladd farm has been platted and then form a big district and run the conduit to the river by way of Milwaukie.

Fred David, a lad 14 years of age, was shot and killed by the discharge of a .25 callber rifle which had been kicked by his brother, Robert David, aged 12 years, on the railway trestle at East Second and Salmon streets about 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

That the shooting was accidental is practically certain, for all the eye-witnesses, principally boys of the same age of the deceased and his brother, are unanimous on this point.

According to the story told the police, and which was afterward corroborated by the testimony of the boys before the Juvenile Court, the David hoys had left their home at 164½ Union avenue to go fishing with Virgli and Lafayette Copley, of 428 East Oak street, and joined them shorily after they had commenced fishing in the slough. On joining the Copley boys, Frei David, who carried the rifle, said: "Til bet I can shoot the button off your cap," addressing his remarks to Virgli Copley. With this he raised the gun and pulled the trigger, but the weapon failed to explode, and he laid the gun on the railway trestle. The boys had been fishing only a few minutes when the younger David changed his position and, moving along the ties of the trestle, his toe caught the hammer of the rifle, which was discharged of the trestle, his toe caught the ham-mer of the rifle, which was discharged in some unaccountable manner. The builtet penetrated the back of Fred David's head and caused instant death. The boys did not realize what had happened, even when they saw their com-panion fall backward across the track. The three boys hurried to the nearest house and the police were summoned. When Patrolman Gruber and Gould ar When Patroiman Gruber and Gould arrived the David boy was dead, and Coroner Norden was called to take charge of the remains. After questioning all the witnesses closely and interviewing the David boys' grandmother, Mrs. Sarah Hammer, with whom they had been living, Coroner Norden decided to further investigate the shooting by helding an inquest this morn.
