POLICE LAND THUGS

Three Accused of Numerous Recent Hold-Ups.

VICTIMS SURE OF IDENTITY

Merle West Recognized as Man Who Held Up Huseby Saloon and Suspected of Killing Patrolman Young.

Merle West, a highwayman under parole; Edward Christopher, who follows the same calling, and Bob Stuart, alias Roy Pugh, were caught in the police dragnet yesterday and are now occupying cells at the City Jail with various charges of highway robbery, postoffice robbery and similar crimes hanging over them.

West has been positively identified by six, including the proprietor of the saloon at 80 Hawthorne avenue, which was held up on Saturday night, October 3, as the man who entered that place and rifled the till, as well as the pockets of the patrons, at the point of a revolver. To make the case against West more conclusive, the police lined him up with five other prisoners of about the same build against the walls of the station office. He then requested Erick Huseby, proprietor of the saloon, and W. H. Butts, A. G. Butts, Tom Smith and Fred Kilmier, the patrons of the place who fell victim to the highwayman, to pick out the man who held them up. Without hesitation all five men pointed to West.

Mask Shown to Victims.

To make the identification positive, Detective Coleman, one of the officers who arrested West and the others, produced a black silk handkerchief that had been severed in half and the ends sewed together to make a scarf, which the highwayman wore about the lower part of his face. Each of the victims recognized this as the same kind of a mask worn by the man who had held them up. West's nickel-plated revolver was also identified as the same kind of weapon carried by the highwayman. Detective Coleman found both weapon and handkerchief in the room occupied by West and another man, whose record is being investigated by the police.

The capture of West and his subsequent identification is regarded as one of the best hands the police have made in some time. In addition to the robberies he is believed to have perpetrated, it is also possible, the police say, that he may have murdered Patrolman Sam E.

Young, at Sellwood, several weeks ago. The police are practically unanimous in their belief that West, if he did not himself murder the veteran policeman, can shed some light on that affair. He is known to be perfectly familiar with Sellwood and vicinity, and is said to have been mixed in shady transactions in that section of the city on previous occasions. West stoutly denies any connection whatever with the death of Patrolman Young, and is equally emphatic in his denial of being the East Side highwayman as well. When he was positively identified by the victims, however, and afterwards confronted by the weapon and handkerchief, he was not so brazen in answering questions, but still maintained a denial.

West Now Under Parole.

West is known as a dangerous character. Some time ago he was arrested with a man named Haywood, and charged with having robbed the Hillside post-office. Owing to his age, he was given leniency by the court, but Haywood is now serving a sentence at McNeill's Island. West was later sent to the Oregon Penitentiary, and was recently paroled by Governor Chamberlain. Shortly after being allowed his liberty, he came upon Detective Hellyer in South Portland and after that officer had passed him by without interfering, he remarked to a friend that had Hellyer attempted to arrest him then he would have killed the officer.

The person to whom West made this remark immediately visited the police headquarters and told the authorities of the threat, but before West could be found he had left the city or gone into hiding. He is also suspected of various other crimes in addition to the murder of Patrolman Young.

Last night a restaurant at 306 First street was held up, and later three men on the Madison-street bridge were attacked.

Found Carrying Loaded Gun.

Christopher, the young fellow captured early yesterday morning, and who has been identified by the patrons of the restaurant, as well as by Albert Nelson, was arrested by Patrolman Van Over, on a charge of carrying concealed weapons. The officer came upon him in a suspicious manner, at first and Main streets at 4 o'clock in the morning and, on investigation, found a loaded revolver in the young man's hip pocket. He promptly placed the fellow under arrest and brought him to the station. Since his identification by his victims, it is probable that the charge will be changed to a more serious one some time today. The trio is believed to have worked together on several jobs, and with this idea in view, the detectives are investigating every action of the suspects within the past two months.

The saloonkeeper in whose place Patrolman Young met his death will be brought to the City Jail today for the purpose of identifying West or one of the other two as guilty of shooting the officer. All three of the prisoners are of about the same height, and if masked and dressed alike, it would be hard to distinguish one from the other, but the authorities believe that they will have no trouble in tracing several crimes home to them before their investigation is concluded.

VISIT CITY TODAY

Hearst and Independence Party Workers Arrive.

SPEAK AT ARMORY TONIGHT

Higgen, Candidate for President, Will Address Voters, and Hearst May Make Further Charges Against Old Parties.

Thomas L. Higgen, Independence Party nominee for President, will address the voters of Portland at the Armory tonight. He will be accompanied by William Randolph Hearst, chairman of the party's National committee, and Clement L. Pollock, an erator and prominent Independence Party worker of Massachusetts, both of whom will address the meeting, which will be called to order promptly at 8 o'clock. C. A. Foster, a prominent labor man of this city, will be chairman.

Mr. Higgen and party of Independence Party workers will arrive in Portland from San Francisco at 7:15 o'clock this morning. Paulus McDonald, who is in charge of the state headquarters in this city, yesterday received a telegram informing him that the Higgen party would be accompanied by C. W. Craig, H. W. Kalkreuth and Thomas Sweeney, representing the laboring interests. The same telegram further announced that these gentlemen would take part in the speaking at the Armory meeting tonight.

These labor representatives have just concluded a tour through Nevada and California with Higgen and Hearst. Following its arrival in this city, the party will be escorted to the Perkins hotel, where the greater part of the day will be spent. Friends of the new political party are invited to call at the hotel between 8 A. M. and 2 P. M. and again later in the day to meet Mr. Higgen, the party's Presidential nominee, and Mr. Hearst, founder of the party.

Conflicting announcements have been published of the Higgen-Hearst meeting here, but the date of the gathering is tonight. Adequate accommodations have been provided at the Armory for the large attendance that is expected.

ORATOR TO BE HEARD HERE

JUDGE THOMPSON SPEAKS TOMORROW NIGHT.

Meeting Will Be One of Chief Rallies of Republican Campaign in This State.

Republicans are planning a rousing rally here tomorrow night when Judge W. H. Thompson, of Seattle, will deliver an address under the auspices of the State Central Committee. Judge Thompson is one of the most gifted orators on the Pacific Coast and is admitted to be one of the most eloquent and forceful campaign speakers in the country.

In view of the large attendance that is assured, Secretary McArthur will endeavor to secure the Armory for the meeting but he will not be able to learn until today whether or not the building can be had. However, the place for holding the rally will be announced definitely today. With the exception of the meeting at

LAND CASES RESUME TODAY

Los Angeles Defendants Appear for Trial in Federal Court.

The Oregon land frauds will be resumed in the Federal court this morning, when the so-called Los Angeles cases will come up for trial. The defendants in the case are all from California and are connected with the Pacific Furniture & Lumber Company and its associates, who have procured Oregon timber lands illegally.

All of the defendants fought removal from Los Angeles for trial and after a long and stubborn legal battle, Tracey C. Becker, special assistant to the Attorney-General, finally won and they were forced to come to Portland for trial. Attorney Becker will conduct the prosecution of this case, as he will in all other land fraud cases that are yet to be tried, with the exception of the Hinger Hermann trial, which Francis J. Hensy expects to try.

The work of preparing the evidence that will be used has been looked after by L. R. Glavis, who succeeded Thomas B. Neuhausen. The work of selecting the jury will begin this morning.

FEW ELK KILLED IN LINN

Hunters Known to Have Bagged Less Than Dozen During Season.

ALBANY, Or., Oct. 11.—(Special.)—Though but four more days remain of the open season for elk, very few of the big animals have been killed in this county. Six or seven have been killed on the headwaters of Crabtree Creek and hunters have bagged three or four up the South Santiam River. But there are yet several elk in the mountains of Eastern Linn County and as this will probably be the last open season for many years the animals will not become extinct here.

When the 1907 Legislature permitted a lapse in elk protection it was generally feared that this would mean the extermination of the animals, but unless there has been far greater slaughter in other parts of the state than has here, that fear has not been justified. The fact that the elk live in very inaccessible places and the consequent difficulty entailed in reaching them is responsible for the small number killed in this county.
