FEWER DEMOCRATS SIGN THEIR NAMES

Registration Figures in New York Give Republicans Encouragement.

"STRAW VOTES" NUMEROUS

Results Thereof Are Various, Even When Based on Identical Sets of Figures—Incidents of Registration.

BY LLOYD P. LONERGAN.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—(Special.)—Now that the registration books have been closed, politicians are busy with figures, while various misguided newspapers are struggling with straw votes. In many cases, the results they arrive at have greatly astonished their readers.

Republican leaders are honestly encouraged over the outlook. The bulk of the falling off is in the heavy Democratic districts, while the G. O. P. bailiwicks have held up to normal figures and in some cases have increased them.

For example in four downtown districts, normally Democratic by from three to four to one, there is a Democratic net loss of 4449. As only 31,000 voters are registered in that territory it can be seen that this 4449 is a big item.

Tammany Chief Murphy while declining to discuss the situation, made one interesting statement. He was told that in the Eighth, "Christy" Sullivan's district, there had been a falling off of over 1500.

"Well they can't all be Republicans," he said. "Because there are only 1000 Republicans in the entire district."

Parsons Is Optimistic.

Republican County Chairman Parsons, always optimistic, is more cheerful than ever this year. The registration delights him and he admits it.

"There are 35 Assembly districts in Manhattan and the Bronx," he says. "Of these nine are Republican, and 26 Democratic. Of the nine Republican districts eight have shown increases in registration, while nineteen of the 26 Democratic districts show losses. In other words the Republicans show gains in eight-ninths of their districts, while the Democrats produce losses in nineteen-twenty-sixths of theirs. Sounds good, doesn't it?"

The amendments to the registration law are undoubtedly responsible for the bulk of the falling off of the vote. Under the present statute, each elector is required to sign the poll book. If he cannot write he must answer certain questions and repeat the correct answers on election day.

President Dooling, of the Board of Elections, is one expert who blames the new law for a falling off of the vote.

"While a very small percentage of those who have registered have been unable to sign their names," he said, "I have reason to believe that many have remained away because they were too proud to admit, before a line of men, many of whom were friends and acquaintances that they could not read or write.

"There are many men in this city, foreign born chiefly, who own houses and lands and are dependent on their wives and children to write their letters. I looked on the 'identification book' in one of the polling places today, and saw, to my surprise, the name of just such a man. I had never had a suspicion before that he was unable to write."

"Crimp' in Repeating Industry.

The registration figures from districts where repeaters have held forth in years gone by, indicate that the new law has put a "crimp" in this industry.

In former days scores of men would register from one house, and it was difficult to locate them when a canvass was made of the district. Now unless a voter is a householder, he is required to give the name of the head of the house with whom he resides. In addition he must sign the poll book.

Repeaters have been accustomed on election day to take a list of names of men who were sick, out of town or detained by business, and vote on them while the voting was good. Now the signature requirement is a bar to their progress, and if they select the name of an illiterate voter, it is necessary for them to possess all sorts of knowledge of his family history.

"It means a loss to the Democracy of 50,000 illegal votes in Greater New York alone," declared one enthusiastic Republican. "I believe we are certain to have a fair election this year, and in a fair election Taft will win, hands down."

Oldest Voter Is Aged 105.

The last days of registration were enlivened by the annual appearance of "the oldest voter." This year, as usual, he is Simon Harris, 105 years old, who "came here from Jerusalem to vote for Taft." Mr. Harris has figured in the political news ever since 1896, when he traveled from Joppa to cast a ballot for McKinley. It is considered the proper thing to give him a first page display in every daily newspaper, because he is promptly forgotten after election, and his case has passed out of the editorial mind the next time the polls open. Mr. Harris while admittedly very old, is remarkably bright, and an exceptionally good press agent. What he does between November and October each year nobody knows or cares, but he always has the center of the stage for a few days in the Fall.

Some Puzzlers for Board.

The Board of Elections has been passing on a number of puzzling questions that have arisen of late. Some of them, it would seem, would puzzle a Philadelphia lawyer.

For example John Hennessey is captain of the barge Maggie, moored at the foot of West Ninety-second street. Nobody disputes that he has a right to register from the boat, in the election district which takes in the pier.

But—

At flood tide, when his bark swings up the river he is in the sixth election district of the Seventeenth Assembly District. At ebb tide he is in the twenty-third election district of the Fifteenth Assembly district.

If he registers at high tide, must he also vote at high tide, and does he or does he not move out of his district twice a day?

Sorry to say, the Board of Elections dodged. They permitted the young man to register in the election district where he lived up to the time of entering his present employment.

A foreigner, whose father is naturalized when the son is a minor, is permitted to register on the elder man's papers. Abraham Nichter asked advice. He was a foreigner. His father a foreigner, died in Poland. His mother married again when Abe was 3 years old. The young man has lived in this country since he was 8 years old.

Problem—Can he vote on his stepfather's papers?

Answer of the Board of Elections—Yes; but don't boast about it.

A boy born in Honolulu was declared to be an American born citizen, this decision being based on the act of annexation. At the same time three Porto Ricans were told they had no standing in the eyes of the law.

"Straw Vote" Canvass Is Funny.

The "straw vote canvass" is progressing merrily. One New York newspaper sent out 35,000 postal cards, received 8000 answers, and from this slender basis gravely announced that Taft's plurality in the state would be 17,000, while Chanler would carry Greater New York by 303,000 and have a plurality in the state of 193,000.

This remarkable statement created great interest. One statistician, using the newspaper's figures, and what seemed to be a fairer system, proved that Taft would have 300,000 and Hughes 17,640 in the state. And the expert demonstrated clearly that the newspaper's returns indicated that Bryan would only carry Greater New York by 5000. Then he proved it, although the Republicans admit that Bryan's lead below the Bronx will be 75,000 at least.

All of which show that figures do lie.

This particular "canvass" was based on the list of first day's registration in several selected Assembly districts. Among flaws picked in the system, other than the mode of comparison, might be mentioned these:

Thirty-five thousand men were asked to name their choice for President and Governor. Eight thousand responded. What was the matter with the other 27,000? Are they all independent voters? If so what chance does Chanler possess? Did they sumply dislike the newspaper because of its advocacy of Bryan, and if so what chance has Bryan?

Furthermore, the men who register on the first day are principally those who take an active interest in politics. It is conservatively estimated that the workers make up 80 per cent of this total.

And of what value is it to poll active partisans when everybody knows that the election is decided by the independent, unattached voters?

But still a straw vote is always interesting.

Chinese Boycott Serious.

SING TAU, China, Oct. 20.—The Governor of Shantung province has arrived on a state visit of three days, and his coming, pending settlement of the questions connected with the recent anti-German uneasiness, is regarded as highly important. The Chinese boycott of the Hamburg-American steamship line is now spreading to Kobe and Hongkong and the situation is regarded as serious.

Mme. Yale's Hair Tonic

FOR CHILDREN AND ADULTS

Antiseptic and Hygienic

A Hair Invigorator—Just what its name implies. It supplies nourishment, the elements of growth, which when absorbed by the hair, strengthens and beautifies it in the same way that sap glorifies the foliage of a tree. Even where the follicles are seemingly dead, if the scalp is massaged daily with Mme. Yale's Hair Tonic a vigorous growth will be produced. It has honestly earned its title of "the great hair grower." It stimulates the most stunted growth and makes the hair magnificently healthy and beautiful. By its use women can provide themselves with a trailing mantle of hair—woman's natural raiment, her birthright.

Mme. Yale's Hair Tonic is prized equally by men and women, particularly when the hair begins to weaken or fade. Cures baldness, grayness, splitting of the hair, dandruff and all diseases of the hair, scalp and beard. One application usually stops hair falling. A nursery requisite; no mother should neglect to use it for her boys and girls; when the hair is made strong in childhood it remains proof against disease and retains its vigor and youthfulness throughout life.

Mme. Yale's Hair Tonic is a colorless, fragrant, delightful hair dressing; neither sticky, gritty, nor greasy; makes the hair soft, fluffy and glossy. Contains no artificial coloring; would not soil the whitest hair; restores original color by invigorating the scalp and re-establishing normal circulation and proper distribution of the live coloring matter. Beautiful hair redeems the plainest countenance, and anyone can secure it by using Mme. Yale's Hair Tonic. Now in three sizes. Our special price

$1.00 size 79c.
.50 size 39c.
.25 size 21c.

We will give you free a copy of Mme. Yale's 96-page book on Beauty and Physical Culture. If you live out of town, write us and we will mail you a copy.
