the court yesterday that his wife signed an agreement of separation in 1905, but said that the first time he called to see his children there was trouble. He says that his wife has poisoned their minds against him and that he thinks his wife has taught them he will kidnap them if he has the chance. When he could not see them at home, he began to meet them on the street-corner as they came from school. Then Mrs. Barton, says the husband, told the children to avoid him, and informed the principal of the school that under no circumstances was their father to visit them.

The wife on the other hand says that Barton constantly nagged at her and she the children while he was at home, and acted as if they bored him. She says she took her to live on a ranch out from Vancouver, Wash., where there were no comforts, and that when she returned to Portland he accused her of infidelity. Each parent says the other deserted. As the evidence in the matter is conflicting, Judge Brown continued the case until this morning at 9:30.

"BUNCO" KELLY TESTIFIES

Grand Jury Has Hearing of Evidence Regarding Martin Trial.

"Bunco" Kelly was before the October Grand Jury yesterday on a subpoena, and was questioned regarding the Martin case. This investigation is being conducted by the Grand Jury in spite of the fact that Edward Hugh Martin has been convicted of the slaying of Nathan Wolff in the latter's First-street pawnshop. Kelly told the falseness of a conversation he had with the convict Martin while he was in the penitentiary, and how the latter was threatened to wreak vengeance on Wolff.

Martin will not be taken to the Penitentiary probably until this winter. Kelly's testimony was given by Kelly and Jeffrey, who have been allowed 30 days in which to file a motion for a new trial. This will then be set for hearing, which will doubtless take 15 days.

Should the motion be denied, the attorneys will file notice of appeal to the Supreme Court, as they have decided that it will be best to take the case up. The ground for the appeal will be the verdict was out of harmony with the evidence. Pending the appeal a stay of execution will be asked.

President of Union Replies. F. W. Tritschler, president of the local barbers' union, has filed with the Clerk of the Circuit Court a counter affidavit, in which he says that "no knowledge" (he Leabo) has never refused either a license or a permit to any barber for the reason that he was not a member of the union, and that he never refused anything to such applicants about the union, or about joining the union, until after the permit had either been granted or denied.

These affidavits were introduced before Presiding Judge Gantenben yesterday afternoon. The case was that in which William G. Jones is seeking to have the injunction against the barbers' union, recently issued upon the order of Judge Morrow, strengthened in some points, and made perpetual. The suit is against Local No. 75, Journeymen Barbers, International Union of America, T. M. Leabo, as a member of the State Board of Barber Examiners of Oregon; J. D. Richardson, as San Francisco, and Harry Gilmore and Valney Irving.

Attorneys W. C. Bristol and Martin Watrous appeared before the court in behalf of Jones. In support of the motion for the defendant union and its officers and pickets, the latter being the last four defendants named above.

Contentions Made by Jones. Briefly stated Jones' allegations are that he reduced the wages in his shops below the union standard on July 3, and that the union members walked out, and the union declared a boycott. Pickets were sent out, and according to Jones, the union members refused to do their work in such numbers as to resemble a mob. Particularly was this true, he says, on Saturdays, usually the barbers' busiest days. The boycott was diverted, so his profits in September fell off $300.

As a result of the intimidations of the pickets, Jones says he also employed Sandwich men paraded up and down the street, while others handed out match boxes bearing legends calculated to keep the union members away. Besides all this Jones says the crowd outside was in the habit of yelling "scab" loud enough to be heard inside, and to annoy his customers and himself. His appeals to Mayor Lane, Chief of Police Gritzmacher, City Attorney Kavanagh and District Attorney Cameron did not avail.

It is the contention of the attorneys for Jones that the union has no right to boycott any shop. In support of their contention they relied to the court several cases decided by Eastern courts, in which injunctions were issued against boycotting.

Besides Stevens, affidavits were made by Frank Berry, Harry Bartlett, Frank Buckle and J. H. Velle. Mr. Berry says that he was accepted at one of the union shops, and that the word "scab" was used. Bartlett and Mr. Buckle say that two men were called out of one of Jones' shops and taken, and escorted to another barber shop.

Attorney Moser, for the defendant union, denied first that Mr. Jones' affidavit of the charges against the union was true, and then he argued that the union has a right to conduct a boycott. He had not completed his argument when the hour for adjournment came, and the case will be continued this morning.

County Judge L. R. Webster will decide the George T. Myers will contest this morning at 10 o'clock. The contest of Myers' will on the ground that he was acting under an insane delusion regarding his daughter, Mrs. George Frances Stevens, which the trial dragged for several months, and at its close Judge Webster took the case under advisement.

The decision of the court involves the disposition of property worth about $300,000. When Myers, who owned a large salmon cannery business, and was at one time a member of the Oregon Legislature, died he left the entire estate to his son, George T. Myers, Jr. Mrs. Stevens had expected that she would receive a part of the estate. During the trial Summer H. DeWitt, the elder Myers believed that Dr. S. A. Robinson, who was employed to treat Myers' wife, did not properly diagnose her case, and that she died as a result of the treatment given to the effect that the aged man believed Dr. Robinson had been employed because of Mrs. Stevens' wishes. He was said to have often upbraided himself for permitting Dr. Robinson to continue with the case.

In deciding whether or not the will is valid, Judge Webster will be told whether or not Mr. Myers was sane when he signed the instrument.

SAYS HE CANNOT SEE CHILDREN

Contested Divorce Suit of Barton Family Before Judge Bronough.

Judge Bronough, in the Circuit Court, listened yesterday to the contested divorce case of Frank G. Barton and Sula C. Barton. Both parents want the custody of the two children. They married March 2, 1902, but have been separated since September, 1906.

The suit was filed by Barton. He told the court yesterday that his wife signed an agreement of separation in 1905, but said that the first time he called to see his children there was trouble. He says that his wife has poisoned their minds against him and that he thinks his wife has taught them he will kidnap them if he has the chance.

When he could not see them at home, he began to meet them on the street-corner as they came from school. Then Mrs. Barton, says the husband, told the children to avoid him, and informed the principal of the school that under no circumstances was their father to visit them.

The wife on the other hand says that Barton constantly nagged at her and she the children while he was at home, and acted as if they bored him. She says she took her to live on a ranch out from Vancouver, Wash., where there were no comforts, and that when she returned to Portland he accused her of infidelity.

BE FEED DEALS

R. Andrews Attacks Methods of Battalion Chief.

PARTIALITY CHARGE MADE

Fire Department Official Supports His Accusation That Contractor Provided Inferior Straw for City Service During August.

Mayor Lane and members of the Executive Board gave three hours yesterday to further investigation of charges filed by Battalion Chief Stevens, of the Fire Department, against R. Andrews, who holds the city contract for furnishing feed.

The most damaging evidence adduced during the investigation was the admission by Chief Stevens himself that while he is charged with the duty of inspecting all feed and similar supplies for the department, he has no means of checking upon the deliveries so as to prove whether a contractor has really inspected his goods. Chief Stevens accepted the carload of straw from a warehouse which he inspected, and which he found satisfactory, and which will probably carry weight with the Mayor and members of the Board.

Stevens Acted Under Orders. The testimony of Chief Stevens himself, also showed that the members of the old fire committee, since resigned, ordered Stevens to accept some straw from Andrews which was unsatisfactory to him. Stevens refused to do so, and was passed upon until so ordered by the committee, composed of Marcus G. Fieschner, J. T. Peery and Richard W. Wilson. Peery appeared and testified on behalf of Chief Stevens, and admitted these statements as to poor straw being accepted by the order of the committee, but explained that the stations were out of bedding and had to have some quickly.

Chief Stevens consent to throw upon Mayor Lane some of the responsibility for straw that was rejected, but the Mayor refused to accept any blame. It seems certain that Andrews himself was the man to determine the quality of the goods. In the office of the Mayor, Mr. Andrews and Stevens met with Mayor Lane and talked over the trouble of straw.

Mayor Denies All Blame. Mayor Lane said that he looked at some straw at Chief Stevens' request in a warehouse, and that it had passed in it, but that the Mayor said he did not pass judgment upon it, that being the duty of Chief Stevens. The Mayor said he would hold Chief Stevens to the responsibility in the rejection of acceptance of the supplies for the department, and will not take any responsibility upon himself.

Considerable surprise was manifested when Chief Stevens said that when Mr. Andrews secured the contract, L. T. Peery said to be very careful in the manner of treating Mr. Andrews, as it had been generally understood that but one or two local firms were "able to bid on supplies for the department."

When Mr. Peery took the stand, later he confirmed the story of Chief Stevens, but the understanding among contractors, but he did not know how it came about or who the alleged favorite firm's are. He said he cautioned Chief Stevens to be very fair, and while the goods must be satisfactory, yet not to be too exacting.

HOME-MADE KIDNEY MEDICINE IS SPLENDID

Get These Three Harmless Ingredients and Mix This Recipe Yourself.

There are more cases of kidney trouble here now than ever before, while recent reports show that more people succumb each year to some form of kidney disease than any other cause. When there is sickness, examine the urine. Rheumatism is only a symptom of kidney trouble. It is nothing more or less than excessive uric acid in the blood, which the sluggish, inactive kidneys have failed to sift out, leaving it to decompose and settle about the joints and muscles, causing intense suffering, frequently resulting in deformity; often reaching the heart, when death ensues. Pains across the back, frequent urinal and suppressed urination and other symptoms of weak bladder are not the only signs of kidney trouble.

stand afterwards accepted, took the stand and admitted the affair, but emphatically declared that he did not know why Andrews put the straw there. Chief Stevens charged that, on several occasions, supplies had been delivered by Andrews' employees to various station-houses which had not been inspected, but which the contractor's agents told the captains in charge had been accepted by Chief Stevens. When pressed to give the names of some of them, Stevens hesitated somewhat and then named Captain Hansen, of engine No. 9, and Captain Roberts, of engine No. 12. Captain Hale, of chemical No. 2, when testifying, said he knew of incidents such as alleged by his superior officer.

Andrews declares that he has been made the victim of all kinds of anonymous "square deals" by fire department contractors, and if it is not, who is responsible. Andrews declares that he has been made the victim of all kinds of anonymous "square deals" by fire department contractors, and if it is not, who is responsible.

Chief Stevens rejected one carload of straw from the contractor, and accepted the identical straw in another man's warehouse. At 7 o'clock the case was closed and was taken under advisement.

The contention of Chief Stevens that he inspected all feed and similar supplies for the department, he has no means of checking upon the deliveries so as to prove whether a contractor has really inspected his goods.
