MEANS MUCH TO OREGON

Senate Speaker Replies To Resolution of Line That Links This State With the Great Inland Empire.

Completion of the North Bank Road on one of the most difficult sections of the transcontinental railroad, and the expected completion of the entire road from the Columbia to the Willamette, is announced this morning at a banquet in the Commercial Club at which Senator James J. Hill, the railroad's great promoter, was the guest speaker.

Senator Hill, who is expected to make a trip to the Orient, maintained that the road will have a value far in excess of its cost, and that the value will be realized not only in the increased wealth of the country, but in the increased efficiency of its government. He said that the road would be a great factor in the improvement of the west, and that it would be a great factor in the improvement of the country.

Senator Hill's speech was followed by a song, and then a banquet was served.
