

THESE THINGS WILL BE IN THE JURY'S HANDS

La Rose Tells About Watches and of His Movements Day of Murder.

FINAL ARGUMENTS TODAY

Court Limits Counsel of Each Side to Three Hours for Summing Up—Will Reach Jury by Tomorrow.

All the testimony in the La Rose murder trial is now before the jury. The state rested at 10:25 yesterday morning, and the defense yesterday afternoon. The state then placed four witnesses on the stand in rebuttal, completing its case a few minutes before 5 o'clock, the hour for adjournment. Judge Morrow, of the Circuit Court, before whom the case is being tried, then announced that the attorneys for the state and for the defendant must limit their arguments to three hours each, in which case the jury will retire for deliberation not later than Friday morning.

Thirteen witnesses were placed on the stand by Jay H. Upton and Lester W. Humphreys, the attorneys for the defendant. Jack La Rose himself was the first to take the stand yesterday morning. His manner was at first suave, impressing the spectators with recollection in face of the horrible crime with which he is charged. Later, when Deputy District Attorney Fitzgerald began cross-examining the alleged gaspings, and he was clearly pressed for an answer regarding a third watch, said to have been in his possession, his mood changed to one of surlyness, and his answers gave the impression of being hurried back with an air of defiance.

Accused Tells About Watches.

La Rose said that the detectives related correctly a conversation he had with them at the police station, except that they were mistaken regarding the watches. The defendant said that it was the large watch which he bought in San Francisco, and that he so informed the detectives when they questioned him. He said that he purchased the large watch, which has an engine engraved upon the back of the case, and which Hyman Neuman's son testified was on sale in his father's store, for $3, at a second-hand store on Clay street. The witness was not positive whether or not he ever owned the small watch, but said that it looked like one he obtained in Blazier's saloon, at Third and Burnside streets, in a pool game. He said that, with several others, he was playing rotation pool, and that one of the men offered him the watch for $1, as the pool-player was out of money and wished to continue with the game. La Rose said he could not give the name of the man from whom he obtained it, as he did not know him. He was sure he obtained it on the evening of May 11, the night before the Neuman murder, the date being fixed in his mind by his arrest.

La Rose said that during the "resting" process at the police station he asked the detectives if he must answer all their questions, and they informed him that he would tell his troubles to the judge. "I guess I talked a little rough to them," continued the witness. "I gave them as good as they sent."

Tells Movements Day of Murder.

He then gave his version of his movements on the day Neuman was struck down in his store. He said that he slept at a cheap front-street lodging-house, as he had been drinking too much whisky to get a room at a better place. He said he arrived late at the premises, and the saloons, going first to Erickson's, on Burnside street, between Second and Third. The witness told of remaining there for a "highball," and several more drinks, and of going then to Fritz and Blazier's. He saw no one he knew at any of these places, and then went to Leonard's saloon. He had never been there before May 12. The witness testified that he was never at Neuman's store until taken there by the Sheriff when the jury went to look at the premises.

MINERAL SPRINGS OWNER SUEED

Samuel Macartney Submits Claim for $2000.

Suit to recover $2000 from Edward L. Siders was begun yesterday in Judge Bronaugh's department of the Circuit Court yesterday. Samuel Macartney alleges that he sold the defendant a half interest in Shilpher's mineral springs in Washington for $6000, of which $3000 was to be paid down, and the balance of $3000 from the first profits. Macartney says Siders had made more than $3000 from the springs, but has not paid him.

COUNTY SELLS BARNES TRACT

Dispute Over Title of Property 11 Miles East of Portland.

The County Commissioners have sold the John Barnes tract, 11 miles from Portland, on the Truandale electric line, to George M. Strong, for $4500. This was the highest bid submitted. A suit over the ownership of the land is now pending in the Circuit Court. The Commissioners gave Strong a contract for a warranty deed, and are confident that they will be able to give him a clear title. The suit was brought by the heirs of Barnes, who allege that the land was given the county by Barnes with the understanding that he was to be cared for for the remainder of his days. It is alleged that the county failed to keep the contract. The tract, which consists of 32 acres, will be platted by Strong and sold.

Acquitted of Sunday Violation.

Judge Cleland directed a verdict for the defendant yesterday afternoon in the case in which he was charged with violating the Sunday-saloon-closing law. Testimony brought out the fact that several persons were drinking on Sunday in the room at the hotel, and that the defendant, who was picking up some of the passengers, Bobleter, he said, did not signal the car, but attempted to board it as it was in motion. The conductor said that as soon as he saw Bobleter reach for the handles he gave three bells, the emergency signal, and the car was brought to a stop.

Verdict for Streetcar Company.

A verdict for the Portland Railway Company was returned yesterday in Judge Cleland's department of the Circuit Court in the suit brought by A. Bobleter. The latter demanded $5000 damages because, in attempting to board a car at East Twenty-eighth and East Davis streets, he missed his footing. He alleged that he was permanently injured. The motorman testified that a tripper was following the car, and was picking up some of the passengers. Bobleter, he said, did not signal the car, but attempted to board it as it was in motion. The conductor said that as soon as he saw Bobleter reach for the handles he gave three bells, the emergency signal, and the car was brought to a stop.

According to the verdict of a jury in Judge Bronaugh's department of the Circuit Court returned yesterday morning, M. Barde & Son must pay J. T. The Barde brought suit against Wilson to recover $250, alleging that they purchased an old boiler and tubing for $250, paying $90 down. The plaintiffs asserted that Wilson misrepresented the quantity of tubing, while Wilson contended that he told the purchasers that the iron was on the premises for examination.

"I'm 18 and my own boss. I'm a woman and not a girl," the youthful prisoner declared, angrily, when taken to the police station.

"She's only 16, and I ought to know if anyone does," the mother's word for it and sent the girl to the Home of the Good Shepherd, pending further inquiry into the case. Arrested with her was Carl Sikes, a homely youth, who is said to have been trying to get the girl to elope with him. If it develops that she is but 16, as the mother says, then Sikes will have to stand trial on the serious charge of contributing to the delinquency of a minor.

The girl left home last Saturday with the announcement that, having become 18, she would shift for herself. The police were notified, but they couldn't find the girl. Deputy District Attorney Mossesolin, on issuing a warrant for the girl's detention, made an investigation and located her in an apartment house on Stark street. In trying to learn the girl's age Mr. Mossesolin found that the Highland School records show she was 15 in November a year ago. This verifies what the mother says, but an effort will be made to locate the birth certificate in the county clerk's office before taking up the case for a hearing.

William Henderson, proprietor of the Appleton Hotel, on Stark street, is also under arrest because of the case. Mrs. Brown charges that while the girl was escaping Henderson assisted her. The mother says she was held back by Henderson from searching a room in which the girl was thought to be hiding. Henderson also kicked at her, she says. The hotel man is charged with assault and battery.
