SPEAKERSHIP TO CANNON AGAIN

Republican Majority in House Means "Uncle Joe's" Re-election.

BLOW TO TARIFF REFORM

Revision Bill Will Be Railroaded Through in Cannon Fashion Without Doing Injury to Truste' Interests.

OREGONIAN NEWS BUREAU, Washington, D. C., Nov. 12.—The size of the Republican majority in the next House of Representatives is such as to practically insure the re-election of Speaker Cannon. This means that the tariff bill that will be drawn by the committee on ways and means, and will subsequently be railroaded through the House in true Cannon fashion, will be far from satisfactory to the country at large, and decidedly unsatisfactory to those Republicans who truly believe in an honest revision of the Dingley schedules.

Everything Cannonized.

The re-election of Cannon as Speaker means the reappointment of Representative Payne, of New York, as chairman of the committee on ways and means, with Representative Dalzell, of Pennsylvania, as ranking member of the committee. Payne and Dalzell practically run that committee, and they will, of course, run it in a way that will meet the approval of Speaker Cannon. But one vacancy exists in the Republican membership, due to the retirement of Representative Watson, who made an unsuccessful race for the Governorship of Indiana, and the man appointed to fill the vacancy will be one whose tariff views coincide with the views of Mr. Cannon. Moreover, the Republican membership of the committee, as a whole, is not in sympathy with the demand for tariff revision, and the cuts made in the committee bill will not be of such a nature as to meet the popular demand.

Once the ways and means committee reports its bill a special rule will be brought in which in all probability will deny the House the right to amend the measure (this being the Cannon method of passing all important legislation which would be amended if submitted to the House on its merits), and the bill, after comparatively brief discussion, will be passed and sent to the Senate, where it will be entrusted to the tender mercies of the finance committee, of which Senator Aldrich is chairman

Wrangle in Senate.

The first real consideration given the tariff bill will be that accorded it in the Senate, where the right of debate is unlimited, and where every Senator has the right to talk to his heart's content. Not that debate is going to influence the bill particularly, but that it will afford the true revisionists an opportunity to point out the unjust provisions of the measure and to offer amendments in accord with their respective views. Moreover, every amendment offered in the Senate must be voted upon, if the Senator proposing it insists upon a vote. The Senate, unlike the House, is never compelled to accept any measure as reported by a committee. Hence the report of the Aldrich committee is bound to be more or less amended by the Senate at the close of what will certainly be a prolonged discussion

In the end the tariff bill, whatever its provisions, will follow very largely the lines laid down by the Senate; it may bear very scant resemblance to the bill framed by the Payne committee in the House Nevertheless, with a more favorable ways and means committee there would be better prospect of honest revision than there will be under prevailing conditions. For instance:

Represents Steel Trust.

Representative Dalzell, who is really the dominating figure on the ways and means committee, is admittedly the representative of the Steel Trust and of the Pennsylvania coal barons. He was sent to Congress solely to protect their interests, and what more natural than that Dalzell should exercise his great power to so shape the original tariff bill as to offer no affront to the Steel Trust or the Coal Trust. And Dalzell is just big enough to force that committee to do his bidding in regard to the steel and coal schedules.

Chairman Payne will back Dalzell in this particular, for Payne is subservient to Dalzell, though ranking him on the committee. Dalzell will win out because he will be able to coerce less influential members into supporting his views; he will threaten to so modify other schedules affecting their respective states, unless they come to time on the steel and coal schedules. And those members, for the most part, cleverly chosen by Speaker Cannon, are just weak enough to bow down to Dalzell. This scheme will work because there are 12 Republicans on the committee and only 7 Democrats, and in the next House the Democratic membership will not be increased; if anything it will be curtailed, or else the Republican membership will be increased.

Known as Payne Bill.

Therefore, it is true that the tariff law to be enacted at the special session of Congress, which will assemble next March, will be made in the Senate. It will in all likelihood go down in history as the Payne bill, because Payne is chairman of the ways and means committee, and as such will introduce the measure in the House. And yet Payne will not recognise his child when it comes back from the senate for final acceptance by the House The present tariff law took Dingley's name because Representative Dingley, at the time of its enactment, was chairman of the ways and means committee. For the same reason the two previous tariff laws were known as the McKinley law and the Wilson law, respectively.

PRAISES GREAT BRITAIN

Indian Prince Calls on Subjects to Rally to British Support.

CALCUTTA, Nov. 12.—(Special.)—The Maharajah of Benares delivered an impressive and interesting address at a public meeting of the citizens of Benares recently. His Highness, in the course of his speech, said:

"Let us come forward and unite in a common cause. Let us, therefore, rally to the side of the government, to whom we owe all the peace and prosperity which we are enjoying at the present day, and from whom we expect hundreds of such and greater blessings. We are safe from internal dissension and external depredations. The formidable navy of England is guarding our extensive shores, which cost us nothing, and for which purpose other nations are spending millions. The mighty army of the empire is ready to supplement our brave Indian army to protect us from foreign invasion. We have no other external or internal troubles or anxieties to engage our attention. If under such favorable circumstances we do not try to develop our resources and make our country rich and contented, we shall have to thank ourselves, and none else. No country has ever benefited by acting against its own government.

"All the reforms and good can come only through good understanding between the rulers and the ruled. The reforms in Russia and Poland were retarded and checked by lawlessness and anarchism, and those in Germany and Austria progressed by loyal co-operation. It is fortunate that England does not set the example of Russia and Persia before it in quelling the disturbances. We know what methods were employed by those autocrats to crush the rebellion and the spirit of lawlessness. I ask you, gentlemen, to compare the methods adopted by the British government in suppressing riots at Bombay with those of the French government in quelling those at Paris, both of which events took place within a few days of each other.

"In the one, firing was had recourse to as the last resort after every other method failed, while in the other it was the only method adopted. In the one the number of dead and wounded came to dozens, while in the other they were counted by hundreds. These instances alone, if not hundreds of other substantial blessings conferred on us, should be a sufficient reason for us to be thankful to the Almighty for having placed us under the English government."

GIRL OF 23 STILL CHILD

Medical Experiment Will Be Tried by London Physicians.

LONDON, Nov. 12.—(Special.)—A medical experiment of great interest is being tried in London in the case of the Devonshire girl, Mildred Hart, who, though nearly 23 years of age has not developed either physically or mentally since she was 5 years old. She still plays with a doll, she has a more limited vocabulary than most children of 5 years old, and she still wears baby clothes.

The girl's state is due to a disease known as sporadic cretinism, and the one remedy which has so far been discovered consists in the administration of an extract of thyroid glands taken from animals. Accompanied by her mother the girl arrived in London a day or two ago, and the treatment began yesterday.

If thyroid glands substance taken usually from sheep be given to such cases development proceeds in the most remarkable way. But to ensure success the patient should be treated when young before the ossification of bones has proceeded so far as to render growth impossible. This ossification is generally completed by or before the age which Mildred Hart has reached.

It is probable therefore that in her case the administration of thyroid glands will be too late materially to assist growth, though it may profoundly stimulate her mental processes. In any case the experiment will have done no harm and she will at least have been given a chance.
