stunned and paralyzed. The would-be foot and a half of Mr. Heney's head when he gulled the trigger, stepped back, his arms by his side, one hand stift clutching the smoking platol, as if hesetating what to do. For a fraction of a second an impressive silence followed the report, while the smoke of the shot laxlly floated away. Then folowed a dramatic scene. Some one shouted:

Rush to Capture Haas.

"My God! He has shot Heney." Excrowd. Half of the spectators, evidently fearing further shooting, made a frantic rush for the doors. Before the as sassin could ruise his pisto; again Mr. Foley and E. J. Wiskotchill, a specia policeman, were upon him, had thrown m to the floor and wrested the weapon from his grasp. He struggled, but was dragged to the jury box, thrown uson his back and held there, just as the jury attracted by the ahot, came bursting through its private entrance.

As the man who had fired the shot tepped back from the Assistant District Attorney with the smoking weapon in his hand, he kept his eyes on Mr. Heney, as if to see how effective his aim had been.

"Send for My Wife," Says Hency.

Mr. Hency arose out of his chair, put his hands to his head, the blood atreaming through his fingers and red-dening the table in front of him. Isaned over a moment and was caught as he began to fait. He was laid on the floor, Charles Oliver and John Foley, two special detectives connected with the District Attorney's office, holding his head out of the pool of blood which flowed from a wound which appeared to be just below his right temple. He was conscious, and when the Associated Press representative dropped down at his side and spoke to him, his first

Dr. H. A. Hincks, who was in the Heney's side, made a hasty examination and prenounced him fatally wounded. Mr. Heney was perfectly composed, the peculiar smile, for which he is known, was still hovering over his lips. Evidently he also believed that he was fatally wounded. Turning his eyes to John O'Gara, his assistant in the trial,

Immense, Angry Crowd.

The report of the attempted assassing tion spread throughout the city like wildfire and caused intense excitement and indignation. An immense crowd gathered around Carpenters Hall, to which Judge Lawlor had moved his court this week on account of the lack of room and facilities in the temporary criminal court building. Several hundred persons fol-lowed the abulance from the hall to the Central Emergence Hospital, and down town thousands gathered around bui-letin boards.

Within a few minutes after the shooting Chief of Police W. J. Biggy. W. J. Burns, ex-United States Secret Service agent, who is at the head of the special detectives employed by the prosecution in the bribery-graft cases; tudolph Spreckels, the capitalist who inanced the prosecution: Captains of colice Gleason, Duke and Wright, and large force of police, were on the

There was no hostile demonstration There was no hostile demonstration by the big crowd in front of the building, but some threatening murmurs began to be heard. Ruef was aurrounded by a large number of people and quietly slipped away, going with Dr. Tuchier to the latter's office for a little while. This led to a report that the former political bose had disappeared, and Mr. Burns censured some of his men for having allowed him to get away and Mr. Biggy immediately sent men to hunt for him. Ruef, however, appeared in front of the building a little later and sent in word that the officer at the door would not let him in. He was at once taken into the courtroom.

In the meantime several acts of the tragedy were being played in different parts of the courtroom. While Mr. Henry was lying on the floor the newspapermen approached the would-be assamin, who up to that time had not yet been identified, and asked him for his name. At first he refused to give it, then he said:

"Heney Ruined Me," Says Hans. "I am Morris Hass. Heney ruined ne. I don't care what becomes of me

I cannot express myself in strong enough terms. Mr. Heney did not denounce this man Haas, if he is the one who did the shooting. In pursuance of his duty he disclosed the fact, during the other trial of Mr. Ruef, that Haas was an exconvict and as such had him disexconvict and as such had him dis-nissed from the jury box. I sincerely tope that Mr. Hensy will recover."

Mr. Dozler also regretted that he Mr. Dozler also regretted that he was engaged in a criminal case after having several times made a resolution that he would not again take one.

dered my chauffeur to take my car and get the nearest physician that he could find. I cannot find language atrong enough to demounce the attempt to kill Mr. Heney."

Even before Mr. Heney had been removed from the courtroom, Capiain of Police Duke took Haas in charge and after informing him that whatever he might say would be used against him, began to interrogate him, the statement of the ex-convict being taken down in shorthand.

Motive of Haas' Crime.

Hass was convicted of embezzlement in San Bernardino County, and on May 25, 1888, was sentenced to three years in San Quentin. He served two years and eight months, having earned four months by good behavior, and was released January 25, 1890. Some years later he was married and has a wife and four children. He lived with his family at 1548 McAllister street, and was engaged in the saloon business at family at 1848 McAllister street, and was engaged in the saloon business at the time he was drawn on the jury panel for the second trial of Ruef last May. After he had been passed by both sides, Mr. Hency learned that he was an ex-convict. He dramatically confronted Haas with his picture in convict stripes, closely-cropped hair and number across his breast. Haas was forced to admit his penitentlary record and was immediately discharged from the jury. From his statement it appears that he has been brooding over his exposure ever since that day, and has nursed a deep hatred of Mr. Hency, which culminated in today's tragedy.

As soon as a semblance of order was restored, the court ordered Ruef, who has been at liberty on bonds aggregating $1,500,000, into the custody of the Sheriff and he was soon afterward taken to the County Jall. His counsel offered formal objections. Mr. Dozler then demanded that Gallagher, the witness, he also ordered into the custody of the Sheriff until his cross-examination had been finished. When the news of Pope Leo's death was flashed from Reme and reached San Francisco just 20 minutes after, it was thought a great achievement, but the swiftness with which the attempted kill-ing of Heney was handled sets this record aside. At the request of Prezident Roosevelt. Francis J. Heney came to Fortland from San Francisco in November, 1963, as special assistant to United States Attorney-General Knox to assist John H. Hall, at that time United States Attorney for Oregon, in prosecuting the land frauds in this state. It was not until the Fail of the following year, however, that the first of the celebrated cases, the 11-7 case, involving Puter, McKinley, et al., was tried.

was tried.
Upon reaching Portland, Heney made a therough study of the situation, in this state and the extent to which the landfrauds had been carried on. For that reason he became suspicious of Hall when the District Attorney proposed that the 24-1 case be substituted in the order of trial for the 11-7 case. Hence surmised at once that the 24-1 case was not as at once that the 24-1 case was not as strong a one for the Government as that of the 11-7 and refused to be trapped. Failure of the Government to maintain its first case Heney knew would be discouraging and influence subsequent prosecutions. He insisted that the stronger case be tried first and would not consent to have the 11-7 case sidetracked for another case in which the chances of the Government for securing a conviction were not good.

HENEY'S WAR ON RUEF GRAFTERS

Attempted Assassination Climax of Bitter War on Bribery.

WHY HE PROSECUTES RUEF

After Pleading Guilty and Promising to Turn State's Evidence, Ex-Boss Recants-Bitter Contest at Judicial Election.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 13.—After prosecuting the Oregon land frand cases in Portland, Francis J. Heney was called to San Francisco to prosecute ex-Mayor Schmitz, Abraham Ruef and other mencharged with graft and bribery, Backed by Rudolph Spreckeis, who advanced large sums of money to carry on the work Mr. Heney was appointed Assistant District Attorney Langdon and immediately plunged into the work of exposing the bribery and corruption among city officials. Abraham Ruef was at that time Mayor Schmitz legal adviser and, though holding no political office, was generally recognized as being all-powerful in municipal politics. Through his absolute control of the boadle Board of Supervisors, Ruef caused them to remove Mr. Langdon as District Attorney and appoint him (Ruef) in his place. and appoint him (Ruef) in his place. This move was blocked by the court and dr. Langdon and Mr. Heney, assisted by William J. Burns, formerly of the Inited States Secret Service, went ahend

Grafters Confess, Ruef Guilty.

Mr. Burns and his men had been making secret investigations and had secured confessions of bribery from all except two of the Board of Supervisors. These confessions implicated not only Schmitz and Ruef, but also the head officials of the United Railroads Company, the Pacific States Telephone Company, the Home Telephone Company, the Home Telephone Company, the Gas & Electric Company and other corporations seeking public franchises. A special grand jury was called and indictments were found against Ruef and Schmitz and many men prominent in San Francisco financial and social circles. Mr. Burns and his men had been mak-

Ruef, who was released on bail after Ruef, who was released on ball after his indictment, was at first deflant, but at last became alarmed and attempted to flee. After several days he was located in a readhouse a short distance from San Francisco and was again taken into cus-tody. He was placed on trial on a charge of extortion in having demanded and re-ceived a large sum of money from Francisco and the several reconstitute who wanted ceived a large sum of money from French restaurant proprietors who wanted to retain their liquor licenses. Mr. Heney entered upon the trial with great energy and finally Ruef broke down in court and pleaded guilty to the charge of extertion. He had been indicted on 113 counts, but was promised immunity on all the charges except the one to which he pleaded guilty, provided he testified to the truth in the other trials.

Appeal Court Clears Schmitz.

Then came the trial of Schmitz. charged with extortion, and Ruef testi-fied that he had divided the money ob-tained from the restaurantkeepers with Schmitz. Schmitz was convicted and was Schmitz. Schmitz was convicted and was sentenced to five years in prison. He appealed to a higher court and the Appellate Court reversed Judge Dunne's decision on the ground that the indictment was defective in that it had neglected to state that Schmitz was Mayor of San Francisco. The Supreme Court reaffirmed this decision and Schmitz is now out on ball awaiting trial on other charges.

In the meantime, Louis Glass, vice-president of the Pacific States Telephone Company, had been convicted of bribe-giving and Tirey L. Ford, vice-president of the United Railroads, was tried. It was expected that Rouf would testfy against him and this expectation con inued to the last moment, but to every body's surprise, he was not called. It was generally supposed that Ruef had fallen under the influence of the defense and could not be depended upon to give the evidence which he had already given before the grand jury. The jury disagreed at the first trial and at the second trial Ford was acquitted.

Ruef Forfeits Immunity.

The Appellate Court's decision in the Schmitz case having been given while the Ford case was pending. Ruef becam-defiant and refused to testify. Thereupon the immunity contract which he had ob tained from the prosecution was declared void and he was tried on another charge. At this trial the jury disagreed and it was during the retrial of this case that was during the retrial of this case that Mr. Heney was shot.

During the second trial of Ruef a man named Hiske was arrested for attempting to bribe one of the Jurymen. He was convicted and stated in court that his attorneys had told him that Ruef would pay him $10,000 if he would serve his term in the penitentiary and not confess.

Victory for Prosecution.

Mr. Heney, through his aggressive manner in court and his relentiess pros-ecution of those charged with corruption centien of those charged with corruption, has made many enemies. He realized that he might be attacked at any time and went about the city under guard. So acute was the feeling in San Francisco over the graft cases that at the last election the election of President caused comparatively little interest here. Four Superior Judges were to be elected and the interest was centered on the contest between Frank H. Dunne, in whose court Ruef and Schmitz had been tried, and Judge Carroll Cook, who, it was alleged by the supporters of the proseleged by the supporters of the prose-cution, was favorable to the defense, Judge Dunne was elected, receiving the third highest vote, and Judge Cook was defeated.

Dynamite for Gallagher.

During the third trial last Spring of Ford, on one of the 14 indictments re-turned against him charging bribery, the home of James L. Gallagher, the the home of James L. Gallagher, the prosecution's star witness in all the graft cases, was dynamited in Oakland. The house was badly wrecked and Gallagher and his family and some friends who were there at the time had narrow escapes. A few weeks later two other houses in Oakland, of which Gallagher was part owner were also blown un. was part owner, were also blown up. Two Greeks, John and Peter Claudianes were arrested and are now awalting trial in Oakland. One of them made a statement to District Attorney Langdon and Special Agent Burns that he had been paid to do the deed, Mr. Heney been paid to do the deed. Mr. Heney stated at the time that he believed Gal-lagher's life was in danger and the ex-Supervisor and leader of the boodling Board moved from Oakland to San Francisco and took up his quarters at the St. Francis Hotel. Since that time he has seldem appeared without a bodyguard.

Men and women paused in their hurried homeward march, paused until fully comprehending the terrible news, and then there was a rush to get the paper. Mr. Henoy was so well known in Portland that the news could not have been Mr. Hency was so well known in Portland that the news could not have been less shocking had the attempted murder taken place here. Stout-hearted mear read the brief account first printed and on all sides could be heard expressions of deep regret and a hope that after all the life of the noted prosecutor would be spared. To the majority of those who read the startling news, Mr. Hency was known only through his prosecution of the Oregon land frauds and of the grafters in San Francisco, yet he was very much alive to them all, and it seemed as if every one who read, or was told of the attempted assussination, felt he had suffered a personal loss.

Joy That He Will Recover.

In just 18 minutes after the shot was fired by Hans, the news was finshed through the city. The later editions told that Mr. Hency still lived and had a chance of recovery. This news was in-deed welcome, for thousands of men, men in all walks of life, remained down men in all walks of life, remained down town, waiting to learn whether Haas' bullet had been fatal.

While taboring to drive out of Oregon the men who had schemed to rob the state and Government of its timber lands. Mr. Heney had made many fast friends and at the same time he made enemies among the friends of those caught in his dragnet. By a few of these chemics the news of the attempted assassination. his dragnet. By a few of more chemics the news of the attempted assassination of Mr. Hency was received with ill-concealed satisfaction. There was 50 expression of regret from these few, or even words of condemnation of the daseven words of concemnation of the dis-tard who sought to take Hency's life. T. B. Neuhansen, who is a close per-sonal friend of Mr. Hency, and who was sonal friend of Mr. Heney, and who was with him through all of the Oregon land-fraud prosecutions, and Trucey C. Becker, who has taken Mr. Hency's place as special prosecutor, were ready to leave last night for San Francisco had Mr. Hency's wound been faint. Judge Becker may go anyway, for he has formed a great attachment for Mr. Hency. In speaking of Mr. Hency last night, Mr. Neuhausen said:

Hency's Strong Characteristics.

Mr. Heney's strongest characteristics as a prosecutor were his protound knowledge of human nature. his absolute fourlessness, an abding fatth in the sense of justice of the average American citizen and a wonderful facility for marishaling he facts in a criminal case in logical and convincing sequence. He never failed to detect a prevarienting witness and he knew him a display his opinion of such an one in a manner that was infinitable. Although not a student of elecution he understood how others from committing like offences.

Admires Loyalty, Is Merciful.
That he appreciated loyalty was shown by the admiration which he frequently expressed for the manner in which Colonel David M. Dunne stood by John H. Mitchell when the cid Scuntar was "down and out" and when he needed the sympathy and sessinguo of a ew of the mon that he had befriended in his painty days. That Mr. Heney did not glory in trumpting over the feelings of those whom he had brought to the bar of fusion was shown whom he, out of conduction for the feelings of a sorrew-stricken wife, declined personally to appear in the courtroom and ask for the sentence of Martin G. Hoge in the Miller-Klacart case.

When he recently received the news that Thad S. Petter was dangerously ill and mat imprisonment would undoubtedly shorten the man's life, Mr. Hency was one of the first to indorse the movement in favor of pardoning Potter. Numerous other instances could be cited to prove that Francis J. Henny is not only a great prescutor but an intelligent student of human nature and a considerate and generous administrator of the law.
