Ring of Rogue River Prominent Figure in Oregon Affairs.

MARSHFIELD, Or., Nov. 12.—(Special.)—R. D. Hume was born at Augusta. Me. October 31. 1845. He came to Curry County in 1876. Before settling in that county he worked for his brother. George Hume, in a cannery on the Sacramento River in California and later built and conducted a cannery on the Columbia River. He was twice married. His first wife was Cecella A. Bryant, a relative of William Cullen Bryant, the poet. His second wife was Mary A. Duncan before her marriage. His only near relatives are the wife and two nephews, one in Seattle and the other at Wedderburn.

Mr. Hume has occupied an unique position in Oregon. He is known as the "King of Rogue River," and in reality has lived up to the title given him. When he first came to the Coast he made the trip by way of Panama and was not without money. His cannery on Rogue River paid extensively and he acquired great wealth. He became the owner of over 5000 acres of valuable Curry County land and today pays one-sixth of the tuxes of the entire county. He practibally controls the financial affairs of the locality.

Mr. Hume first built a cannery at Gold Beach. This was burned in 1893, and he built another and more modern plant at Wedderburn. He recently constructed a $35,000 cold storage plant and owns and operates the only private fish hatchery in Oregon.

The Hume home at Wedderburn is a spacious one and besides this, Mr. Hume has a $40,000 residence at Pledment. Cal. His personal interests, however, have been chiefly in Curry County and he spands most of his time there. Mr. Hume is a staunch Republican and has always been active in politics, his only gratification of political ambition, however, was one term in the Oregon State Legislature as Joint Representative from Coos and Curry Counties.

of running horses and annually conducts a race meeting at Wedderburn, which is always largely attended by prominent horsemen. He has always been recognized as an authority on racing matters and never spared his wealth in advancing legitimate racing. Mr. Hume also owns a newspaper, the Wedderham Radium, and is now published as a weekly. It has been said of Mr. Hume that he held large tracts of land without developing or opening them to settlement, but a few munths age the salmon king offered to actual settlers tracts of land with house, cattle and other livestock to any good eitheans who wedlid come to Curry County to live. A number of persons took advantage of the generous offer made by Mr. Hume.

During recent months Mr. Hume has made frequent visits to Cook Bay. He has shown a spirit to enter into the general development work of Southern Oregon and a short time ago at a public meeting stated that he realised that he was seen to step out of active life and desired to do all he could to further the interests of those who would be benefited by the growth of Oregon.

On Halloweven night Mr. Hume celebrated his said birthday at Wedderburn.

This filled the soul of Jancigaj with a jealous rage, and on the morning of Saturday, July 11, he purchased a revolver, and that day spent some time in practice with the weapon. During the evening he was seen in a saloon and on the street, and shortly before midnight he walked to the river bank and fired all the chambers of his revolver into the foundation of the suspension bridge. He then walked to the Smrekar home, climbing up a ladder to the window of his victim's room. He calmity sat down on the edge of the bed, reloaded his gun, and fired two hullets into the body of the unfortunate girl, who expired instantly.

Jancigaj rushed down the stairs and made his escape, staying all night with a countryman not five blocks away from the scene of his crime, and chided the vigilance of the posse that scoured the city for him, until the next morning, when he gave himself up. The state has a remarkably strong case against him,

COMPANY EXPECTS PORTERS TO WORK PUBLIC, SAYS HOFF.

State Labor Commissioner Believes He Has Inside Facts in Car Corporation's Pigures.

SALEM. Or., Nov. 11.—(Special.)—That the Pullman Company expects its porters and waiters to "work" the public for a large part of their compensation, and probably for more, is the opinion expressed by State Labor Commissioner O. P. Hoff in his bleamial report to the Leginlature. That the company receives a part of the "tips" is a deduction Mr. Hoff makes from the fact that the gross receipts of the company in Oregon, as reported to the State Treasurer, amounts to 34 (65) 16 while the amount paid out in reported to the Scale Treasurer, amounts to $61.065.16, while the amount paid out in wages alone, as shown by the report to the Labor Commission, almost equals that amount. Mr. Hoff summarizes the report of the Pullman Company and comments of the Pullman Company and comments thereon, as follows:

"This bureau has been unable to get exact figures paid by the general public in tips. Wages of portiers, upon which they have to live and clothe themselves in bright new uniforms, are EM a month for tourist and ES in standard sleepers; walters working under the same conditions. The company expects them to work the public for the balance of wages. The gross earnings of this company, as reported to the State Trensurer of Oregon, smounts to ELEGAS, or practically the amount paid for salaries and wages. It is possible, though we are unable to learn, that the tips, exceeding a fair remuneration, are turned over to the company and form the profits on their investment."

between Baker City merchants and the

The trouble grew out of a refusal to mill here. It is said that some officials of the railroad discouraged the mill project, calling attention to the fact that a waterpower mill at North Powder, only a part of the time. When this information reached Baker's business men an explanation was requested.

While here the officials promised to build eidetracks for the new mill as first outlined. They also called attention to the new depot to be srected soon, which is to be patterned after the Walla Walla depot. Everything seemingly was adjusted in an amicable way.

Principle of Proportional Representation Would, It Is Believed, Encourage Each Voter to Register True Party Principles.

BY A. W. PRESCOTT.

SALEM, Or. Nov. 13.—(Special.)—A plan has been suggested which, if found practicable in other respects, would solve the problem of preventing members of one party from registering as members of another party; and at the same time furnish a basis for distributing representation on a proportional principle. The plan is that each party shall be assared representation in the Legislature in proportion to its registration. This would induce every voter to register honestly his party affiliation and at the same time determine fairly and equitably what representation each party shall have. Under such a system, if any Democrat registered falsely as a Republican, his party associate would censure him, instead of encouraging him, as has been done in the past.

In practice the plan would wask had been counted, its three ingless ter-publican candidates and the two high-est Democratic candidates would be de-clared elected.

Any plan of proportional representa-tion would require the formation of Any plan of proportional representation would require the formation of districts large enough to entitle them to about three Representatives, at least. Proportional representatives, at least. Proportional representatives with only one Representative, and in most cases, a fair distribution could not be made in districts with as few as two Representatives. Exact proportion would be impossible in almost every instance, for the odd Representative would always be allotted to the party having the larger fraction of the number of voters taken as a basis of apportionment. Thus, if a district had 7000 voters and five Representatives, with the party strength divided thus, Republicans 400. Democrats 2009, Prohibitionists 500, Socialists 400, each party would be entitled to one Representatives, with 1300 voters. The Republicans would be entitled to two Representatives, with 1300 votes to spare; the Democrats would be entitled to one Representative, with 600 votes to spare. Neither of the minor parties would have a major portion of the number of voters required. This would give the Republicans three and the Democrats two Representatives.

The plan of basing proportional representation upon registration has been discussed by men who have given some thought to the subject, and though it is open to some objections, its advantages are thought to be as many and as strong as those of any other plan of dividing representation among the parties.
