LONGSHOREUNIONS ENGAGE IN FIGHT

Members of Local Union No. 6 Drive Rival Workers Ashore.

MORE TROUBLE EXPECTED

Freighthandlers Take Up Charter Granted by International Association and Seek Recognition as Longshoremen.

Labor conditions on the Portland waterfront assumed a serious aspec yesterday morning, when members of Longshoremen's Union No. 6 attacked the men sent by another union to dis harge the steamship Homer, at the foot of Oak street. The fighting was of such a nature as to cause Agent Raker to send in a riot call, and it was with difficulty that quiet was restored The new men retired in good form and members of Local Number 8, proceeded to discharge the steamer.

At noon a serious riot was only averted by the prompt action of Harbormaster Speier. He anticipated tron when the gang would knock off for the noon hour and had a squad of plain clothes men in walting for derelopments. Members of the routed union were about 100 strong and the friends of those employed in discharging the steamer sent out for reinforcenents. Before the row started Captali Speier served notice on the leaders of each faction that he would take a hand each faction that he would take a hand as soon as any move was made by either party. On this information each side withdrew.

Longshore work in Portland has been done for many years by the members of two gnions. One. No. 5, handles all work on the steamers of the Portland & Asiatic Steamship Company and of the San Francisco & Portland Steamship Company. No. 6 deals exclusively with the outside steamers and off-shore vosels. Some time during the early with the outside steamers and off-shore voxels. Some time during the early months of the year 1396, Local No. 8 (then known as 265) withdrew from the International Association. A few mouths ago the local inition jained with the other unions on the Pacific Coast. A contract with the stevedores was made after the conclave in Portland, but was dated a month back, whereby members of the mion were bound and to interfere in any way with labor trembles for a period of two years.

The charter from the International Longshoremen, Marine and Transport

Longshoremen, Marine and Transpor Workers' Association, is dated 1981 and has never been revoked. During the busy times, when members of Local No. 6 were not available for work, it No. 6 were not available for work, it was the habit to employ freight handlers, sailors and outsiders to work for the union. Business became slow and the freight handlers applied for permission to work under the charter granted by the International Association, which was allowed. This charter is approved by the American Federation of Labor.

Armed with this authority, member of the new union applied to Agent Ba-ker yesterday morning for the work on the Homer. They went on board only to be assailed within a few minonly to be assalled within a few min-ules by members of the old union, who claimed the ship. After a short and practically bloodless fight members of the new union retired and the work was taken up by the old outfit. As neitr as can be learned the charter under which the freight handlers took took longulars work is dated 1901 and up longshere work is dated 1991, and the number of the union is 134. When the old union withdraw from the as-sociation in 1998, one McDonald kept
