Inmates of Charitable Homes Sit Down to Sumptuous Turkey Dinners.

HOLIDAY ENJOYED BY ALL

Donations of Tempting Viands Are Made to Many Institutions and Spirit of Thanksgiving Is General Over City.

Thanksgiving Day was most fittingly observed at the various charitable institutions in Portland, and in every instance the members of the various homes partook of sumptuous turkey dinners and attendant good things. In most cases these dinners were made possible through the instrumentality of kind-hearted and philanthropic merchants, private individuals and organizations in the city.

At the Patton Home, at 975 Michigan avenue, the day was one long round of joys, Dinner was served at 2 P. M., and the 42 old ladies and eight old men were clad in their best apparel. The table decorations were chrysanthemums and the dinner inself included turkey, with all the accessories of cramberry sauce, oyster Thanksgiving Day was most fittingly

Day at Patton Home.

Later in the afternoon the members of the Home listened to informal talks by guests, and last night held an interesting party. The feature of the evening was party. The feature of the evening was the music by a phonograph that one of the men housed at the Home purchased recently through subscriptions gained by personal solicitation about the city. The Home now possesses 60 records of all sorts, from church anthems to the latest coon song, and last night the programme was enlivened by the addition of a dozen new records, the gift of Richard Williams. The old people spent a day of content and happiness.

At the Children's Hone, located at Corbett and Galnes streets, the youngsters had a red-letter day in their small calendar of events. Promptly at 2 o'clock the 51 children, ranging in age from 3 to 10 years, went in to dinner, served at an immense rectangular table in the big, welllighted dining-hall. Everything was done, as far as possible, without the usual
rules and regulations that of necessity mark the doings of this Home. The children were allowed to do greatly as they pleased and made the air ring with their cheerful little songs and glad shouts. In the evening they had a surprise with a bountiful treat of fruits, candies, nuts and cakes. Nine o'clock found them all in bed, with memories of a happy Thanksgiving Day. At the Children's Home, located at Cor-

At Mount St. Joseph's Home for the Agod, wrich is located at Sunnyaide and kept by the Shiera of Mercy, there were 166 old people who dined at an elaborate spread donated by friends of the institution. These old people, whose ages range from three score to 50 years, appeared for the gala occasion in their best clothes
and proceeded to do justice to the big dinner. Later in the afternoon an informal programme followed, when several of the old laddes made little tails, and the airs from a big phonograph made the evening a most interesting one. A feature of the day was the gifts from the Fruit
and Flower Mission, which sent out pipes
and tobacco for all the old men in the Home and boxes of candy for the old ladies.

toe Baby Home, East Thirty-seventl At the Baby Home, East Thirty-seventh and Eleworth streets, there was a season of thanksgiving in more ways than one. The proceeds from the recent "Tag Day" has placed the institution on its feet in a financial way and made many things possible that had been only vague plans before. There were 21 tots old enough to partake of the typical Thanksgiving feast, and even the smallest of them seemed to realize that a day of unusual harperings. was upon them. Many visitors called dur-ing the day and the small lads and lassles had meany gifts and treats. At the Children's Day Nursery, at

At the Children's Day Nursery, at 25 North Ninth street, a nice chicken dinner was given Wednesday, at which the 18 children, whose ages are from 2 mouths to 9 years, participated with evident enjoyment. These children belong to working mothers and are kept at the nursery all day for the nominal fee of 10 cents, and in instances where the mother cannot pay, the children are housed for nothing. Since the children spent Thanksgiving day at their various homes, the nursery held its dinner on Wednesday. Late in the aftermon, through the couriesy of a Portland firm, an ice cream spread was given the children.

The Fruit and Flower Mission, which works in conjunction with the Visiting Nurses, sent out over $6 bankets of Thanksgiving dinner to sick and needy people.

Dinner at Rescue Home.

The Florence Critication Home, at East Thirty-first and East Gilsan streets, had an unusually nice dinner for its members, prepared by the girls themselves. There are 23 girls and 18 bables at this home. On each holiday there are always a number of former members of the home who return to members of the home who return to spend the day. The girts always look on this institution as their home, and there were several guests at the Thankagiving feast this year.

The Y. W. C. A. girls open their beautiful new eafetier today in their new building at Seventh and Taylor streets. The cafetier will make a specialty of catering to business and professional girls. The hours for lunch are from 11 till 2 P. M. Last night they held their opening banquet and Grace Methodist, the English Lutheran, and the First Christian. All the Presbyterian churches of the city united in a morning thanksgiving service at the First Presbyterian Church. At both these services President Rossevelt's Thanksgiving message was read, and appropriate music and sermons given. In addition to the usual masses at the Catholic churches, high mass was sung yesterday morning, and in the sermons reference was made to the bounties which Nature's Creator has poured forth for the benefit of human-kind.

At the First Congregational union

kind.

At the First Congregational union services music was rendered by the choir of the First Christian Church. The President's Thanksgiving proclamation was read by Dr. Benjamin Young, pastor of the Tarlor-street Methodist Church, while Dr. W. H. Heppe, of the Grace Methodist Church, delivered the invocation. Rev. J. Allen Leas, of the English Lutheran Church, rend the 104th Pasim. The Thanksgiving sermon was preached by Dr. Luther R. Dyott, the pastor of the First Congregational Church, his subject being. "Gratitude for the Greater Blessings."

Commends President's Message.

The pastor said that prosperity is essential to the proper development of a great country like America, but that citizens should accept the dominant note of President Roosevelt's message, that the country should come into the that the country should come into the fullness of her National life. Dr. Dy-out referred to the tendency toward the accumulation of wealth, remarking that 125,000 families of the United States now own $22,880,000,000, while 50 per cent of the American population possess practically nothing. There should be a better chance for the average man to accumulate at least enough to make life easier for him.

erage man to accommisse at east enough to make life easier for him, said the pastor.

The speaker also called attention to moral movements which have been set on foot, and the fact that all the agenmoral movements which have been set on foot, and the fact that all the agencies for reform are here. Dr. Dyott referred to the expressed sentiment of representative men, remarking that President-elect Taft said the Government will be glad to see any man prosper who keeps the law, but that the gigantic corporations who are taking things into their own hands must expect that the Pederal authorities will call them to account.

The pastor briefly outlined America's early history, calling attention to the Colonies' demand at first for their rights, not their independence. Besides material prosperity, Dr. Dyott named educational opportunities, and spiritual and moral movements as among the greater blesings.

Rev. Harry Prair, pastor of the Forbes Presbyterian Church, delivered the Thanksgiving sermon at the Presbyterian union services. He said that Americans should be thankful, as individuals, for their gifts, physical and mental, that they as citizens form a part of this great commonwealth, and that the Nation is in such a propperous condition. He spoke as did Dr. Dyott, of the ruling hand of Providence in the history of the Nation. He said that, as Christians, his congregation should be thankful for faith, hope and love. Rev. A. J. Montgomery, pastor of the Third Presbyterian Church, presided, while Rev. Harry Leeds, of Mizpah church, delivered the prayer. Rev. Henry Marcotte announced the hymns, and Rev. Charles Hays, of the Marshall-street Church, read the President's proclamation. Dr. William H. Foulkez, pastor of the First church, announced that the offering of the morning would go for the aupport of the Men's Resort, at Fourth and Burnside streets, which is under Presbyterian supervision. Rev. George Arms, of the Vernon church, and Rev. J. A. P. McGaw also took part in the service.

The music was furnished by the First Churce quariette, consisting of Mrs. Ethel Lytle Boothe, Mrs. Imogene Hard-ing Brodie, W. A. Walters, and Dom J. Zan. The church was tastefully dec-orated with chrysanthemums, Oregon

orated with chrysanthemums, Oregon grape and paims.

In addition to the usual masses, high mass was sung at the Cathedral at 9 of-clock yesterday morning. Rev. Hugh J. M. McDevitt preached an appropriate sermon. He said citizens of America have reason to be thankful because this country represents the first successful effort to carry out the ideal of liberty. No form of government so dignifies the individual in his rights, said he, as the American Government.

At St. Mary's Catholic Church, the Albina school children attended mass in a body. Children of the parish sang high mass. The sermon was delivered by Father Thompson.

Union Service at Centenary.

That conditions are constantly growing better and that there is higher standard of public and private morals in this country was the sweeping declaration of Rev. W. T. Euster in his declaration of Rev. W. T. Euster in his Thanksgiving address yesterday morning at the union services held in Centenary Methodist Church. The text was from Ecclesiastes vii:10. "What is the cause that former days were better than these." but his subject was from the proclamation of President Rossevelt. Rev. Einster said that the Thankstyling available of the Thanksgiving proclamation of the President road like the sayings of John Wesley, and breathed the true spirit of the Christian religion.

Wesley, and breathed the true spirit of the Christian religion.

"The President," said the speaker, "warns the people in no uncertain words against the piling up of great fortunes and depending on material things, for these were the things that brought ruin of nations.

"We have reason to be chankful that we have such a man at the head of the Nation, a man who recognizes the old-fashioned religion of Jesus Christ, a religion that is not old, but is new every day. We recognize that the world is growing better every day—that today is better than yesterday, and that tomorrow will be better than today. We see it in the awakening consciousness of the country. We have a higher standard of public men. The men in public life are far in advance men in public life are far in advance morally of the men of 20 years ago. And so we are thankful for this ad-vance on this occasion; thankful that we have a President who recognizes the Christian religion. We see this advance in the reconciliation of science and religion.

At this service 18 Methodist ministers were present from all the East Side Methodist Churches. These were Rev. W. B. Hollingshead, district clains of catering to business and professional girls. The hours for lunch are from 11 till 2 P. M. Last night they held their opening banquet and scated 150. The rooms were particularly beautiful with decorations of cosmos and Oregon grape. There was an invisantly interesting programme

later, with tonses and music.

The Salvation Army, as usual, fed a great many hungry people, and sent out $8 big baskets of uncooked dinners to needy persons. At their industrial Home, $1 I'nion arenue, there were 17 men and women fed, and at the Army Rescue Home all the 12 inmates were given a big dinner.

At the County Poor Farm out on the Canyon road, 200 people were fed at a big turkey dinner. The turkeys were the preduct of the farm—and over 300 pounds were used for the feast.

Man Tries to Lead His Team Across on Ties, Causing Wreck of Work-Train.

FOREMAN JUMPS, IS HURT

Both Horses Killed and Owner Flees, Fearing Lynching-Smash-Up Occurs on O. R. & N. Near Bonneville.

Two horses were run over and killed by an O. R. & N. work-train yesterday, which was ditched, and the crew had a narrow escape from death. J. H. Mills, foreman of a surfacing gang, jumped from the train and was hurt. He was taken to The Dalles for treatment. The accident occurred about noon yesterday. The scene of the wreck was a high bridge one mile west of Bonneyille. A man was coming toward Portland with two horses, one of which had a pack of 300 pounds on its back. The driver became lost and was tyying to find his way to a wagon road, when

PAPER THIEVES AT WORK

Police Instructed to Watch for Early Morning Culprits.

Every policeman in the city, some 150 in all, will keep a special lookont hereafter for thieves who steal copies of The Oregonian from residences and business places. This form of depredation has been growing of late, until the police department has deckled to put an end to it. Chief Gritzmacher issued a special order yesterday afternoon directing the attention of the entire department to the theft of papers. The order pointed out that complaints are growing daily more numerous, particularly from the residence districts. On Sundays a score of newspaper thieves appear to be working the city. It is believed by the police that the work is that of men or boys who get the papers for the purpose of selling them on the streets.

After this, at the hour of distribution, about daybreak, officers on the various beats will be alert. Any and all persons, boys or men, seen emerging from yards will be investigated. Stealing of a maper
