EVIDENCE OF PLOT FOUND BY POLICE

Fisher Said to Have Revealed Identity of Man Who Sent Threats.

WORK ON STRONG CLEWS

District Attorney Declares There Will Be Prompt Action in Indictment and Prosecution of Murderer Finch.

That Attorney Ralph B. Fisher, who was killed in his office Saturday afternoon by Attorney James A. Finch, was probably the victim of a foul conspiracy, is the assertion of detectives working on the case. From clews discovered yesterday, they declare that others beside Finch were involved in the threats and hounding of the murdered attorney which preceded his assassination, from motives of revenge.

Three days before his death the attorney made a statement to his brother, C. H. Fisher, in which he charged that a certain lawyer was responsible for the threats and calls over the telephone and that the same person was also the author of the numerous anonymous written threats he had received through the mails.

Told Brother of Threats.

"My brother told me that he had investigated the matter of the telephone calls and the written threats and that the result of his investigation had convinced him that he knew who was responsible," said C. F. Fisher yesterday. "At the same time my brother told me that the person he suspected was a dangerous man and that he feared this enemy."

Another startling development yesterday was the line of investigation that is to be pursued by the officials. It is known that certain officials, who will be connected with the prosecution of the case, are working on the theory that Fisher was the victim of a conspiracy and are guarding carefully various pieces of evidence they have in their possession.

C. Evert Baker, senior member of the law firm of which the murdered attorney was junior member, is convinced that Mr. Fisher's death was the result of a conspiracy. Relatives of the dead man and several other attorneys who are familiar with the circumstances that preceded the tragedy also expressed the belief that the shooting was the result of a plot.

Trial Will Be Prompt.

Proceedings against the murderer will begin at once. The case will be presented to the grand jury without delay, and an indictment, according to District Attorney Cameron, will be returned immediately. Every effort will be made by Mr. Cameron to have the case tried as soon as possible.

"I think it is better for the community and for everybody concerned that the case be tried as soon as possible," said Mr. Cameron yesterday. "Finch didn't appear to be drunk, at least not noticeably so, when I talked with him just after the shooting. I don't know of anything that will delay us, and the case will be prosecuted as rapidly and as vigorously as possible. I think the case can be tried in December or January."

Already various lawyers have agreed to conduct the defense of the murderer. Those selected for that task are Attorneys C. H. Piggott, C. F. Lord and Judge W. W. Holcomb. Mr. Piggott yesterday declined to state the line of defense, though it is generally believed that efforts will be made to prove that Finch was not responsible for his acts as a result either of drugs or liquor, or else was demented.

Mrs. Finch Greatly Shocked.

Mrs. May Finch, the two weeks' bride of the assassin, is greatly distressed as the result of the tragedy, according to her brother, William Petty. She declined to be seen ystrday at her home, 228 Columbia street.

"My sister made every effort to see her husband Saturday night," Petty declared. "She finally succeeded, after repeated visits to the County Jail, but was permitted to remain with him for only half an hour."

It is likely that the Bar Association may appoint a special prosecutor to assist District Attorney Cameron in the case against the murderer. However, such action will depend entirely upon the wishes of the District Attorney, and unless he requests that the appointment be made, the Bar Association will take no part in the prosecution.

Arrangements for the funeral of the murdered barrister have been partially completed. The services will be held at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning at the Westminster Presbyterian Church, according to present arrangements. However, they may be delayed until Wednesday in order to permit out-of-town relatives to attend.

Would Have Joined Church.

The services will be held in the church at which Mr. Fisher would have become a member yesterday had he lived. He had a letter from another church and had decided to become a member of the Westminster Church yesterday. Interment will take place in Riverview Cemetery.

There was a pathetic scene at the morgue yesterday when the widow called to view the remains of her late husband. She was accompanied by several close relatives, but was permitted to remain only a brief time. During the remainder of the day she was confined to her bed, completely prostrated by her grief and the sudden shock of the tragedy.

It is said that the dead attorney carried a very small amount of insurance, though his brothers are not positive of this. He is survived by a widow, a baby boy one and one-half years old, three brothers and five sisters. The brothers are A. L. Fisher, Yoncalla, Or.; C. F. Fisher, 690 Tillamook street, Portland; G. C. Fisher, Bakersfield, Cal.; and the sisters are Mrs. Minnie Beckley, Oakland, Or.; Mrs. Henrietta Haley, Monmouth, Or.; Mrs. Ella V. Applegate, Drain, Or.; Mrs. Lena O. Jolly, Moscow, Idaho; Mrs. J. M. Pember, Oakland, Cal.

Those That Were Prosecuted.

After Mr. Fisher was made prosecutor of the Grievance Committee of the Oregon State Bar Association he conducted the prosecutions against Attorneys J. A. Finch, John F. Watts, H. C. King, Marion R. Biggs, J. H. Hitchings and others. He is said to have incurred the bitter hatred of at least certain ones of this number. Attorney King recently made a public assault upon Deputy City Attorney Frank Grant as a result of the charges that were prosecuted by the Bar Association.

The anonymous letters that were received by Mr. Fisher before his assassination will, it is said, play an important part in the court proceedings that are to follow. Their authorship, if determined, will, it is said, have considerable effect in establishing the details of the conspiracy that was hatched and of which Fisher was the victim.

As an evidence of Attorney Fisher's good will toward his slayer, John F. Logan, of the local Bar Association, said yesterday that Mr. Fisher had on several occasions expressed his satisfaction at the manner in which Finch had acted. Said Mr. Logan:

"I was the referee appointed to deal with these disbarment cases. I only heard those against King and Watts. I had Mr. Fisher appointed in this Finch case. He had told me that he was very much pleased at the way Finch had acted and felt very kindly toward him. We were commiserating each other only the other day on the number of evenings we were obliged to give up to this work. Mr. Fisher then said that he was much gratified that Finch had been manful enough to confess and plead guilty, and that he was going to do what he could for the man. Mr. Fisher had also spoken to me regarding the anonymous letters. He said he didn't care about the letters, what he wanted to find out was who was sending them."

Henry Von Groenewald, superintendent of the Portland Pinkerton Detective Agency, declares that the statement of Finch in an interview published yesterday, that he (Von Groenewald) had offered Finch $500 to induce a prisoner to return stolen goods, is absolutely false.

WIDOW AND CHILD OF MURDERED ATTORNEY

Woman Places Foundling on Porch of Clyde Robertson.

Clyde Robertson, of 244 Cook avenue, Upper Albina, reported to the police yesterday afternoon that an unknown woman had abandoned an infant but a few hours old on his doorstep. The woman, who is described as of medium build and dressed in black, hurried to the porch of the Robertson home, hastily deposited the child wrapped in woolen cloth, and hastened away before any one could intercept her. The bundle containing the little one was taken into the house by Mr. Robertson, who immediately informed the police.

The foundling was turned over to the police and Captain Bailey had it conveyed to the Baby Home. Acting Captain of Detectives and Inspector of Police B. F. Smith is at work on the case, and hopes to find the parents of the deserted babe.

Amusements

What the Press Agents Say.

"On Parole," at Heilig Tonight.

This evening at the Heilig Theater, Fourteenth and Washington streets, the attraction will be the clever players, Willard Mack and Miss Maude Leone, supported by an excellent company in Henry Miller's beautiful military comedy drama, "On Parole." A decidedly interesting story told in a most excellent manner.

"Sis Hopkins," at the Baker.

"Sis Hopkins," which in the ten seasons it has been before the public has become one of the most popular plays on the stage, is at the Baker Theater all this week, with the original creator of the role, Miss Rose Melville, still playing Sis. Bargain matinee Wednesday.

"Glittering Gloria," at Bungalow.

"Glittering Gloria" is the Baker Stock Company's bill this week and it is one of the brightest, snappiest comedies ever presented in this city. Full of life and action, and teeming over with clean, wholesome fun, it is bound to crowd the popular Bungalow all this week.

"A Millionaire Tramp," at the Star.

Remembrance of former pleasant hours spent under its charm made a welcome for Elmer Walters' "A Millionaire Tramp" at the Star Theater last night a foregone conclusion. It is one of the most impressive, beautiful and artistic dramas that the stage affords.

AT THE VAUDEVILLE THEATERS.

Great Bill at Orpheum.

The new bill at the Orpheum opens with today's matinee. The feature is Eva Taylor and her players in "Chums." Among the other attractions will be found the Four Franklins; Grace Emmett; Amy Stanley and her Picks; Leo Donnelly; Joe La Fleur; Alexis and Schall; the orchestra and the motion pictures.

Pantages' Shows Town Talk.

Variety is the essence of vaudeville. Here's the classification of the big bill opening at Pantages this afternoon: Great acrobatic act, sketch pair of jugglers, impersonator, musical turn, picture ballad and biograph. Pantages' great shows are becoming the town talk.

Salome at the Grand.

For this week, commencing this afternoon, the Grand will have as its headliner a Salome dancer, Mlle. Joyce Grey, who comes from the Alhambra Theater, Paris. This will be the first Salome dancer that has appeared here in vaudeville. Magnificent scenery and sumptuous costumes are used in this act.

FRIARS.

Sichel has them.

The Friars. Here's to the Friars! Here's to them all!

FINCH'S RECORD BAD

Had Reputation at Albany of Being Vindictive.

RELENTLESS TO ENEMIES

In Politics He Was Recognized as Genius, but Activity in This Line Won Him but Little Personal Reward.

ALBANY, Or., Nov. 29.—(Special.)—No one thing has produced such a sensation in this city in many years as the killing of Ralph B. Fisher by James A. Finch. Everybody in Albany knows "Jim" Finch and nothing else has been discussed here since the killing. Agencies of Portland papers have been unable to supply the demand for copies.

Finch's enemies—there are many of them in Albany—assert that it is no surprise that he has ended his meteoric career this way. But to his friends it is a distinct shock to find him in the seat of a murderer.

Murderer Is Vindictive.

There is probably no more vindictive man in the world than Finch. He pursued his enemies relentlessly. Most of his enmities were incurred in politics, and he not only waged an unending political warfare, but carried the fight into business and even social relations. Finch was brilliant in politics; he was a genius in planning a campaign to win a nomination for a friend or to defeat an enemy, and in both of these fields of endeavor he was highly successful. But his vindictiveness made him so many bitter enemies that his political activity won him no personal rewards. His political methods were not always above criticism, it is said, and this fact did not aid his reputation. But in spite of his personal standing, Finch's great ability as a manipulator made him a man of power in the politics of Linn County for many years.

Finch's Previous Gun Plays.

Since the killing of Fisher, different stories of "gun-plays" in which Finch figured here are being discussed on the streets of Albany. None of them were regarded as serious at the time, however, though it is averred he started into a law office here one night in a political campaign, with a gun in his hand, to shoot a man, and was stopped at the very door of the office by friends, who overpowered him in a struggle and took the weapon away from him.

With all his hatred for his enemies and with all his activity in trying to overthrow them, Finch never showed a disposition to do them bodily injury when planning their defeat. But on some occasions, when drinking heavily, he would imagine himself unjustly persecuted and would cry bitterly for hours. Then it was, his friends say, when he was really dangerous. He drank a great deal here, but these "tearful drunks" came only at rare intervals, and men kept away from him then. He would work himself up to a frenzy brooding over imagined wrongs.

Finch was temperamentally "high-strung" and capable of a great deal of feeling. But he was not regarded as dangerous here, though he sometimes made threats when in one of his brooding drinking spells.

Finch always carried a gun when he lived in Albany, and made no secret of it. He often remarked, though, that he did it merely for protection. He realized that he had scores of bitter enemies and said he might need it some time. But his dominant idea in those conversations always appeared to be self-defense rather than murder.

Good Shot With Any Weapon.

Finch was also a good shot with any kind of a weapon. He was a member of the local company of the Oregon National Guard for years. He was one of the best shots with a rifle in the company, notwithstanding it was necessary for him to wear eye-glasses when shooting, and he participated successfully in a number of rifle tournaments. When the Spanish-American War broke out, Finch was a sergeant in the local company and enlisted in the Second Oregon for service in the war, but was rejected on account of his defective sight. When Company G, Fourth Infantry, was organized here after the war, Finch again enlisted and was appointed second corporal, but refused the stripes and always drilled as a private. He was active in the civil government of the company, however, and managed many military balls and other entertainments given by the company.

JAIL WALLS BULGE

County Prison Is Filled With Murderers.

TWELVE NOW IN CUSTODY

Round Dozen Charged With Taking Human Life Take Advantage of Law's Delay to Cheat Gallows.

The incarceration of James A. Finch in a cell at the Multnomah County Jail swells the number of men now inmates of that institution and who are also charged with murder in various degrees to 12. Jailer "Dad" Hunter is much relieved because the responsibility for their custody, which until very recently rested on his shoulders alone, is now shared by another. The appointment of Night Jailer Robert Phillips two weeks ago has lifted a great load off the shoulders of Hunter, for the responsibility of maintaining a strict watch over such a number of men charged with capital crimes was almost too much for even a man of his physique. In addition to Finch, Matt and John Johnson, father and son; Caspar Blickensdorffer, Antonio Ptarso, Harry Daly, Jack La Rose, Young Gee, Lum Woon, Edward Hugh Martin, Carl Logsden and William Barkley, the latter two being Federal prisoners, are guests of the county institution on murder charges.

Of the above-named prisoners, the case of Caspar Blickendorffer is looked upon as most pathetic. The old man is a bachelor and occupied a woodcutters' shack with his bosom friend, Charles Hegburn, near Lents. One night last September Blickendorffer quarreled with Hegburn over a set of harness and during the altercation struck his friend over the head with a piece of wood, killing him instantly. Both men had been drinking, and Blickensdorffer had no realization of his act until he recovered from the effects of the liquor in the County Jail the next day. Since then his expressions of regret at his hasty action have been so pitiful that the county authorities sympathize with him in his plight.

Johnson Kills Saloon Man.

The Johnsons, father and son, are facing a charge of murdering Fred Hatch, formerly a saloonkeeper at Twenty-first and Sherlock streets, on the night of September 10. Matt Johnson, the elder, had been playing cards in the saloon and became involved in a dispute with one of the patrons of the place. Hatch took issue with him on the subject, and during the quarrel both men became vituperative. Matt Johnson ordered his son, John Johnson, who was with him at the time, to go to his home and bring his revolver. The younger Johnson obeyed his parent, and, on handing the weapon over, witnessed his father shoot the saloonman down in cold blood. Both Johnsons are charged with murder in the first degree, the son being held as much to blame as the parent, for he aided and abetted the murder.

Young Gee and Lum Woon, Chinese, are held on a charge of murder in the first degree, growing out of the killing of Lee Dai Huey, a wealthy Chinese merchant, who was murdered on the porch of his home at Fourth and Ash streets last Summer. The shooting grew out of highbinder plots.

Jack La Rose, the gaspipe thug, who was convicted of murder in the third degree on a compromise verdict, is awaiting the expiration of the time allowed for application for a new trial. He stands convicted of having murdered Hyman Neuman, a pawnbroker on North Third street. La Rose was arrested after having assaulted a Chinese tailor a few days after the Neuman murder, and the circumstances surrounding both assaults seemed to indicate that the same man perpetrated both. La Rose maintains that he is innocent of the Neuman affair, and his attorneys are now preparing to appeal the case.

Martin Awaits Appeal.

The revolting murder of Nathan Wolff on May 1, and the subsequent arrest of Edward Hugh Martin as the murderer has been exploited fully during the recent trial of the accused. Martin is awaiting the action of his attorneys, who have yet a few days in which to file an appeal in the event that such action is decided upon. He, like La Rose, was convicted of manslaughter, and for a time seemed resigned to his fate. Martin is a victim of the morphine habit and his conviction was due to a combination of circumstantial evidence, together with his inability to explain satisfactorily his actions on the night of the murder.

Tony Ptarsso, a young Italian laborer, is charged with murder in the first degree for having shot and killed an elderly Italian during a quarrel following the celebration of a wedding anniversary on the Patton road. According to the story related to the police, Ptarsso refused to go home with the man who later proved his victim, and in a quarrel which ensued he pulled a revolver and shot the man in the stomach, resulting in his death a few hours later. Ptarsso's trial has been set for December 10, and it is understood that he will plead self-defense.

Daly Waits for Trial.

Harry Daly, who killed Harry Kenny, his former employer, on the night of November 15, has not yet been brought to trial. Daly, who is a cripple, had been discharged from the employ of Kenny, and on the night in question visited the resort at Sixth and Ankeny streets and engaged in a quarrel with the proprietor. Kenny refused to take him back into his employ, and refused to have any more to do with him. At this Daly became angered and, pulling out a revolver, threatened to shoot Kenny, who dared him to do so. Daly finally pulled the trigger, and the bullet penetrated Kenny's left shoulder, and, ranging downward, caused internal hemorrhages which resulted in the death of the saloonman five hours later.

James A. Finch, who is charged with the cowardly murder of Attorney Ralph B. Fisher Saturday, spent his first night in the County Jail somewhat uncomfortably; at least such was his appearance when seen yesterday morning. He appeared tired and his features were wan and drawn, as though his rest had been disturbed. When seen he was playing cards with other prisoners, and seemed cheerful, although he absolutely refused to discuss his case.

The latest addition to murderers' row was visited yesterday morning by his wife, a bride of a week ago, but even to her he maintained that he knew nothing of Saturday afternoon's affair. The other two murderers, William Barkley and Carl Logsden, are Federal prisoners charged with murders committed on Government reservations. The former is charged with the brutal murder of an Indian on the Siletz reservation, whose body he cut to pieces. Logsden killed a companion in a dispute over a claim.

Leaves Wife and Child to Perish.

PENDLETON, Or., Nov. 29.—(Special.)—Word reached this city yesterday of the suicide in the northern part of Grant County, Monday, of Bert Winkley. He was 22 years old and leaves a widow and a baby, but 2 days old at the time of the suicide. Winkley was out of work.

PRUETT TALKS TO PILOTS

DECLARES LAWS TO ENFORCE SAFETY ARE NEEDED.

President of National Association Also Presents Benefits to Be Derived From Organization.

Captain J. H. Pruett, president of the National Harbor, American Association Masters, Mates and Pilots, addressed a meeting of members of Willamette Harbor No. 22 and local steamboat men at Oddfellows Temple yesterday afternoon. The Columbia River Pilots Association was largely represented and there was a number of members of Harbors 15 (San Francisco) and 16 (Seattle) in attendance. The meeting was called to order at 2:30 o'clock.

Captain Pruett's remarks were along the line of fraternalism among seafaring men and of the results and objects attained by the Association. He urged all licensed officers of steamers to become members of the lodge. He also referred to the need of new legislation along all lines of maritime law, and expressed the belief that the next session of Congress would so amend the existing laws that life would be much safer. Captain Pruett is urging the adoption of new lifesaving apparatus and the better equipping of boats.

In the course of his remarks, the National President, took up several sections of the law and quoted from decisions. He outlined the powers of the master and the respective rights of master and crew and owners.

Captain Pruett will leave Portland Wednesday for San Francisco. He visited Astoria Saturday.

Recipe for Bloating and Indigestion

Are you ever "blue"? As a rule people with stomach disorders always are. If before breakfast, dinner and supper you do not feel a hearty-hungry feeling and longing for food of almost any kind, if you feel finicky and want something to eat but can't say what, then you are most likely bordering on chronic dyspepsia.

If you feel bloated, have heartburn, sour stomach, bad breath, and feel languid, dull or nervous and irritable, then you surely have need for the following simple recipe, which it is claimed has cured many famous people. The Battle Creek specialist who first announced its wonderful efficacy says: "I have prescribed it for several years with the utmost success. Its power over stomach disorders is now well known to many physicians, and probably lies in the peculiar blending properties of concentrated essences. Take a half-pint bottle and get two ounces of syrup of Ginger and two ounces of essence of Pepsin mixed together. Then get that rare but most valuable concentration known as essence of Cardiol, which is packed in one-ounce packages only. Take this and mix all together. Then take one or two teaspoonfuls after each meal. To excite appetite, take a spoonful before eating. May be taken freely by adults and children with weak stomachs."
