Clemenceau Accuses Boss of Seeking Vengeance—Asserts Divorced With Her Lover.

PARIS, Nov. 2.—The Princess de Sagan, who was Miss Anna Gould, of New York, had her findings in court today in the hearing of the case brought by her former husband, Count Boni de Castellane.

Without assaying the impassioned oratorical role played by M. Bonnet last week, M. Clemenceau coolly and calmly, but with cutting irony and keen ridicule, met the accusations brought against the Princess de Sagan.

Neither Prince de Sagan nor the Count was present in court.

M. Clemenceau emphasized the fact that the courts of France always had decided that a second marriage did not affect the rights of parents with regard to their children, even in cases where the second marriage was with the alleged accomplice in adultery.

M. Clemenceau then summed up the contents of the Princess as follows:

Attacks Count's Motives. The Count had formally declared that he would withdraw the suit if the Princess separated from her husband.

M. Clemenceau then denied that De Sagan, since his present husband had interfered with the education of the children.

De Sagan's Signature Forged. Continuing, M. Clemenceau announced that the Princess formally joined with her husband in the allegations against the Count numbered from 4 to 21 inclusive.

Denies Petroleum Report. WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—"Alleged Oil Prospect in Nevada" is the title of the preliminary report issued today by the United States Geological Survey.

Wife's Fortune Squandered. Counsel for the Princess contended that the testimony of the chauffeur discharged from the service of De Sagan and the evidence of private detectives was utterly unworthy of credence.

These terms were $20,000 in cash and an income of $3,000 a year, the cash to be increased when the estate of his deceased er wife was out of the hands of the trustees, she to take over all the debts then pending.

M. Clemenceau then railed at the Count for reproaching De Sagan with having two mistresses.

Travels in Italy With Prince. M. Clemenceau took up one by one the accusations made against the Princess by the Count regarding her travels in Italy with De Sagan before their marriage.
