CASES ARE HURRIED

Judge Wolvorton Expedites Cases in U. S. Court.

KOHAGAN IS NOT GUILTY

Jury Returns Verdict While Men Are Being Selected to Try Next Case. J. H. Mead Accused of Perjury in Timber Claim Case.

Judge Charles F. Wolvorton, of the United States Circuit Court, is determined to grind the grist of his criminal docket rapidly, and as soon as one case is finished, a jury is impaneled at once and another trial is begun. Yesterday afternoon, shortly after the noon recess, Judge Wolvorton instructed the jury that heard the evidence against Louis Kohagan, charged with perjury, and as soon as it had retired for its deliberation, he ordered the trial of J. H. Mead, charged with a similar offense, only in a different part of the state, to begin. While the attorneys were selecting the jury, word was sent to Judge Wolvorton that the Kohagan jury had reached a verdict. Without any delay, his honor ordered the jury to come in, and while one set of men was being selected to try a case, the other 12 men were reading a verdict of not guilty in favor of Kohagan. Kohagan was charged with having sworn falsely when he took up a timber claim on which a man named Jones had filed a homestead. Kohagan was discharged.

The charge against Mead is similar to that on which James H. Parker, the Baker City banker, was tried and convicted earlier in the week. Mead is charged with filing a timber claim application and making false oath to the non-mineral affidavit. On the lands on which Mead filed his timber claim were a number of mines that had been in operation for several years. The placer mines were owned by E. Heberstedt and several others. Heberstedt began working his placer claims in 1888 and in his opening statement to the jury, Assistant United States Attorney Wallace H. Evans said that mining claims had been filed on the grounds as far back as 1860. Mayor A. C. Johns, who defended Parker, is appearing for Mead. The jury that was selected to try the case is as follows: W. H. Adamson, S. M. Stiers, J. A. Clemons, J. N. Laws, George Givens, J. A. Hewett, A. N. Cutting, E. S. Doyle, George Whitted, J. M. Brown, W. J. Rodgers and S. P. Plymale. The case comes from Baker County.

FINE DISPLAY OF APPLES

PRODUCT OF MOSIER SHOWN IN STORE WINDOW.

Grown on Ranch of George Chamberlain Six Miles From Hood River.

An unusually attractive exhibit of Oregon apples was installed yesterday in the Washington-street show window of the Goddard-Kelly store, at Sixth and Washington streets. The apples were grown by George Chamberlain on his ranch at Mosier, six miles from Hood River. The exhibit is confined entirely to two varieties—Spitzenbergs and Yellow Newtowns—and was arranged by A. P. Bateham, president of the Mosier Commercial Club. Last night it commanded the admiration of hundreds. The exhibition will not be removed until the first of the week. While the exhibit is not large, either in number of boxes shown or number of varieties embraced, it is one of the most tasteful displays ever made of Oregon fruit in this city. The apples are a fair sample of what is being produced from nonirrigated lands at Mosier. In quality and uniformity of size and color the fruit equals, if it does not surpass the product of irrigated orchards in any of Oregon's favored horticultural districts. Although Mr. Chamberlain this year marketed only 60 boxes from his orchard, the crop was remarkable by reason of the enormous size, richness of color and excellence of quality of every apple. There was only one 4 1/2-lb. box in the lot, the others ranging from 5 1/2 to 12 1/2 lbs. Classified, the 620 boxes were distributed as follows: Thirty boxes of 5 1/2; 150 of 6 1/2; 126 of 7 1/2; 152 of 8 1/2; 86 of 8 3/4; 48 of 9 1/2; 48 of 10 1/2; 14 of 11 1/2; 13 of 12 1/2 and one single 4 1/2-lb. box.

Mr. Chamberlain yesterday presented The Oregonian staff with a box of his peerless Spitzenbergs. By actual count the box contained 45 apples. They were all of the same size, richly colored and absolutely free from all blemish. The quality of the fruit fully sustained the reputation of Mosier as a section that belongs in the first rank of the apple-growing districts of the world.

Frank C. Deltman, a Hood River apple-grower, yesterday presented The Oregonian editorial department with a box of delicious Jonathan apples. The mere fact that the fruit was the Oregon product and grown in the Hood River Valley suffices in describing the peerless quality of the apples. Soldiers of Berlin recently built a penton bridge across the River Spree in 40 minutes.
