CHURCH LEADER WARMLY GREETED

Bishop Charles W. Smith Given Cordial Reception by Local Methodists.

MADE TO FEEL "AT HOME"

New Prelate Is Tendered Banquet by Distinguished Gathering of Prominent Citizens-All Pledge Support and Friendship.

Charles W. Smith, D.D., III. D., Bishop of Oregon, was tendered a brilliant reeption and banquet at Grace Methodist Episcopal Church Tuesday night which must have made him feel entirely "at home." It was given under the auspices of the Ladies' Am Society of Grace Church and men of prominence welcomed the new resident bishop to Portland and Oregon in words of the warmest and most cordial kind. At the conclusion of their remarks, sind. At the conclusion of their remarks, the venerable churchman responded in glowing terms, paying high tribute to the ministry and the latty and pledging his support to the Methodism of the Northwest. He pleaded for a united and loyal church, having for its one great object the glorifying of God and the upbuilding of His Kingdom in this great and new country.

A large and representative gathering of Methodists greeted the Bishop and his daughter Miss Smith, showing a deep interest in the arrival of the newly-elected resident general superintendent and his daughter, who are to make their Episcopal home in Portland. The reception was held in the aughterium from 6.20 to 7.50 to 7.5 held in the auditorium from 6:30 to 7:30 o'clock, after which the banquet was held in the pariors downstairs.

Mayor Lane Speaks.

A. F. Flegel, as toasimaster, introduced the speakers. Mayor Lane was obliged to leave early for official duties, and made his speech of welcome to Bishop Smith, before the banquet. He said that he was glad to welcome such a distinguished churchman, and said that Portland is a place where people love the law and obey it, "notwithstanding the little affair at the East Side Bank." (Laughter.) It is, he said, one of the best governed cities in America.

After the banquet, Mr. Flegel said that he believed Mayor Lane "has done more

"I wish the tonstmaster would have covered up some of my sins," said Dr. C. E. Cline, when he arose to speak in behalf of the ministerial association, and there was uprogrous laughter "You seem to have plenty," retorted Mr. Flegel.

Pays Tribute to Flinn.

Dr. Cline then eulogized the Methodist ministers of the West, Dr. Cline paid glowing iributes to "Father" John Film and T. F. Royal, the oldest living ploneer preachers, Dr. Cline assured Bishop Smith that "There are no Methodist churches in cold storage or Methodist churches in cold storage or Methodist ministers in pickle" in Oregon, and wel-comed the prelate in the name of the Ministers' Association.

Edgar B. Piper, managing editor of The Oregonian, was then introduced. He said he had found himself puzzled to know whether he was called upon as a Metho-dist or a journalist. He said he had al-ways greatly admired the Methodist church. The Methodist songs and sermons, he said, always appealed strongly to him. He lauded the bishops, saying they have the full faith and confidence of the whole public, as well as the loyal support of their whole church. "Bishops come and go," he said, "but we are never tired of their coming and of their work. He said he was surprised that, as Dr. Smith was an editor for years, the shurch was so long in recognizing his unless it was because of his natural timidity, such as all news-

Mr. Flegel then read a telegram of regret from H. H. Marvin, who was to have spoken in behalf of Washington Methodism. Rev. B. F. Brooks, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church at Vancouver, spoke for Dr. Marvin. He sald that Washington Methodism, "while a child of old Oregon, has grown to be larger than the mother."

larger than the mother."
Dr. Luther R. Dyott spoke on behalf of the Portland Ministerial Association. He declared that the churches of the city are united in all essential points, and are in hearty sympathy with each other. He warmly welcomed Bishop Smith, and said the Bishop would be of great service for good in Portland, and that all the min-isters here will help the bishop all they can.

The chairman then read a letter from Bishop Edwin H. Hughes, of San Francisco, expressing regret at his inability to be present. He extended his welcome and cordial friendship to Bishop Smith.

Laymen Pay Tribute.

Mr. Flegel then welcomed Bishop Smith on behalf of the Men's Methodist Social Union, pledging him the loyal support of the laymen of the church. In his of the laymen of the church. Bishop Smith then gave a brief outline of his long years of service, and then said that, after hearing all the speeches, he really did not see what need there is for him here. "However," he said, "it may be just possible that there has been may be just possible that there has been some exaggeration about some of these things." (Laughter.) He related his experience as a banker in Pitisburg, his former home, and said it taught him to have much sympathy for business men.

"I have also been a mayor," said he, "I was burgess of a borough that was supplied in Pitishurg and for a whole organized in Pittsburg, and for a whole year, with great success. In fact, I was like the boy who said his father was like the boy who said his rather was elected Governor with but little opposition and went out without any. (Laughter.) Now, I rejoice in the fraternal feeting of the age. When we speak of the Congregational Church, we mean the Congregational Church of God, the Presbyterian Church of God, and the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, of God. (Laughter)."

During the evening music was furnished by Professor W. M. Wilder's harp and mandolin quartet, and solos were sung by Miss Alice Juston and George H. Street. The banquet was served in a delightful manner by the Ladies' Aid Society of Grace Church

Bishop Smith's Career Typifles Best in American Citizenship for He's Militant Methodist.

A TALL spare, silver-gray man, sprightly of foot and of keen and inent facial expression, came down stairs in answer to my call last evening and l met for the first time Bishop Charles W Smith, of the militant Methodist Episco pal Church and a man worth knowing Aside from the fact that he occupies one of the most exalted clerical positions i the country, Bishop Smith is well worth meeting in that his career is full of that interest in which every right-minded American citizen feels in a man who has achieved measurable success in his chosen calling. calling.

Bishop Smith's career is typical of the best in our citizenship. He has preached the Gospel according to the various apostles and his own conscionce for 50 years and is still a right vallant champion of Methodism and a newly fledged member of the episcopacy. It happened away back in 1858 that he, as a lad of 18, began his career as a preacher. In the began his career as a preacher. In the Spring fellowing he was regularly or-dained in the Methodist Church and for 25 years, until 1884, he served continuously as pastor and presiding elder in the Pitts-burg conference. During the Civil War he served with Grant before Petersburg, not in the rank and file of the Army, but not in the rank and file of the Army, but as a member of the Christian Sanitary Commission, and no one is here to gainsay that his work was not as good as though he had carried a musket on his shoulder. In 1884 he assumed the editor-ship of the Christian Advocate, in which capacity he continued until last May, when, at the general conference of the Methodist Church, he was elected hishop, the goal of every Methodist preacher's the Portland district, which includes the Old Oregon country, Alaska, Hawaii and goodness knows what else. He arrived in the city yesterday and is now busily Clerk, J. C. Brooker; Attorney, F. J. engaged in getting his bearings. Six years ago he made a tour of the Coast and was especially taken with Portland and Oregon and the inference is that when it came to assigning the cream of the fields of endeavor, Bishop Smith asked for Portland. He frankly admitted last night that he knew little of the needs and the conditions of his territory, but that he proposed to begin a systematic study of that same at once.

"I am here to do everything in my power to co-operate with the ministry of power to co-operate with the ministry of the Methodist Church in the Northwest and to that end I'm going to leave noth-ing undone to familiarize myself with the ing undone to familiarize myself with the work of the church in this splendid country." Something was said about Christian Science and the distinguished churchman immediately launched forth in a mild denunciation of that creed. "Christian Science is a baid fanaticism. It is a fad, the growth of which amazes the right-thinking person, but which is destined to run its course very soon. It is neither Christian nor scientific. It is, as I have said, a passing fad. I'm suras I have said, a passing fad. Pm surprised that it has made such headway among apparently intellectual people."
