

FISHERIES ADAPT RESOLUTIONS

Meeting of Representative Salmon Men Agrees on Measures Benefiting Industry.

LONGER CLOSED SEASON

Would Extend Spring Protection From March 1 to May 1.

Closed Sunday May 1 to August 20.

Resolutions proposing that the Spring closed season for salmon fishing extend from March 1 to May 1; that there be a closed Sunday from May 1 to August 20 and that the Summer closed season extend from August 20 to September 10, were adopted yesterday at a conference of men associated with the fishing industry on the Columbia River.

The resolutions, which, it was explained, were intended merely as an expression of the sense of the meeting, were thanked by Governor Mead and the members of the Fisheries Commission for the interest they were taking in seeking to adjust satisfactorily the fishing industry on the Columbia River and preserve this important industry.

The adoption of these resolutions was the result of the conference which was held at the Cornelia Hotel between a sub-committee of the State Fisheries Commission of the state of Washington, which has in hand the matter of Columbia River fishing, and many men residing in this state and engaged in the fishing business in the river.

Neither Chairman Burke nor his associates last night would comment on the recommendations that were made at the Seattle meeting, but the sentiment at yesterday's convention was decisively in favor of legislation that will give the industry the protection it demands.

There was one thing on which all of the men attending the conference were agreed and that was the need of remedial legislation, laws that will protect fish from being taken in such a manner as to prevent their reproduction.

Let Small Fish Escape.

Hans Kankkonen, representing the fishermen, advised the need of regulating both the dimensions of the gill and sein nets, which, he said, should be limited to 20 feet long, while the mesh should be such as would allow a fish weighing nine pounds or less to escape. This measure, he based on the theory that the smaller fish, if allowed to escape from the nets, returned to the river in a more mature condition. This theory was attacked vigorously by H. A. Webster, ex-Deputy Fish Warden in this state, who declared that the release of these small fish would tend to replenish the river for the reason, he said, that like the adult fish, the smaller ones develop spawning propensities and die in the same manner as the fully developed salmon.

When asked if he favored a Sunday closed season, Mr. Kankkonen was frank enough to admit that such a measure was allowed above tide water, the fishermen would not advocate a weekly closed law.

William Tallant, representing the seiners, said he would prohibit fishing at the mouth of the river, and, perhaps, enact a Sunday closed law. He maintained that to limit the size of the mesh would practically put the seiners and trap-men out of business.

F. M. Warren insisted that if the fish are to be protected, the season must be shortened. He also favored prohibiting bar fishing for the reason that it served to prevent the entrance of a great many salmon into the river.

George Crandall wanted a closed season from March 1 to May 1, no fishing on the bar and a Sunday closed law. The proposal that the date of the mesh be reduced, he asserted, would put all fishermen out of business with the exception of a few gillnetters at Astoria.

Superintendent O'Malley Talks.

Henry O'Malley, superintendent of the United States Bureau of Fisheries for Oregon, was asked for suggestions, and replied by reading a letter that had been written by Secretary Strauss, when in charge of the Department of Commerce and Labor, to Senator Fulton, embodying the views of the Bureau of Fisheries respecting fishing conditions in the Columbia River. The recommendations contained in that letter were four in number, as follows: Restriction of limit of apparatus employed in a given section; an adequate weekly closed season covering possibly two days at first, but reduced later in circumstances warrant it; an annual closed season, preferably at the beginning of the salmon run; joint arrangements between states so that protective measures might be harmonious.

Mr. O'Malley considered that the Spring closed season should extend to May 15 and that there should be a Fall closed season extending from August 10 to September 15. He pointed out the need for a closed season in August, that the late run of salmon might be protected, by referring to the fact that the take of salmon eggs at the hatcheries this year was on an average about one-half of that in years when there was an August closed season.

ington, announced that he adhered to the same ideas he recommended two years ago, which included a closed season from March 1 to May 1 and a Sunday closed season, which he believed would give the fish the necessary protection.

Various Measures Proposed.

Identical concurrent legislation with Washington for extension of the closed season, operation licenses and penalties for closed season, to extend from January 1 to May 15.

Following recommendations, suggested the committee, can be made effective without the concurrence of any other state:

The Clackamas River is pronounced to be a practically perfect hatchery stream. It should be closed to every sort of commercial fishing at all seasons; neither pains nor expense should be spared to promote intelligent and practical hatcheries of the Oregonian must be provided against the immense slaughter of young salmon by their diversion into irrigating ditches, the steel-trout should be kept out of all hatchery streams.

Following the reading of the committee's report, Mr. Rosenberg sought to discredit its recommendations by inquiring if the chairman of the committee, R. W. Montague, was not attorney for the fisherman. This inquiry was promptly and emphatically answered by Mr. Seufert and Mr. Warren, who replied that such was not the case.

Many Prominent Men Present.

The greater part of the forenoon session was taken up in an address by H. M. Lornissen, of Astoria, who argued that the one essential thing to do in the way of protecting salmon in the Columbia was to prohibit fishing above tide water.

Chairman Burke and his associates on the committee, Messrs. Peterson and Eide, left last night for Seattle. They were accompanied by several prominent fishermen of the two states who attended yesterday's conference in this city.

Aside from the three members of the committee, the following present the following prominent fishermen of the two states: John Riseland, Fish Commissioner of the state of Washington; H. C. McAllister, Master Fish Warden, of this state; Henry O'Malley, superintendent of the United States Bureau of Fisheries for Oregon; J. G. Mesler, of Medford; H. S. McGowan, of McGowan; William Tallant, of Astoria; Hans Kankkonen, manager Union Fishermen's Co-operative Packing Association, of Astoria; H. M. Lornissen, secretary Columbia River Fishermen's Union, and Ed Rosenberg, of Astoria; F. A. Seufert, of The Dalles; F. M. Warren, of this city; William Starry, R. S. Farrell, Representative-elect from this county; George Crandall, John M. Crawford, Superintendent of Hatcheries for Washington; John Seufert, of Clatsop; John Nassa, of Cathlamet.

WAS A PIONEER OF 1852

Mrs. Nancy Byrne, Old-Time Resident of Salem, Dead at Tacoma.

Mrs. Nancy J. Byrne, widow of Lewis Byrne, of Salem, died very suddenly of heart failure at her home in Tacoma, Wash., Thursday evening, December 10, at the age of 85 years.

Mrs. Byrne was one of the early pioneers of Oregon, crossing the plains with her father, John J. Byrne and sister Lizzie, in 1852, going to Oregon City. In 1854 Mrs. Byrne was married to Lewis Byrne, who engaged in business. They removed to California, then returning to Oregon, located in Salem, where Mr. Byrne was a prosperous and prominent business man until his death in 1884.

Mr. Byrne and three daughters are buried in the Catholic Cemetery at Salem. The daughters and one son survive: Mrs. J. E. Young, Mrs. J. M. Harris, Charles Byrne, Misses Agnes, Alice and May Byrne. Four sisters, Mrs. Emma C. Martin, Mrs. M. M. Harris, Mrs. D. Henderson, of Galva, Ill., Mrs. Stanley Baldwin, of Jacksonville, Ill., and Mrs. Mary E. Oliver, of Victoria, B. C., are surviving. There are six grandchildren and one great-grandson, Charles McGinn and family, of Portland, and Mrs. John Savage, of Salem, are relatives of the family. Mrs. Byrne was born in Jacksonville, Ill., and was 85 years old at the time of her death. Her funeral was held in Tacoma from Rev. Leo's Cathedral, Wednesday, December 9. The remains were laid to rest beside her daughter, Mrs. R. H. Forsythe, in Tacoma Cemetery.

Pioneer Lumberman Dead.

Word was received from Stella, Wash., yesterday, announcing the death of William Gorman of that place. Mr. Gorman was a well-known lumberman and a member of the firm of Gorman & Lawson, who were logging at Ridgefield in Clark County, Wash. Mr. Gorman has been engaged in lumbering in the Columbia River region for more than 20 years. He came to Oregon about 25 years ago from Williamsport, Pa. A brother, Mr. Gorman, of Cathlamet, Wash., survives him. The funeral will be held at Westport, Or., tomorrow afternoon.

CONCRETE BRIDGE FOUND DEFECTIVE

Executive Board Votes to Reject East Twenty-eighth-Street Structure.

FAULT IN SPECIFICATIONS

Committee of Experts Submits Report Condemning Construction, Which Is Adopted—Matter May Be Carried to Courts.

Three experts engaged to investigate and report on the condition of the reinforced concrete bridge across Sullivan Gulch, on East Twenty-eighth street, recommended to the Executive Board yesterday afternoon that the structure be not accepted.

The report was adopted, together with a report of the committee on bridges, asking Mayor Linn to appoint three of the other members of the Board to meet with the committee and compile a full detailed report of the whole proceedings.

City Engineer Taylor arose at the conclusion of the reading of the report of the special committee of experts, who were paid $500 of city funds for their work, and said that since the report was accessible, he would like to see it a little later and added, "It will probably be expected, too." He said that all his desire is to secure good bridge and it is known that he believes the bridge is a good one, notwithstanding the adverse report. He also expressed a preference of opinion between two sets of experts.

The bridge was built by the Northwest Bridge Company, of Portland, which was represented yesterday by J. W. Taylor, Master Fish Warden, of this state; Henry O'Malley, superintendent of the United States Bureau of Fisheries for Oregon; J. G. Mesler, of Medford; H. S. McGowan, of McGowan; William Tallant, of Astoria; Hans Kankkonen, manager Union Fishermen's Co-operative Packing Association, of Astoria; H. M. Lornissen, secretary Columbia River Fishermen's Union, and Ed Rosenberg, of Astoria; F. A. Seufert, of The Dalles; F. M. Warren, of this city; William Starry, R. S. Farrell, Representative-elect from this county; George Crandall, John M. Crawford, Superintendent of Hatcheries for Washington; John Seufert, of Clatsop; John Nassa, of Cathlamet.

Blunkall in financial difficulty. And the very trousers of which he has been so careful are to be attached.

Blunkall, be it known, is no less distinguished an individual than portrayer of leading characters in Lyric melodrama and every morning. No man could keep his clothes in such form without a valet. It was generally conceded. And there were those who insisted that he must have an imported brand of valet tucked away somewhere.

ROSEBROOK IS NEW LEADER

Portland Symphony Orchestra Soon to Begin Rehearsals for Season.

The Portland Symphony Orchestra will shortly resume regular rehearsals for the season of 1908-09 under the leadership of David Rosebrook, lately of San Francisco. Mr. Rosebrook was born at Newport, Or., and is a very capable musician. He was recently one of the principal soloists in the Innis band, has played in orchestra at San Francisco and twice was conductor of his own band at Catalina Island. Mrs. Edna H. Jones will again assume the position of business manager of the Symphony Orchestra, and it is likely that the concert will be given evenings this season and not afternoons. Definite arrangements for the current season have not yet been completed, but it is known that the orchestra will consist of 45 players.
