MRS. ANNIS' STORY OF HAINS' CRIME

Widow of Murdered Man Makes Case Look Black for Thornton Hains.

PRISONER'S HOPE FADES

Says Thornton Led Way to Scene of Crime, Beckoned to Brother and Prevented Interference With Drawn Revolver.

PLUSHING, N. Y., Dec. 21.-The trial of Phornton J. Hains reached a climax of dramatic intensity today, when Mrs. Helen E. Annis, widow of William E. Annis, in a deliberate recital lasting for nearly three house pictured the killing of her husband, as he sat at the tille of his boat, by Captain Peter C. Hains. Mrs. Annls hearly fainted a few minutes before her examination concluded

Mrs. Amilis made an impressive figure so the witness stand as she fold in quiet, tones her story of August 15 at, the Bay-side Yacht Club. Several new points added dramatic interest in the trial. When Annie' boat came alongside the float, the widow testified, Tournton Hains beckoned to his brother and led the way down the runway. The shooting followed within a rew minutes.

Mr. McIntyre sought to discredit the "beckoning episode," which the state asserts proves that the author induced the Army officer to the crime, and kept Mrs. Annis on this point under cross-examination for nearly half an hour, Haine' counsel developed that Mrs. Annis had not until last week toid District Attorney Darrin that the defendant had beckoned Darrin that the defendant had beckone

I ran down the runway and Thornto Hains pointed his revolver at me. I turned to go back and he pressed the weapon against my back, saying: You get out of here or you'll get the same. I ran up the runway, and looking back saw my husband falling into the water. So said Mrs. Annis, relating her story, and this new evidence the lawyers for Hains struggled valuely to discredit.

That Thornton Hains was armed in the manner of the plainsman was shown today when a leather holster which is strapped around the waist and enabled the owner to make a quick play, was identified by Roberts us the one-taken Roberts' Story of Shooting.

When the trial opened today, Charles M. Roberts, a member of the Bayside Yacht Club, took the stand. He said he went to the club with Mrs. Annis in the stage on the afternoon of August 15. Mr. Roberts said he saw the defendant and his brother, Captain Hains, at the rlub together with the club members who were on the dock and float when Annis was killed.

"Mr. Funk and the two Andrewses were en their, boats at the float when the shooting took place. I did not see the Hains brothers before the first shot was

The boats were coming alongside the dock when I heard coming alongside the dock when I heard a shot and Mrs. Annis acream: 'Lookout, Will.' I started across the float toward Captain Hains, who was in a crouching position. It was then that Thornton Hains stepped in between us and pelating a revolver in my face, said: 'Keep off, keep off, or I will kill you.' Mr. Roberts said that Captain Hains was about three feet from Annis.

robbery of his place of business in broad daylight, the crime being very similar to the gaspipe outrages which terrorized this city two years ago.

Hartig's establishment was entered this afternoon by Louis Schultz, an ex-convict, who protended that he desired to purchase a £0 diamond. When the dealer displayed the gem. Schultz attempted to grab it and struck Hartig with a section of gaspipe rolled up in a piece of paper. Hartig saw the action and dodged back, but did not entirely avoid the blow, which struck him on the side of the head. He did not lose his hold on the jewel, however, and retained consciousness long ever, and retained consciousness long enough to give the alarm, which re-sulted in the capture of his assailant after a short chase.

Schultz was released from the penitentary on December 2.

SETTLEMENT ON ARID LAND

Growth of Crops on Umatilla Land Delayed by Cold Spring-Slow Progress on Klamath Tract Because Too Isolated.

OREGONIAN NEWS BUREAU, Washington, Dec. 19 .- The seventh annual report of the reclamation service, re cently sent to Congress, briefly describes the progress of work on irrigation projects of the Northwest. Of the two projects in Oregon, the Umatilla is much farther advanced than the Klamath, though it is laid out on a much smaller scale and embraces only 20,440 acres of irrigable land, while the Klamath embraces 165,000 acres. The report only covers to June 20, 1908, and contains no account of progress since that date. It will be recalled that the formal opening of the Umatilla project was announced irrigation was turned onto the land March 23. Over the greater portion of the Hermiston unit service has since that date been regularly maintained, except for a day or two during and just after each of the more violent dust storms. Thirty miles of canals and main interals are now in use, through which 6500 acre-feet of water have passed. Unusually high winds prevailed during this Spring and lasted until late into June, greatly interfering with farm operations. The land has been planted mainly to alfalfa, fruit trees and vegetables. On account of the cold Spring and prolonged and violent wind storms, the results have not been all that could be desired, however, the favorable showing made in the growth of certain varieties of fruit trees and vines under the unusual and extremely adverse weather conditions indicates that the project will ultimately develop into a successful fruit-growing region. 25. Of the 6438 acres opened by public notice of June 21, 1907, 3457 acres are in public ownership and 3151 in private ownership. Thirteen water-right applications, covering 192 acres, have been made for public land, and 83 water-right applications covering 5656 acres for private lands. The excess of land in private ownership for which water-right applications have been made over the total area in private ownership is due to relinquistiments. The land in the Hermiston unit for which water right applications have not been filed is held in private ownership, mainly by one company. This company is under contract with the United States to sell its heldings within one year from the date of the Secretary's notice to purchasers capable of perfecting water rights.
