BISHOP SCADDING'S CHRISTMAS GREETING TO

EPISCOPAL DIOCESE

the clergy and laity of the Episcopal Diocese of Oregon:

the clergy and laity of the Episcopal Diocese of Oregon:

A Merry Christmas to you one and all, my dear members of our diocesan family. At this joyous season my heart goes out in loving greeting to all our clergy and laity, to the faithful in active city parish, to friends without the diocese, to the patient and sometimes discouraged workers in our distant missions, to ranchers far away, who can have no opportunity to make their Christmas communions, to our Auxiliary women, and the dear children, to the occasional worshiper with us, and also to those baptized and confirmed members of our Father's family who rarely, if ever, 'praise God in the congregation'—to all may God give in abundance the cheer and consolations of the Christian truth. How all thoughts of self, of our successes and failures, of the indifference of friends, of the unresponsiveness of fellow-workers, of false judgments of our actions, and misinterpretations of our motives, take to themselves wings and fly away, and our hearts glow with joy and love when we meditate on the marvel of the Incarnation, on the great wonder of the love of God. The world apart from Christ gives us no adequate assurance that God is love, although Robert Browning has taught us to say "He that created love, shall he not love?" But that God is love—it is this that our Lord guarantees.

ot love?" But that God is love-it is this that our Lord guarantees. It is this love which furnishes the motive power to carry out the

It is this love which furnishes the motive power to carry out the object of the Incarnation expressed in the command of Christ, "As the Father hath sent me, even so send I you." The call of the Incarnation to you and me is personal and complete. We are asked to invest ourselves. The motive, after all, which must move the church is not proportionate giving or systematic giving, pleas for money, various incitements to duty, or the crying needs of heathen at home or the heathen abroad. It is the example and direct command of the incarnate Lord. The "as" and the "so" of that command are equal. His coming into the world cost him poverty, persecution, agony, and crucifixion. He gripped the world by reneuncing it, and we must continue and complete his work as his commissioned ones, for he invests us with the same programme of renunciation, and the same promise of victory. I plete his work as his commissioned ones, for he invests us with the same programme of renunciation, and the same promise of victory. I call upon you, dear people, to invest yourselves, body, soul and mind, in the service of our incarnate Master; then there will be no "missionary problem," and no lack of means for church support. The incarnation of the Son of God is not a speculation of the understanding. It is incomparably the greatest fact in the whole history of our race, and as such it imposes on us corresponding moral duties, so that it is no exaggregation to say:

"Were the whole realm of Nature mine,

Love so amazing, so divine,

That were an offering far too small;

Demands my soul, my life, my all."

CHARLES SCADDING.

Bishop of Oregon.

Bishop Scadding has sent out the following Christmas greeting to oody. Apartments for ladies.

ington street.

It has cost the people of the City of Portland over a million and a half of dollars to make Christmas merry for others and to bring good cheer to themselves. Never in the city's history has there been such holiday buying, never have people seemingly been so plentifully supplied with money, and since Thanks-giving the town has been a riot of Christ-mas shopping. Among the business men, at the postoffice, the express offices, messengers and delivery offices, and, in fact, with every man, woman and child who has had work in connection with the holiday trade, all say that any previous record of Christmas buying has been hopelessly snowed under.

The education of "do your shopping early" has been wonderfully effective. And it has been an education, for the matter had been taken up by woman's clubs and other kindred organizations throughout the country, and in every department store and among merchants all over the city, they to a man said that they had been tremendously aided in handling their holiday trade because in handling their hollday trade because of this education. "Buy early and buy expensive things" seems to have been the unspoken slogan of the vast army of people who were filled with the spirit of Christmas with its "Peace on earth, good will to men," for at each place of business visited yesterday, it was the same story—"Not only have the people bought more this year than they did last tears or ever before but they have year, or ever before, but they have bought all the way through a better grade of presents."

Million and Half Spent.

A million and one-half dollars has been spant since Thanksgiving for Christmas presents. This estimate was placed by conservative business men, not by one but by several, and they were of the opinion that the figure was much less than was actually spent. From all accounts the two big buying days were Saturday last and Tuesday. These were two banner days at Olds, Wortman & King and at the Meler & Frank Company. At Lipman, Wolfe & Co. they had one day last year, that was larger pany. At Lipman, Wolfe & Co. they had one day last year that was larger than any one day of this year, but from the point of goods sold and money spent, the big day of 190 did not compare with several days of this year.

Weather conditions have helped all branches of business and it is only the express company, the postoffice and a few of the general delivery companies that are behind in their deliveries. All that are behind in their deliveries. All were prepared for a prosperity Christmas, but they had no idea that the flood of business would be so great. Over in the registry department of the postoffice they are swamped. Postmaster Minto, however, hopes to get all of the packages delivered early next week. Now that the sending of mall is over, the sending force will be turned over to the delivery department, and the work will be cleaned up with a rush. This is also true with the express companies.

Florists Busy People.

Come to Hall's for your Xmas dinner, They will serve another of their popular holiday dinners, 75c. 330 Washington,  Yesterday was the busiest day for the florists and the messenger offices. From early morning until long after midnight boys laden with packages were flitting over the city streets, making belated de-liveries. Like everything else, more flowers were sold this year than ever before. Thousands of dollars was spent in flowers alone, so that each dinner table would be decorated today. Not all of the flowers went for this purpose, for many beautiful blossoms went to the hospitals to cheer the beds of sick pa-Moore's restaurant will serve a 75c urkey dinner today at 148 Fifth

"No holiday shopping in any former year can compare with the season of 1998," said H. C. Wortman yesterday afternoon, "and the store has enjoyed the greatest Christmas trade in its history. The buying has been steady since Thanksgiving. The campaign that was started all over the country by the woman's clubs has done a great work and the great rush was over yesterday, although there is almost as much buying today as there was any one day last year. The buying this year has been simply tremendous."

year. The buying this year has been simply tremendous."

"You cannot compare this holiday season with anything that has come and gone in Portland," said I. N. Lipman, "for all former records have been hopelessly smashed. There was nothing spotted about the buying this year, as there was last. It has been a steady, high-class buying, beginning with the days after Thanksgiving Money never was so plentiful and people never seemed so willing to spend it."

Yesterday was also greeting day. In addition to the busy messenger boy, the busy city expressman and the rest of the busy holiday-bent people, the telephone operators came in for their share of the hard work. All day long and far into the blinking hours of the morning the telephones were used for the chserful-exchange of Christmas greetings and many a "Merry Christmas" was sent over the wires.
