

MME. STEINHEIL TO REMAIN IN PRISON

Prospect of Other Arrests Revives Interest in Paris Murder Case.

NEW EVIDENCE IS FOUND

Accused Woman Attempts Suicide After Making Revelations to Paris Journalists, According to Report.

PARIS, Dec. 27.—(Special.)—More arrests are impending in the Steinheil case, according to reports current here. Talk of the prospective liberation of Madame Steinheil has ceased, and it is now expected that Alexandre Wolff and Mariette Wolff will soon be incarcerated.

The investigation has brought out the fact that on the night when Mme. Steinheil made her sensational revelations to the journalists in regard to Alexandre Wolff she attempted to commit suicide, and that Mariette Wolff tried to kill herself the same evening.

After the journalists had left Mme. Steinheil had a long conversation with Mariette. She sobbed and cried: "Mariette, I cannot bear this suspense. Bring me some strychnine. I wish to kill myself."

Mariette later took her up a revolver, which her cousin, Mme. Chabrier, took away from her. Later Mme. Chabrier found the cook trying to asphyxiate herself in the kitchen.

Mariette Wolff, when confronted with Mme. Chabrier, admitted that her mistress had tried to commit suicide, but denied making an attempt herself.

Later, when Mme. Steinheil was confronted with Mariette Wolff, she admitted that anything Mariette said was sure to be true.

The reconstitution of the crime will probably be one of the events of next week, which may throw more light on the investigation. Hypnotism, which has been talked of for some time as a method of making Mme. Steinheil divulge the truth, is also being considered.

There is a precedent for this in former cases in France. In one of these cases Dr. Liezels, professor in the medical school at Nancy, which is a rival of the Salpetriere in Paris, assisted. It was the dream of this man's life to solve crimes by means of hypnotism.

Remy Couillard was re-examined this week, being asked if the cords which bound Mme. Steinheil were very tight. He answered:

"Those that I untied, no. She was bound with cords wrapped around only once, and her feet were scarcely tied together at all. The knots around her wrists were more complicated."

"And the cord around her neck?" "It was so loose," replied Couillard, "that I did not think to take it off. M. Lecq took it off later."

Couillard also described a scene which occurred the next morning, when Mme. Steinheil pretended to be too weak to move. Soon after the doctor left her, in a condition where she apparently was unable to lift a finger, the telephone bell rang, and she sprang out of bed and ran to answer it. Couillard also affirmed that she had ordered him to take the dog away on the day of the crime.

A theater in the district near Mont Parnasse has a play prepared, which it will put on as soon as some of the details of the case are settled. The drama is called "L'Affaire Steinheil." The prologue presents the death of President Felix Faure. The first act occurs at the villa in the Impasse Ronsin during a reception. The next act is concerned with the tragic night of the murders. The scenes which follow concern themselves with the mysterious pearl, journalists, policemen and the St. Lazare Prison, and the drama ends fittingly with the apotheosis and marriage of Mme. Steinheil.

CHRISTMAS DINNER FATAL

Rodney L. West Taken Sick After Eating and Dies Next Day.

A victim of his Christmas dinner, Rodney L. West, an employe of the Yale laundry, died at 11 o'clock yesterday morning at his home, 136 East Fourteenth street, from ptomaine poisoning. West and his wife had invited another married couple to dine with them Christmas day. They dined at 6:30 o'clock in the evening and West was immediately taken ill. Neither his wife or either of their guests seemed to suffer from the meal and just what portion of the food contained the poison seems unknown.

During the early part of Christmas night West's illness was not serious, but after his guests had gone, he was seized with terrible pains and Dr. J. A. Pettit, of East Thirty-fourth and Belmont streets, was summoned to attend him. West's condition continued to become more critical until 11 o'clock yesterday morning, when his face suddenly turned black and he died. An investigation is being instituted to trace the source of the poison.

The decedent was a veteran of the Spanish American War, and served as a Corporal in Company E of the Seventy-first New York Volunteers. He had lived in Portland for the past three years and

NORTH END HOUSE RAIDED

Meyer Kutner's Place Entered by Police and Two Girls Found.

For the first time since Mayor Lane's moral crusade swept over the North End and wiped it out of official existence, a den of vice was officially discovered Saturday night and raided by the police. The resort was found in the house conducted by Meyer Kutner, one of the oldest and most widely known of the North End divekeepers, at the corner of Fourth and Flanders streets.

The raid was made by Detectives Anderson and Johnson, and besides Kutner, who was found in the saloon on the ground floor, Viola Smith, 25 years old, and Ida Goldstein, 26 years old, were arrested and taken to the City Jail. A number of other women are believed to have been in the building at the time, and escaped the police by leaving by another entrance. Kutner is 45 years old and has kept similar resorts for a great many years in this city. He provided bail for himself and the two women.

Kutner last night after his arrest boasted that he would make revelations during the next few days which would astonish the police. According to Kutner there are 15 or more disorderly houses now operating in the North End, despite the efforts of the police.

HERO MEDAL FOR FREETH

DASHED THRICE INTO ANGRY SEA TO SAVE LIVES.

LOS ANGELES COUNCIL WILL ASK GOVERNMENT TO REWARD RESCUER OF JAPANESE FISHERMEN.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 27.—The Council of this city was asked today to introduce a resolution of the Ocean Park Board of Trustees asking the National Government to provide a medal for George Freeth of the United States Life Saving Corps at Venice.

The resolution recites that December 16 George Freeth and the life-saving crew at Venice saved the lives of 11 Japanese of honor and imminent risk to themselves. Freeth was the conspicuous hero of the occasion.

A heavy storm was blowing off the Venice breakwater, and the Japanese sought shelter behind it. They were in three boats and were unable to manage them. Three times Freeth jumped into the angry sea and carried lifelines to the boats. The third time he jumped into one of the boats and safely steered it to shelter. By his action the 11 lives were saved.

The resolution declares he did this without thought or hope of reward, acting only as his duty prompted him.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 27.—Rev. C. N. Lathrop, rector of the Church of the Advent, captured a desperate burglar tonight, captured Albert J. White in the act of ransacking the church.

Mr. Lathrop went to the church this evening at 8 o'clock, as is his custom on Saturdays, and, upon turning on the lights, discovered a side window broken. Rushing around to the rear door, he found White. A struggle ensued, in which the minister proved victor, and he took his prisoner across the street to a store, where the police were notified. White pleaded with the minister to be released and promised never to try burglary again, but his pleadings had no effect.

Finally, as a last resort, he tried to bribe his captor with 50 cents with which to pay for the broken window.

When searched at the police station a Jimmy and other burglar tools were found. The Church of the Advent was entered
