THOUGH CONFIDENT OF VICTORY, HE STILL WORKS.
Eastern Oregon Senator Expects to Win, Either With 16 or 23 in Caucus on Organization.

Feeling confident that he will win out as President of the Senate, Senator Bowerman is none the less active in his candidacy. He has taken rooms at the Imperial Hotel and will spend the remaining two weeks before the Legislature meeting to it that the coveted plum, apparently within his grasp...

THE POSITION of the different Senators in the organization fight is gradually being defined, slowly but surely they are lining up and declaring themselves as to their choice for President. The positive announcement of a candidate and adjoining counties, that he would support Bowerman for the Presidency has had a stimulating effect on other members...

THE Bowerman forces declare that they have enough votes to insure the caucus nomination for the Eastern Oregon man, whether the caucus be attended by only the 16 senators or the 23 caucus members. The Bowerman people are asserting that their man will have a strength of at least 15 when the time comes to nominate...

BY REASON of the strength the Bowerman forces have mustered they profess to see no chance for Senator Beach, of Multnomah, who for several months has been known as a candidate for the Presidency. The same view is taken by the Bowerman people of the possible candidacy of Selling, also of Multnomah, and his chief supporter, Albee and Keliher, have not signed the call for a caucus, neither has Sinnott, of Wasco and Hood River, chorus chief in being a candidate...

SENATOR Bowerman is an exceedingly busy man. Sunday he spent the afternoon at Hillsboro, when it is suspected that he reached a definite understanding with Barrett, who a few days before, came out and declared himself in favor of Bowerman. Other of the doubtful ones will be interviewed during the week with the expectation that the result of the contest for President of the Senate probably will be determined definitely by the close of the week.

TO AMEND THE BANKING LAW.
Private Banks Desire to Advance Money on Bills of Lading.

Among the proposed amendments to the state banking law is one which will authorize private banking corporations to advance money on bills of lading. At the request of prominent business interests of Astoria, Representative John C. McCue, of Clatsop, has decided to offer such an amendment to the law. Under the law as it exists private banks are not allowed to advance money on bills of lading. That form of business transaction is allowed and practiced by the National banks, and the advocates of the proposed amendment insist that state banks should enjoy the same privilege, as a matter of general convenience in the business world. It is imposed on the state banks, the patrons of those banks are obliged to transfer a part of their business to a National bank which would hypothecate bills of lading in the course of business transactions.

CITY FORGES AHEAD

San Francisco Larger Than Ever, Says C. R. Walter.

BUSINESS BEST IN HISTORY.
Total Volume for 1908 Exceeds That of 1905, Year Before Disaster.

Among the arrivals at the Portland Hotel yesterday were Mr. and Mrs. Clarence R. Walter, of San Francisco. Mr. Walter is one of the leading wholesale merchants in the Bay City, being junior partner of the well-known firm of D. N. & E. Walter & Co. This is one of the largest wholesale and retail dealers in furniture and carpets on the Pacific Coast, and has branches at Portland, Los Angeles and San Francisco. Mr. Walter is in Portland for the purpose of looking into local conditions of trade and to complete arrangements for the firm's occupancy of the big three-story building now being erected for them at the corner of Ankeny and Fifth streets.

At the present time the company maintains offices and a distributing plant here, as it does in Seattle, but about the middle of February it will occupy the entire Crawford building. It thus becomes an important addition to the commercial activities of this city.

Mr. Walter will spend today looking into local conditions and, with Mrs. Walter, will leave tonight for Seattle and the East. He expects to visit Grand Rapids, Chicago, New York and other Eastern centers and to be gone for at least two months.

Mr. Walter is a native son of California and has been identified with San Francisco for a number of years. He is an enthusiastic member of the lately organized 1,000-Club, the purpose of which is to try to secure for San Francisco a population of 1,000,000 by 1915. In speaking of this movement Mr. Walter said the work of rebuilding San Francisco is largely in the hands of the young men who constitute the membership of this club. He declared that at the present time San Francisco has a larger population than before the disaster, and that her business importance had been greatly enhanced. The leading wholesale and retail firms have increased their practices two, three and in many instances, four-fold, and the volume of business done in 1908 will far surpass the record of 1905, the year preceding the disaster. He says the people of San Francisco have had enough of the graft prosecution talk and wish now to get together and work for the material rebuilding of the city.

People who were on the bridge at the time and saw the hitch say that the draw wobbled and was a few inches higher on one end than the other part of the bridge. When asked to explain the cause of the trouble the foreman of the bridge crew said: "The hitching and the threads have worn on the Jack screws." Noting that no one in the crowd but the bridge tenders understood what that meant, he added: "It's worn out where the ends meet, see, and it won't close."

Individuals clad in the regulation Indian poster costumes prescribed by stage ethics and which no respectable Indians would be caught wearing, who give some almost songs and illustrate them with large crayon drawings which are interesting.

A pair of character singers and dancers are Payne and Lee. The girl dances exceedingly well, and the man should have a new song, "My Brudder Sylvester," having been worn to a frazzle with the Portland audience.

John Birch, the man with the bats, is so good that we all sit up and take notice. He is positively on the best single-handed performers ever seen here in any capacity. His act is a clever take-off on the modern melodrama, and his impersonations, made simply by a change of hats, of the villain, the beautiful heroine, the hero and all the other kind characters in such a rapid succession, is kept and a faithful portrayal of "acting as it is acted." He alone is worth the price of admission.

Holmes and Holliston present a rural comedy sketch called "Looking for Betsy." The plot is a minus quantity, and the dialogue almost a minus quality. It is only saved from being a mediocre by a few bright jokes and a nice little ditty called "When Sweet Marie was Sweet Sixteen," which is well sung.

James and Lucia Cooper, who are billed as chattering chums, are particularly good. The "lody" in the act looks pretty and serves as a foil for the other comedy skits, clever and original remarks.

Freddie Bauer's song, interspersed with colored illustrated slides, is all about a "Dolly Doodle" and takes well with the Grand patrons.

Pantages.
THAT there is nothing new under the sun has always seemed particularly applicable to most any vaudeville programme at times, but Pantages this week has the distinct novelty of presenting an act in George Homan's creation, "A Night as Interesting from Start to Finish." The atmosphere of the novelty is positively as interesting from start to finish. The act is a reading, posing and musical novelty, with a cast including 12 people. John Rucker, an ebony-hued comedian, who is called the Alabama Blossom, dispenses his sweetest on the air and is genuinely funny.

A couple of entertainers who are billed as Spanish serenaders, and were probably born in Coric or Copenhagen, are the Martinez duo, who play on mandolin and sing, with side orders of slide trombone and saxophone.

James E. Henry and Dorothy D. Young present a comedy chapter said to have been taken from life in "Nevada." The characters are Miss Scribner, who is the editor of the newspaper, and Patsy Lynch, star and proprietor of a busted show.

Jean Wilson sings a ballad that is not necessarily tuncful, entitled, "Your Lips, Your Eyes, Your Golden Hair," and the Walthour trio are cyclists who cycle.
