ESSAYS ARE POURING IN

EIGHT HUNDRED PUPILS JOIN IN "BEN HUR" CONTEST.

Compositions Are Being Received by Every Mail and Interest in Awards Is Keen.

The total number of essays received in The Oregonian's competition for "Ben Hur" articles written by pupils of the public and Catholic schools of the city, new totals 500 and more are coming in by every mail. It is significant that the students of the East Side High School, through Principal H. H. Herdman, have through Principal H. H. Hertiman, have ordered 100 tickets for next Thursday night and the interest in the contest seems to be growing from day to day at a remarkable rate.

Owing to the inclement weather the contest has been extended until tomorrow night, which will positively be latest date at which essays will be sived. Every child in the eighth, ninth and high school grades of the puble and parochial schools is eligible to compete and their essays on the life-dory of "Ben Hur" as outlined by the distinguished novelist, General Lew Wal-lace, will be duly considered by The Oregonian's board of judges, which has provided that the best of the essays to the number of 269 will be awarded seats at the opening performance which will occur on Monday night, January 18. The essays should be written on side of the paper only, and in the u left-hand corner of the first page, writer should put his name, address, grade and school. Mall your entry's to the "Ben Hur" Editor, The Oregonian, Portland, Or.

ROMANCE IN "BEN HUR" Old and Young Alike Are Thrilled

by Power of Great Play.

Aside from its religious might, "Ben Hur," the stupendous Bibical spectacle, which comes to the Hellig on Monday which comes to the Hellig on Monday evening, January 18, for a week's en-gagement, is filled with romance—fascin-ating and suggestive, which enthralis old and young alike. How Ben Hur was thrown into capitity because of the ac-cident of the falling the; how he labored in the galleys, how the galley was at-tacked by Aegean pirates, and, when sunk, the marvelous escape of Ben Hur and Arrius; how he takes part in the charlot races at Antioch and defeats his enemy, Messala; and how he is at last energy, Messala; and how he is at last reunited with his mother and sister— these are a few of the thrills that are
