Year.

City Health Officer Pohl, in defending her department before the ways and committee yesterday afternoon, charged Dr. C. H. Wheeler, her predecessor in office, with gross carelessness, negiect of his official duties and wanton disregard for the compilation of sta-tistics that make up the records of time offlice. She was corroborated in part by Councilman Rushlight, chairman of the committee, who said that he knew Dr. Wheeler was incompetent as far as quarantino was concerned, Wallace and Bennett praised Dr. Wheeler for the economy which he practiced, and both said that too much money is now being spent in the conduct of this department.

Pohl was plainly angered by ref-- Dr. Foul was plainly angered by rer-erence to her prodecessor in office and by the declarations of Mr. Wallace and Mr. Benneit that she is spending too much money in conducting the depart-ment. She produced facts to show, in her opinion at least, that the city has never had a good health department be-fore; that she has it so thoroughly or-canized that the death rate has been muganized that the death rate has been ma-terially lowered; attendance at the public schools is better than ever and that general health conditions have improved wonderfully.

Charges of Dr. Pohl.

"These things may all be due to the grace of God, but if so, I earnestly thank him," said Dr. Pohl, "but I think it is in part, at least, due to the work of the office. You speak of the expense of The office. You speak of the work of running the office under Dr. Wheeler: I want to tell you that, with his salary at $350 a mnth, the city got just what it paid for. His statistics are worthless. being tabulated wrong; they are not to be relied upon at all. He was also grossly be relied upon at all. He was also grossly negligent in handling quarantine cases; he kept no quarantine at all; people af-flicted with contagion released themselves, when they felt like it. In fact, there was really no Health Office under his supervision. When I was pareticing medicine, no representative of the Health Office ever come near nor contained in Office ever came near my contagious discase cases. You talk about econor I tell you right now that the city did not deserve any better service than it got, and it got just what it paid for." "I do not know about the statistics f the office," said Mr. Rushlight, 'but know that Dr. Wheeler's quarantine mathods were poor. There was a small-pox case near my house once, and I elephoned to him, saying that the pe ple were running about in a shameful disregard for the law. He became angry over it and said that, if I wished it, he would send over a policeman with a gatling gun to relieve the situation and keep people in or out of the house, as might be needed."

No Evidence Against Many of Them,

It is going to be extremely difficult to secure evidence sufficient to justify the general license committee of the City Council in refusing licenses to all the employment agents in Portland, according ney Sullivan. A meeting of the committee is scheduled for this afternoon at the City Hail, at which an investigation of the matter is to take place, but it scenes that Mr. Sullivan is unable to advise the committee what to do, as he says that he has nothing definite against any of the proprietors and that he will not ask the Council to withhold any license. A $10,000 damage suit against Robert Wakefield, proprietor of the Portland Bridge & Building Company, was filed in the Circuit Court yesterday by Joseph Ruel, a former employe. headed by Leo Friede. The proposal is to petition for the open-ing of Morrison from its intersection with Chapman street in a direct line to Wash-ington sizect or at the intersection of that street by Tyenty-first. To be exact, the proposed extension of Morrison will tap Washington at a point between Twenty-first and Ella streets. The extension, if made, will out through the property on which the old exposition building stands, and will cut off part of building stands, and will cut off part of that structure, together with parts of the north side of blocks 4 and 5, King's Third Addition to the City of Portland The exposition site is owned by a syndi-cate of which Russell & Biyth are rep-resentatives and the agents are reported as saying that the proposed improvement will be heartly favored by their princi-pals, giving as a reason that the opening

It is also believed that with the opening of the street the Morrison streetcar line will run out to and northward on Twenty-first street, part of which is now used after a roundabout course of the line.

Property-Owners Are Interested.

Property-Owners Are Interested. Mr. Friede said yesterday that prac-tically all the principal property-owners on Morrison had signed the petition for the opening of the street and that he looked for an almost unanimous signa-ture list when the matter is given the consideration it deserves. The fact that the project was taken up about two years ago and failed of passage, does not to any great extent enter into the present movement to secure the improvement. He said he firmly believed the project is certain to be put through some day in the near future, and the longer it is de-layed the more the dumage assessment will be. He cited the case when Alder street was cut through when the pro-moters of that improvement declined to pay the price named in condemnation proceedings of $22,600 for the triangular piece at Alder and Chapman. but Not Cordial.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21 .- A highly leveloped order of courtesy is being maintained between the Senate committee on judiciary and Attorney-General Bonaparte over the question whether the Attorney-General shall appear be fore the committee to explain the merger of the Tennesse Coal & Iron Company and the United States Steel Corporation.

When the sub-committee having this investigation in charge met today, Clark of Wyoming, the chairman, subnitted a letter which he received yes terday from Mr. Bonaparte, declin the committee's invitation to appear today for the reason that he had an en-gagement in the Supreme Court. The committee solemnly agreed not to make the letter public. The committee also declined to authorize Mr. Bonaparte to publish the letter, even after he had expressed a willingness to do so, al though the committee decided that it had no objection to the Attorney-General's giving it out, if he desired to do so upon his own authority.

unanimously say that Mr. Bonaparte's reply was the embodiment of courtesy, it is evident that it ignored some sug-gestion from the committee that has not tended to enhance the cordial relations between the committee and Department of Justice. It is manifest that the committee will not receive any aid from the White House or Departof Justice in pursuing its inguirles.

It must still be fresh in the minds of the shrewd buyers what our first Advance Sale means by looking back to last Fall, when all those who were fortunate enough to obtain the greatest values ever offered in Portland. 'We have tripled the appropriation for this office in the past three years and, if the Council did that in every depart-ment, we would be tarred and feathered, to say the least."

Asked as to what he would advise be eliminated from the estimate for the de-partment under consideration, Mr. Benett said that he regarded $7000 for a laboratory as one item that could be dis-pensed with, and as the committee had already voted to disallow the sum asked for that purpose, he fold quite well satis-field. He called Dr. Pohl's attention to the fact that Dr. S. M. Gellert, one of the school inspectors. has at times stood by and ordered teachers to make examination of pupils, and said he thought this policy should be discontinued. Dr. Polit said that she had but recently learned of this action on the part of Dr. Gellert and that she had ordered him ae it and make inspections himself in future.

Increase Was for Wheeler.

Mr. Wallace remarked that, to the best of his recollection, the Council increased the salary of the Health Officer to $250 a month, only upon the understanding that Dt. Wheeler would remain, and that he did not think, in all respect to Dr. Pohl. that the salary was intended for her or any other successor. There is some talk that the pay may be decreased by the ouncil next Wednesday. The committee then proceeded with the appropriation for the department. The only change made is in providing for four school inspectors and fixing their hours of duty in the forenoons. There are two inspectors now, working all day, at $160 a month each. The four inspectors will receive $50 a month for their work. Dr. Pohl asked for an appropria-tion of $7000 to equip and operate a laboratory, but this was disallowed, be-tion of stamp to equip and operate a disency of 1.-year-old Jennie Signers. In this was disallowed, be-cause of a shortage of funds. A total of $2.263 was recommended.
