FORTIFICATION NOT HOSTILE

War Department Denies Decision to Protect San Pedro Is War-Move.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—The fact that there was a report sent to Congress by President Roosevelt a report by the general staff of the Army, which became public today, recommending fortifications at San Pedro Harbor, was made the basis for suggestions that the fortifications had just been reported in favor of a possibility of trouble with Japan.

At the War Department this inference was given a most explicit denial, the subject of improving San Pedro Harbor had been under consideration more than two years, beginning before there was any thought of any dispute between the United States and Japan.

It was taken up as a National military problem by the Army in 1906, and without reference to any particular enemy.

Formal legislative authorization for an investigation with respect to the advisability and necessity for coast fortifications for protection of San Pedro Harbor was taken May 21, last.

President Roosevelt sent to Congress the report of the general staff on the subject, which was accompanied by estimates of the cost of the site and fortifications, aggregating $3,555,339 for buildings, submarine mines and accessories.

Under the head of "Ease of conquest," the report says that recent investigation discloses that the United States has an effective naval opposition, an effective Oriental navy could in a few months of time, before its hostile intentions began to be manifest, capture the coast of the Pacific Ocean and would not be made land on our Pacific Coast an expedition of an established minimum of about 100,000 men and a force of about 100,000 men by the end of two months more to a total of possibly 300,000.

The ease with which San Pedro harbor could be captured by the Japanese, the entire Los Angeles country, could be seized is apparent," says the report.

From a defensive point of view the report points out that the Pacific Coast is divided nearly into three great divisions. While each is complete in itself, for defensive purposes they are so related to one another as to readily prevent the occupation of any one provided they act in harmony.

At the same time the board points out the ease of retaining possession, and the conclusion is reached that "Sea, mountain and

Constipation Caused By Indigestion

Is Cured by Helping the Stomach Do Its Work as It Should.

By All forms of constipation, bowel or intestinal trouble over most of their origin to the improper digestion of food.

The bowels measure 30 feet in length. The inside walls or mucous are wound tightly about with millions of nerves.

These nerves give life and control millions of the little mouths on the inside of the bowels, for whom they take nourishment from the food as it leaves the stomach and passes along this 30-foot human canal.

When indigestion, dyspepsia or stomach trouble occurs, the food being undigested, passes over these millions of mouths, it is a fermented, decaying mass and holds no nourishment as it should.

The little mouths shut it up, impart these impurities to the blood, in mass of waste matter, which passes along the mucous membrane of the 30-foot canal or bowel.

When indigestion occurs this juice is lacking and so the mass of waste matter passes along as it should and is piled up and caked in the bowel thus bringing pain and misery.

Common sense and science tell one only two points. You see it yourself. One little grain of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will perfectly digest 3000 grains of food.

The assimilation of a meal by one of these tablets is an easy matter and it keeps the stomach clean and sweet so that in a brief time this organ is restored.

Every drugstore carries them in stock; if not, write to the manufacturer, Dr. J. C. Williams, at his address and we will send you a trial package by mail free. Address F. A. Stuart Co., 1
