Portland Lodge Will Attend Grand Reunion in Golden State Next July.

SPECIAL TRAIN ARRANGED

Members of Local Organization Have High Hopes of Capturing Prizes Offered for Best Drilled Body in Parade.

"I want to be an angel.

And with the angels stand,

Herns upon my forchead

And prizes in my hand."

And prizes in my hand."

With this slogan on their tongues, at least 25 members of Portland Lodge, No. 181. R. P. O. E., will go to Los Angeles to attend the Grand Lodge reunion, which will be held July 12 to 15. Never in the history of the local F2ks. Lodge have such elaborate plans been made for entertaining visiting brother E2ks, as they pass through an route to and from the reunion, and no organization outside of the Compression Club will do as much to advertise and no organization outside of the Com-mercial Club will do as much to advertise Portland throughout the entire country. Not only are "the best people on earth," members of old 14%, determined to bring back with them from Los Angeles many of the trophies and prizes that will be awarded by the Grand Lodge, but they are going to see to it that the City of Portland, its resources and its roses, is made known to every Elk visiting the made known to every Elk visiting the made known to every Elk visiting the city.

The plans for advertising Portland, for entertaining brother Elks as they pass back and forth from Los Angeles, and for capturing prizes at the reunion, were outlined vesterday afternoon at a meeting held in the clubrooms. Some time ago a committee of active workers of the lodge was appointed for the purpose of arranging the details and coming plans for the visit of the 20 members of No. 142 to Los Angeles and of boasting Portland. The general committee is headed by William McMurray, general passenger agent for the Harriman lines in Oregon.

Will Travel in Style.

Will Travel in Style.

Will Travel in Style.

If you think the Oregon Elks, especially those from Portland, will not travel in style to the reunion, just learn how they will make the trip. Chultman McMurray has whispered it out loud that the special train to carry the Portland Elks to Los Angeles will be the finest special train ever rolled out of the city. It will be made up of fine standard coaches and a dinet, and the train crewa, from the time the train starts from the Union Depot at Portland until it arrives in Los Angeles, will be made up of men who belong to the Elks order. The schedule will be arranged so that the trip through Southern Oregon, where a number of short stops will be made, will be in daylight, so that none of the beauties of the trip will be missed. Chairman McMurray also wants it understood that the rate made to the Portland Elks, of $55. Is the lowest excursion rate ever granted by any railroad in the Northwest. The rate will be good for $9 days, with special stopover privileges for any point in Southern Oregon and California, and tickets will be good on any trains returning.

This is the railroad end of the trip. Now comes the big things that the Elks are going to do. In the first place, there will

This is the railroad end of the trip. Now comes the big things that the Elka are going to do. In the first plane, there will be at least 20 uniformed members of No. 142 in line on the day of the big parade in Los Angeles. The uniform of purple and white braid trimmings, is distinctively handsome. These uniforms, with caps to match, together with a Portland rose prominently displayed, are so handsome that, once they adorn the manly figure of even the housellest member of the lodge, even the homeliest member of the lodge, he becomes an Adonis. This hand of 250 will be thoroughly drilled and is confi-dent of carrying off the prize for the lodge making the best showing.

All Elkdom Is Invited.

All Elkdom Is Invited.

The really big piece of good advertising which the Elks intend for Portland is not confined to the showing the lodge will make at Los Angeles. It is vastly more extensive. All together, there are 1129 Elk lodges in good standing, comprising 200,000 members. To each of these 1129 ledges throughout the country will be sent from the Portland Lodge a special invitation to its members to stop over in Portland, either on their way to Los Angeles or on the way home. These letters will be read at lodge meetings. Already many of the lodges have arranged for a stopover at Portland, and have notified the members here of their intention. The first lodge to accept Portland's invitation is Brooklyn. The visitors from that city will spend one whole day here. July & A special reception committee will be appeinted to meet the members of visiting lodges. The club will keep open house and many delightful side trips will be arranged for visitors. It is the intention of this committee to arrange with Mayor Lane for the use of the arch near the depot. This arch, if it is allowed to remain, will be repaired and handsomely decorated. This committee will also walt upon the business inen and urge that the buildings and stores put on carnival resalls for the occasion. buildings and stores put on carnival regalls for the occasion.

Details of Coming Trip.

The committee in charge of what is called the "Portland Angels' Club" will called the "Portland Angels' Club" will issue weekly bulletins telling of the trip and what the Elks intend to do. The round trip, together with the uniform, cap and shoes, will cost $50 and eight monthly payments of $5. This is the way the trip is paid for. Alrendy over $50 have signed the book at the Elks' Temple and Chairman McMurray especially urges that those who are going sign up quickly, so he can tell just how many cars will be needed for the Elks, their families and their friends. He wants the trip to be an enjoyable one, and if at the last moment more go than his been arranged for, there more go than his been arranged for, there will be no trouble about diners and un-remfortable crowding Hotel arrangements for the local Elks have already been arranged for at Los Angeles, but the Portland headquarters will be at the Angeles Hotel, where a suite of rooms has been
