Great Interest Centers in Handicap Match of O'Connell and Berg, in Which Latter Must Get Four Falls.

BY W. J. PETRAIN.

The old-time sport of wrestling is extry, and this revival is particularly noticeable here in Portland, where the hungry fans patronize the sport liberally. Until the recent rejuvenation of the game here, over 15 years had elapsed since a wrestling match was patronized sufficiently to pay. The present interest in the game is due principally to the fact that Portland has been so long without boxing matches that sportsmen hungered for something to relieve the monotony.

During the days when the boxing game flourished here wrestlers tried to break into the game, but were unable to draw enough patrons to meet the expenses of mough patrons to meet the expenses of the matches, and after a few such fail-ures they gave it up. Only last April the famous pill-mixer of Seattle visited Portland and wrestled one McLaglen, an alleged grappler, and while the match was advertised liberally, the attendance hardly defrayed the expense of staging the slow.

the show.

While dwelling on the wrestling game it might be well to call attention to Ed O'Connell's match which is scheduled for Thursday night, with John Berg, better known as Young Hackenschmidt. Berg is classed with the premier light heavy-weight wrestlers of America and is the man who brought out Jess Westegaard. man who brought out Jess Westegaaro. The latter has improved wonderfully since he was defeated by Dr. Roller last year. According to Berg. Westegaard stands a better chanes with Roller or Gotch than any of the other heavy-weights of the day. He is 28 years of age and weighs, when in wrestling form. The pounds. I want to state that I am also a mem-

Among the light heavies, of whom Berg, now in Portland, is entitled to recognition, are Gus Schoenich, Fred Beel, Charles Olson, Martin "Farmer" Burns, Walter Evans, of Knoxville, Tenn.; Oscar Wasem, the "German Cyclone," and Charles Franklin, of Seattle. In this division Berg and Real are

In the first place Mr. Wescott, like some of the other bunters I know, desires to shoot ducks in the Spring, because he says that is the best shooting. He says this consists mainly of canvas-back ducks, and these do not breed in our state. This is a poor statement to make in reply to a man who has seen hundreds of canvas-backs in Oregon during the breeding season. who has seen hundreds of canvas-backs in Oregon during the breeding season, who has seen the mother canvas-back with her young, and not only knows they nest in this state, but can exhibit photographs of young wild canvas-backs taken in Oregon Lefore the birds could fly. Wood ducks, mallards, redheads, pintails and other ducks breed extensively in Oregon. Spring shooting interferes with their mating and breeding. It should not be permitted. These are facts in ornithology, not hunters' are facts in ornithology, not hunters'

Another error Mr. Wescott makes is that he would lead us to believe that ducks are not decreasing in number. He says, "I think that all hunters agree with me that ducks have been more He says, "I think that all hunters agree with me that ducks have been more plentiful last year than they were for years." The fact is duck numbers do fluctuate. A favorable year will produce more than an unfavorable one. Notwithstanding this, the number of ducks in our state has decreased rapidly and steadily, and today there are not 50 per cent of the birds we had 10 years ago. 10 years ago.

The reasons why certain hunters think ducks are as plentiful today as formerly are very simple. Every one of these men own, rent, or have shooting privileges on certain duck lakes and ponds. They have money to buy tone and tone of wheat and hire a special man to keep off poachers. Six days in the week they feed the ducks, and on the seventh they slaughter. Ducks are not different from people in that they must have food. Wherever food is plentiful and they do not have to work for it, the knowledge soon spreads and ducks collect from all through the country into these few places. Every week the duck-shooter gets his limit. He says to himself. "I bag as many ducks now as last year and the year before, therefore ducks are not decreasing." The man who thinks this hasn't enough logic in his head to reason beyond the end of his nose.

A few years ago a person could go out along the sloughs rivers and ponds and stand some show of killing a few ducks. Today we might hunt a week and not get a single shot. Go out through the country and ask the residents, not the men who have well-fed preserves, and you will find whether ducks are decreasing or not. Duck-shouting for the average man throughout the Western part of Oregon is a thing of the past. It is in the hands of the men who have reserves and who ena thing of the past, it is in the hands of the men who have reserves and who en-tice the ducks to them by feeding without limit. This is said not with the idea of raising the question of balting ducks, but to contradict a false statement voiced by a certain set of hunters who still want to kill more of our vanishing birds.

when an umpire falls to give the S. F. bunch the best of it.

Alex Cheyne, the Portland umpire who impressed the fans with his ability last Fall, is to be one of the members of President Lucas' staff in the new Inter-Mountain League. Cheyne is a good man and the new league will afford him an opportunity of showing what he can do, which has been his ambition for some Mr. Stokes about cutting down the limit of ducks allowed each hunter, but this and other statements he makes shows only a pernicious piece of legislation, that the association should have been ashamed to stand for, but it was settional. It stood for the interests of a few local hunters against the interests of those in other sections and opposed to the ideas of good game protection throughout the state. That I am not accusing unjustly is shown by the fact that when this section was discussed before the joint game committee of the Senate and House, no one dared defend it, and immediately representatives from the counties it was supposed to favor demanded mediately representatives from the counties it was supposed to favor demanded that it be stricken out.

In the second place the law which this association asked the legislators to enact for the protection of ducks was nothing but a law for their rapid extermination.

The seasons were not any langthened for but a law for their rapid extermination. The seasons were not only lengthened for the benefit of hunters who want to kill more of the duck remnant that is left, but in certain sections where ducks now breed most abundantly, in Klamath and Lake counties, they asked to be allowed to shoot ducks at the very time that they are mating and breeding in the Spring and before they can fly in the Fall. To show that I am not accusing unjustly, the sportsmen themselves of these localiing ground for these birds than any state in the Union. It has the two largest Government reserves in the United States, set aside solely for the protection of wild fowl. These, again, are not hunter's theories, but facts in ornithology. ogy.

In the southeastern part of this state, especially Klamath, Lake and Harney ountles, the altitude is much higher and the climate much colder. The breeding season for ducks is about a month or a the sportsmen themselves of these locali-ties have protested against such long month and a half later than in the Wil-lamette Valley. In Western Oregon ducks begin to court, mate and breed from February on. In Eastern Oregon

Mr. Gebhardt, secretary of the Orego Fish and Game Association, has done good work in codifying our game laws and preparing this bill. I do not want to give the impression that I am blam-ing him for these and one or two other longer time to shoot ducks in the Spring Mr. Wescott says: "I am a member of the Oregon Fish and Game Association, the members of which are giving their time and money for the preservation of the game in our state." inconsistencies, such as leaving plover, sulpe and all our other wading birds without protection. He took the suggestions he could get from different hunters and compiled them. The point I wish to make is, that these suggestions came from a class of hunters who have no right to govern legislation. The game interests of the whole state should be icy of game protection is governed by hunters and not true sportamen. It is governed by men who want the maxi-mum of killing with the minimum of protection. The outward attitude of the Oregon Fish and Game Associarepresented in the Oregon Fish and Game Association. The class of sportsmen who are interested in real game protection should join this association and by their concerted action, see that game birds and animals do not continue to tion may be to protect birds and ani-mals, but the inward spirit is to pro-

The people of Oregon are awakening to the fact that the resources of this state should be preserved. They know that if we leave salmon legislation to the tect the hunter and let these creatures do not say these things merely to oriticise. I believe the association has a good mission. I should like to see it change and live up to this mission. That others who are not familiar with the circumstances may know, I give my reasons for this criticism. The real object of this association is to give game ample protection, so that wild birds and animals gilinetters and trapmen, we will have no salmon. They know if the lumbermen can get the laws they recommend, we will soon have no forests. And it is just as true that if the hunters can get some of these laws they have proposed, the game resources of this state will be protection, so that wild birds and animais may not decrease and become externi-nated. The game laws recently proposed and recommended for passage by this association are very good in some re-spects, but they show startling inconquandered in a very few year Jenning's Lodge, Or., Feb. 11.

Trouble-maker Arrested. W. H. Freeman, 35 years old, said to Our present law for the protection of deer does not allow these animals to be hunted by dogs. Deer in Oregon have been decreasing rapidly, and it is recognized, not only as being unfair and very destructive, but as unsportsmanlike, to nunt and kill deer in this way. HOW COLDS ARE CONTRACTED

ALWAYS RESULT OF UNDUE EXPOSURE.

Rapid Cooling of the Surface of the Body Pings About the Common Ailments of Mankind.

An acute catarrh, that is a cold, is always the result of undue exposure to low temperatures. The rapid cooling of the surface, when not balanced by proper reaction, pro-duces congestion and inflammation of the nasal and bronchial membranes. Obviously such an ailment is not communicable, in the ordinary sense from one individual to another. As the slightest "cold" predisposes the individual to attacks of the most severe and dangerous catarrhal affections, the ne cessity for quick cure need not be enforced. These facts emphasize the necessity of extra precautionary measures against the ordinary cold. Everyone cannot change his climate at will but may make the most of what he has at home, viz., take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy as soon as the first indication of the cold appears. It not only cures a cold quickly but counteracts any tendency of the cold to result in pneumonia. This fact has been fully proven during the epidemics of colds and grip of the past few years. No case of either of these diseases having resulted in pneumonia when this remedy was used has ever been reported to the manufacturers, and thousands of bottles of it are sold every day, which shows conclusively that it is not only the best and quickest cure for colds, but a certain preventive of that dangerous dissase, pneumenia.
