COUNCIL EXPECTED TO CALL SPECIAL ELECTION.

Despite Some Opposition, Proposed City Laws Will Probably Go Before Electors.

The City Council will meet in special seasion at $:30 o'clock this morning to take action regarding the proposed charter, which was submitted last Wednesday by the Charter Board. It seems probable that the Council will pass as ordinance, authorities the plantage of the sharter council will pass as ordinance. authorizing the placing of the charter on the ballot, and that it will order a spe-cial election for a date prior to the April primaries, at which the electors will pass upon the commission plan of city government.

Some Councilmen show a disposition to take the sections of the charter up for discussion, as there are provisions in the draft to which objection has been raised. Centralization of the power now vested in a Council of 15 and an Executive Board of not more than ten members, into a Mayor and Council of six members, seems to be one of the more serious objections to the propsed charter. The large salaries to be paid elective officers is another feature to which objection is made. Councilman Belding is the most bitterly opposed to the new charter. He sees very little good in it, and is not even favorable to the pussage of an ordinance, submitting it to the vote of the people. He mitting it to the vote of the people. He declares that it looks to him as though the whole thing was framed to "job" the city. He refers to it as "silly, absurd and putrified." His views, however, are not concurred in by his colleagues. They maintain that the work of the Charter Board should be laid before the people Board should be laid before the people for decision as to whether they want the commission plan in Portland. This is very probably what will be done by the Council this morning.

Councilman Cottel wants the Council to take the charter up section by section and send to the electors such portions as are worthy, and lay aside the objectionable features. It seems, however, that the majority of the members will not agree to this plan, as they have expressed themselves as of the belief that the Counshould send to the people the entire

It is probable that the Council will go over the charter to a considerable extent this morning, more for the purpose of studying its provisions than for anything else. The proceedings will be based upon the majority and minority reports. Fred-erick V. Holman submitted the minority Board.

Ed Fors Professes Christianity and Escapes Jail.

PREACHER PETITIONS JUDGE

Through Efforts of Rev. J. Oval, Sentence of Year and Half Is Abrogated by Judge Cleland and Fors Is Again Free Man.

Profession of belief in the Christian faith and avowal of a determination to lead a goodly and sober life, saved Ed Fors, a saloonkeeper, from the pentten-tiary yesterday forencon. As a part of the agreement, he never again will keep a saloon nor mix drinks behind a bar. He is sworn to earn an honest living

One year and a half in the penitentiary was the punishment inflicted on Fors by Judge Cleiand, because of a technical infraction of the law. The charge was that of obtaining money under false pre-tenses. It was said Fors would have gone to the penitentiary but for his re-gone to the penitentiary but for his re-pentance and avowed intention of making the most of himself in the future. Rev. J. Oval interposed a plea in Fors' behalf. The spectacle of a preacher in-terceding in behalf of a salonkeeper was something new to the courtroom. The proceedings were brief. Fors ap-peared at 9:30 A. M. for sentence for he had been convicted by a jury on Satur-day. The mercy of the court was recomday. The mercy of the court was recom-mended, however. Technically, Fors was guilty of the misappropriation of $750.

Parole Agreed Upon.

The Judge had already talked the mat-ter over with Rev. Mr. Oval and ar-rangements had been made for the paolo of Fors after sentence had been assed. But since he did not know this, ors was in a very nervous mood. He old friends, before going to court, that he had been born over again in the spirit of Christ, and that going into court for wrongs done previous to his redemption was quite the same as answering for the sins of a total stranger. The Fors of a few weeks ago was entirely a stranger to him, he said.

Fors filnched perceptibly when Judge Cleland sentenced him to a term of one year and a half in the penitentiary. It was a hard jolt, coming so soon after he had received the new faith which was to do wonders for him. But a moment later he heard the word "paroled," and knew he wouldn't have to go to the realm of the lockstep and stove factory. During the next year and a half he must report once a week to the preacher and give an account of his conduct.

Feels Sure of Himself.

So long as he demeans himself properly he may retain his liberty. One break and—Salem. But Fors says that under the inspiration of the new-found light it will be impossible for him to do

The offense for which he was held was that of borrowing $750 on the fixtures of a saloon he was operating. He rep-resented that the fixtures belonged to him. As a matter of fact, he had only an equity of some $3000 in the saloon. But using this technicality, certain loan sharks precipitated his arrest. Little would have come of the affair except that Fors really had an easy conscience and after getting a surety company to go his ball, he skipped to Nevada, from where he was later returned by the surety company.

PACK BATH FAILED TO CURE

Mrs. Hutton Wants $6000 for Tortures Alleged to Be Inflicted.

Pack baths for nervous exhaustion are a severe setback as an efficient by a complaint filed in State Circuit Court yesterday afternoon asking $6000 damages for tortures experienced by Helen F. Hutton while taking one of these delightful and refreshing little

The tortures of the inquisition, the agonies of the "water cure" of the Phil-ppine Islands, all these things were trifling compared with the wracking, rending, exquisite agony of taking a hot pack bath as described by Mrs. Hutton. The Portland Sanitarium is named as the defendant and the complaint is one bitter broadside of stinging invectives against that institution. Adjectives are plied on adjectives in lavish disregard. She sets out in detail that on January she went to the Portland Sanitarium suffering from nervous exhaustion. was put to bed and then was given the pack baths.

She goes into detail as to one of these baths, which occurred eight days after she went to the hospital. Scalding bot-tles were packed in about her. The heat was intense and it caused a pain, she says, which was excruciating. She says she demanded release from the prison of not water bottles. But despite her screams of agony and her supplications she was compelled to remain until the "bath" was ended, so she avers.
And after having been thus "burned, scalded and tortured," she has ever since mpense for the tortures of the pack

EACH SAYS OTHER IS FLIRT

Irish Family Troubles Aired in Suit for Divorce.

V. F. Irish wants the State Circuit Court to give him a divorce from Caro Irish, because, he says, she is a fiirt. And she insists that she should have the divorce, because, she avers, he is the greater flirt of the two. The pair made greater flirt of the two. The pair made a few preliminary charges against each other yesterday forenoon, during the presentation of a request, from Mrs. Irish that she be allowed money with which to prosecute the suit against her husband on a cross complaint.

Judge Cleiand said that if the charges against the woman, as made by her husband, were true, she was not entitled to suit money. On the other hand, he said, if the charges against the husband are true he has no standing in courf. Among other things she alleges that he is the father of nameless children now at large in the State of Idaho.

Presiding Judge Gantenbein so decided in habeas corpus proceedings presented in court for argument yesterday afterneon by Jones. It was cited that the law provides a Justice of the Peace has no authority to impose any fine where the maximum penalty exceeds $100. In this particular case the maximum of $200 was dealt out by Mr. Olsen.

Judge Gantenbein held that this being the law, the fine against Jones could not stand. The writ of habeas corpus was allowed. Instead of paying the fine, Jones offered to surrender himself to the custody of the Sheriff during the progress of the habeas corpus proceedings, but as he is well known at Gresham, he was not confined.

EXTRAORDINARY DEMAND FOR "NIGHT IN BOHEMIA."
