BRANDS THEM AS COWARDS

Townsend's Nerve Stiffens Spines of Men Scared by Lobbyists.

OREGONIAN NEWS BUREAU, Washingron, Feb. 23.-It is seldom that a man In Congress has the temerity to rise in his place and brand as cowards a group of his colleagues who allow themselves to be influenced to vote contrary to their judgment by some lobbyist employed by some special labor organization. But Representative Townsend, of Michigan, is a man with the nerve, and he did this very thing when the House was considering the bill compelling railroads to standardize the safety appliances on freight cars.

The bill, which was indorsed by the President, the Interstate Commerce commission and many of the organizalargely depend upon the proper equip-ment of cars, was being assailed by a number of intelligent Congressmen, who had been induced to oppose it by one H. H. Fuller, a labor lobbyist, also supposed to have leanings towards the in-terests of the railways themselves. The bill was so notoriously and manifestly just and proper that objections to it were necessarily weak and unreasonable. After listening to several such speeches, Mr. Towared took the floor and allud-Mr. Townsend took the floor and, allud-

He got no farther; applause interrupted, and the debate closed. In face of what Mr. Townsend had boldly said, many of the branded "cowards" were forced to change front. Incidentally Mr. Townsend's speech was all that saved the bill from defeat. Prior to the time he spoke it was evident the bill would be voted down.

Smoot Gets Utah Excepted From Residence Law for Dry Farms.

OREGONIAN NEWS BUREAU, Washington, Feb. 22.—Senator Reed Smoot of Utah has the reputation of being the most stubborn man in Congress, and he deserves the reputation. Mr. Smoot, in his legislative work, proceeds on the theory that, if you insist upon a thing and make no concessions to the opposition, you are very likely to get what you are after. That was the manner in which Mr. Smoot dealt with the 320-acredry farm homestead bill, and through his stubbornness he made five of his collegues on the conference committee leagues on the conference committee come to his terms.

Mr. Smoot, who was one of the authors of the dry farm bill, maintained that a dry farm homestead law, to be of benefit to his state, should permit the homsteader to reside in town of in the homsteader to reside in town or in the vicinity of his land, but not upon the land entered. He maintained that in a large part of the dry area of Utah it would be impossible to maintain homes on 320-acre homesteads, though the land itself, under dry farming methods, could be made to produce crops. He contended that, while there was sufficient moisture in the soil, there was no water fit for domestic purposes; hence it would be impossible to live on such land.

The House would not stand for this proposition: so the House conferees reproposition; so the House conferees re-sented to the limitation of non-resident Mr. Smoot was obdurate. Finally he con-sented to the limitation of onon-resident sented to the limitation of onon-resident homesteads to his own state, which was all he really wanted in the first place, and finally after two months of fruitless wrangling the conference committee reached an agreement, but it agreed on the Smoot proposition. So much for the stubbornness of the Mormon Senator.

The streets of Cheyenne are elaborately decorated in honor of the visitors, and a programme of entertainment for every evening of the three days' sessions has been arranged.

Today's programme included an address by Governor B. B. Brooks, of Wyoming, president of the congress and the reading of papers by state delegates on various phases and problems gates on various phases and problems of dry farming.

Governor Welcomes Delegates.

F. C. Bowman, of Boise, Idaho, chair man of the executive committee, called the Congress to order. After an invoca-tion by Rev. George C. Bafter, of Chey-enne, Governor B. B. Brooks, of Wyo-ming, president of the congress, deliv-ered an address of welcome.

Welcoming addresses were also made by Mayor P. S. Cook, of Cheyenne, and Thomas Haney, president of the Chey-enne Industrial Club. Samuel B. Lea, State Engineer of South Dakota, responded to the welcoming addresses in behalf of the delegates. The afternoon session was taken up with calling of the roll of the states represented and a number of short address-es were delivered by delegates represent-
