

TRIAL OF KLEIN, "MESSIAH," MEGGID

Alleged Abductor of Women Faces Charge of Assault With Intent to Murder.

HARD FIGHT TO BE MADE

Man Has Many Supporters and Girls Alleged to Be Held Captive by Him in Alps Send Endearing and Comforting Messages.

TACOMA, Wash., March 10.—(Special.)—If Joshua Klein is convicted of assault with intent to murder Miss Dora Culbertson, it will be after a vigorously contested legal battle. This was made evident today in Judge Easterday's court. Defendant and his usual pompous attorney, Edwin Leach, today were the center of a carefully groomed and apparently devoid of nervousness he reclined comfortably in his chair and only once did he glance over the railing, which was filled with women and children. The crowd was so great that the doors had to be locked. A large number of persons friendly to Klein came over from Seattle, among them being F. W. Peabody and several women of wealth and prominence. Miss Dora Culbertson was the first witness and was under cross-examination when court adjourned. The defense professes to have evidence of a sensational nature which it said will only be introduced as a last resort and the whole startling story of how Miss Dora Sauvageot and Miss Rose Karasek came to fall into the alleged influence of Klein will be told.

Tacoma Girls Led Away. Joshua Klein, "Messiah," according to his own statements, alleged abductor of women, and leader of a mysterious sect numbering mostly impressionable women from all parts of the world, with headquarters in the mountains of the vicinity of Amden, Switzerland, is on trial in the Superior Court here today on the charge of assault with intent to commit murder upon Miss Dora Culbertson, a resident of Tacoma, who is alleged to have fallen under the influence of the man. Since the arrest of Klein upon the complaint of Miss Culbertson, who is a niece of Senator Charles A. Culbertson, and her sister, Mrs. Nellie C. Sauvageot, of Tacoma, the remarkable story of Klein's relations with the Tacoma girls has come to light. Miss Dora Sauvageot and Miss Rose Karasek, talented music students, went from here to Vienna to study under Leopold Godowsky. There they made the acquaintance of Klein, who, exercising his alleged hypnotic influence, he said, persuaded them to accompany him to Switzerland and to take up their abode in a chalet in that place, which has been described as a beautiful chalet tucked away in the mountains.

Will Not Leave Klein. Frequent efforts have been made to win the young women away from the apparently sinister influence of the man, without effect. Mrs. Sauvageot even journeyed to Switzerland and, regaining her daughter, only to lose her in New York, where they had been followed by Klein. Miss Sauvageot went back to Austria, but Klein followed to Tacoma, for the purpose, it is charged, of securing more victims. Here, according to Mrs. Sauvageot and her sister, he persisted in visiting them and threatening them until, on the morning of January 23, when he became particularly violent a patrolman was summoned and the man placed in the County Jail, where he has since remained. Frank Karasek, brother of Rose, returned a few days ago from Europe, after persuading his sister of the error of her course and bringing her back to New York to complete her studies. Miss Sauvageot remains in Europe and has continued to write comforting letters to Klein in his jail, and is dressing him in the most fervent terms of endearment and abjuring him to keep up good heart in the midst of his "persecution." Klein has letters also from Miss Karasek, and she is one of his woman followers, all breathing their faith in the man as divine and frequently using more personal terms of admiration and longing for the presence of the alleged "messiah."

Klein Poses as "Divine." Klein himself wishes to pose before the public as a man of the purest motives and an instructor in the "science of light living." His "proof" of his "divinity," as far as made public here, consists mainly of far-fetched plays upon German, English and Latin words and citation of scriptural passages distorted according to the "true light." Various observers have characterized Klein as a man of sensuous disposition, of a scheming and crafty nature, and not above the average in intelligence, but aggressive and dominant by nature. The type of man to whom sensitive women frequently fall victims.

Klein has a wife and two sons in St. Louis, who state that they at times live in poverty on their own resources, and that at other times the husband and father sends them a sum upon which they live on the fat of the land for a time.

NO PETITION FOR FULTON

Salem Residents Sent Telegrams Denying Heney's Charges.

SALEM, Or., March 10.—(Special.)—The published report that petitions have been circulated here in behalf of C. W. Fulton's appointment as Federal Judge is denied by those who have Senator Fulton's interests in charge. In their view of the situation petitions are unnecessary. George G. Bingham, a prominent Salem attorney who called upon state officials in Fulton's behalf yesterday, said today: "We were informed that Mr. Heney, in an effort to defeat Fulton's appointment by President Taft, makes charges reflecting upon Senator Fulton's character. The telegrams sent to President Taft by state officials were solely for the purpose of meeting Mr. Heney's attack."

CARS LOANED TO SUPPLY EMPLOYES

Wholesale Robbery of Freight Shipments Laid Bare in Pendleton.

STEALING BECAME MANIA

Ex-Foreman Makes Clean Breast of Pilfering, Implicating Higher-Ups and Reveals Manner of Disposing of Goods.

PENDELTON, Or., March 10.—(Special.)

—That many men employed in the local freight warehouse of the O. R. & N. were guilty of stealing what shoes, shirts, clothes and other articles of wearing apparel they needed was the startling statement made on the witness-stand this afternoon by Charles Dickens, former warehouse foreman. He was testifying in the preliminary hearing of Frank J. Ely, transcontinental freight inspector, and William Edwards, truckman in the warehouse. Other than these two men, he named transcontinental Freight Inspector Bartlett, who left here more than a year ago, and whose present whereabouts is unknown. Making a clean breast of the matter with no effort to shield himself, Dickens unfolded a story of wholesale thievery covering a period of two years. His statements are backed up by the records of complaints turned in and by two drayloads of plunder which have been recovered. The complete value of the goods stolen will probably never be known, but it will mount into the thousands.

All Sorts of Things Taken. Almost every conceivable article of freight was stolen at some time or other the last ranging from dainty dollies to neglected and old bedding. Nothing was too small or too large, and express wagons were employed in some instances to cart the things away. Other things, like shirts and socks, pillow tops, were placed in vests and carried home in that manner. A horse and buggy, the property of Dickens, was used to haul away most of the stuff.

Liquor Shipped Away. Dickens' testimony with regard to the liquor was not clear, but they apparently peddled a great deal of it out here, while in other instances it was shipped elsewhere. Though declaring that other employees of the company in the freight warehouse had been guilty of stealing things and that they had taken at least 20 suits of clothes in addition to the ones he and the two defendants had taken he refused to name any of them. Edward and Ely were both specifically connected with the question of the extent of the riparian rights as known to the common law prior to the desert land act of 1877, and it appears that in deciding these suits the court must declare on the record for all the real extent and limit of riparian rights. The Oregon Supreme Court has already decided that since the act of 1877 the actual riparian land is not to be used for no right to the use of water other than for domestic purposes. The courts have never decided the extent of riparian rights acquired prior to that time. The suits that have been brought deny the right of the Deschutes Irrigation & Power Company to take any water whatsoever out of Deschutes River. One of these suits was brought by Charles Altschul, who owns riparian land and claims the right to have the water in his channel, though he does not allege that he has ever used it. He says in his complaint that he "purchased said land with a view to the generation of power whenever the generation of power whenever the settlement of the country should render it profitable." It is thus shown that the suit is entirely prospective, so that the case presents squarely the issue whether a riparian owner has the right to use water for power when he has a right to have the water flow in his channel until he wants to use it. If this suit should be won by the plaintiff, the Deschutes Irrigation & Power Company would be defeated in its efforts at reclamation. While Altschul claims that Crawford feels confident of winning the case for water appropriators who are putting the water to beneficial use as against riparian owners who are not, he realizes that the question is one yet to be determined by the courts, and that if it should be decided in favor of the contentions of the riparian owners the case would be very serious to reclamation enterprises.

Dizziness A Danger Signal

Forerunners of More Serious Conditions of the Alimentary Tract.

Invariably flatulence and dizziness indicate the beginning of serious troubles, stomach and intestine troubles follow, which sooner or later develop symptoms of alarming nature. Catarrh of the stomach, gastritis, constipation, piles, liver troubles and a general break-down of the health usually follow these symptoms when left to run their full course. When the stomach is not performing its proper duty the rest of the system is affected. It is a well-known fact that the stomach feeds the rest of the body and organs, therefore many other diseases may arise, either directly or indirectly, from disorder of the stomach.

Whenever there is the slightest indication of flatulence or dizziness notice should be called for at once, that it may not develop more dangerous symptoms. Charcoal is an excellent remedy for the stomach, relieving flatulence by absorbing the poisonous gases that in the stomach, and aiding digestion and assimilation; it has a specific action upon this organ, and a very rapid and positive action on the system generally.

Charcoal has been used for several thousand years, both as a stomach regulator and an antidote for poisons taken in the stomach. The only remaining question is to get charcoal in the most convenient and palatable form. F. A. Stuart's manufacture a charcoal lozenge composed of young willow wood charcoal and pure honey, making this valuable product pleasant, palatable and perfectly harmless. A sample will be sent upon request, or Stuart's Charcoal Tablets can be had at any drug store. Price per box, The F. A. Stuart Co., 200 Stuart Bldg., 44th St., New York.

DIVISIONAL POINTS CHOSEN MILWAUKEE ROAD ANNOUNCES ITS TERMINALS.

Othello, Cle-Elum and Malden Are to Be Centers of Traffic, Work Already Begun.

SEATTLE, Wash., March 10.—(Special.)—Othello, Cle-Elum and Malden will be the three divisional points in Washington on the Milwaukee road. The official announcement was made yesterday. The first division out of Seattle, Cle-Elum, is already an important town, owing to the junction of the branch line of the Northern Pacific with the Roslyn coal mines. Othello is at present a small town north of Pasco, in a district that was a timber and lumber town, the center of well-timbered and rich farming district.

At each of these three towns the Milwaukee road is doing much work in preparing for the cars of traffic and motive equipment. Malden will have the largest roundhouse, ultimately capable of housing 400 cars. At each place a new freight engine house, passenger coaches for the Milwaukee line for all time to come.

That is looking out for the future is evident at all three places, for provision is being made for many miles of sidings. No less than five miles of sidings are being put up at each place immediately, and there is room enough at each point to increase this to 20 miles when the traffic demands it.

OPINIONS NOT SUFFICIENT

Magnate Wires He Must See 4 Per Cent Before Building—Other Plans Under Way and Will Receive Prompt Consideration.

MARSHFIELD, Or., March 10.—(Special.)—A definite answer regarding the matter of building the Drain-Coos Bay line by E. H. Harriman has been received. When the committee visited Mr. Harriman last Fall the members understood the railway magnate to say that he would build the line if it was shown that the business would pay four per cent on the investment. Colonel Holabird, a representative of Harriman, visited Coos Bay and was convinced that the business was profitable from this point and the decision of Harriman was anxiously awaited.

A telegram from Harriman to Governor Benson indicated that Harriman was expecting a money guarantee of four per cent from Coos Bay before he would build the road. The Chamber of Commerce of North Bend and Marshfield telegraphed Harriman asking that the matter be made more clear, as the conditions were not understood that way. In response to this telegram Harriman has wired to Dr. McCormac, president of the Marshfield Chamber of Commerce, a definite answer as follows: "San Francisco, March 10.—Dr. J. L. McCormac, Marshfield, Oregon: You are informed as to Colonel Holabird's report. My offer to you, which was made August 25, was very plain, and if satisfactory guarantees could be had at 4 per cent on the cost of maintenance, operation and taxes I will recommend its construction to my committee. So one's opinion on this matter is not to be taken into consideration. Other propositions for steam and electric railways have been made to the Coos Bay people and now that a definite answer has been received from Mr. Harriman regarding his plans, action will be taken in the consideration of advances made by other corporations."

THE ADVENT OF THE LITTLE BUCKEYE POST CARD PROJECTOR

Marks a New Epoch in Evening Entertainment at Home

ALMOST contrary to the laws of science, the Post Card Projector reflects opaque objects of any description. It is a reversal of the magic lantern (or stereopticon) method. Instead of the light showing through a transparent slide, as in the stereopticon, the picture is placed in the holder back of the light, and, by its unique construction, the lens system projects the picture upon wall or screen. The pictures shown are from five to six feet in diameter, according to distance. All the colors in the original picture are faithfully reproduced.

The Little Buckeye Post Card Projector offers unlimited opportunities for unique and original evening entertainment for family and friends. The machines are made to attach to gas jet, electric fixture or with acetylene generator (The latter for homes where neither gas nor electricity is used). They are strongly built and with nothing to get out of order. The first cost to purchaser is the only necessary expense, as pictures to be shown can be secured from post card collections, magazines, books, newspapers, kodak pictures, etc. PRICES, $5.00, $7.50, $10.00.

SUIT OVER BOARD WALK

ASTORIA, Or., March 10.—(Special.)—The case of E. M. Grimes against the City of West Seaside was set for trial before the Circuit Court today, but by an agreement of the attorneys was continued for the term.

This suit is an action to set aside the assessment levied upon the plaintiff's property for the construction of a board walk along the ocean beach. One of the important questions to be decided by the court is the legality of the Council of West Seaside, as nearly all the members of that body, while owners of property in the city, are residents of Portland. The assertion is made in the complaint that these Councilmen being non-residents are ineligible to hold office, and the Council is thus not legally organized and that all its official acts are therefore null and void.

Men and Women Suffering with "Nerves" Read This

The impairment of the nervous force in men and women is first manifested by extreme nervousness, sleeplessness, drowsy, weary, listless, without reason, trembling of the hands and limbs, with the slightest exertion, heart palpitation, constipation, kidney troubles, a general inability to act rationally at times, as others with health in their bodies do. This, if neglected, leads to despondency, melancholia and lost ambition. It is the result of a weak, more and more difficult, well frequently locomotor ataxia, "blind staggers," making the intellect of the man a direct result of neglecting to increase the life-giving nerve force.

A simple home treatment has been provided which, if taken in time, will certainly work wonders. The mixture can be prepared at home by obtaining the four ingredients separately, and the preparation of the mixture which most sensitive people abhor is thus avoided. The ingredients are pure and used in various prescriptions.

In a half pint bottle get three ounces of syrup sarsaparilla, compound, and three ounces of compound licorice, three half-ounce, and let stand two hours; then get one ounce compound cascara, and one ounce tincture cadomine compound (not cardomine); mix all together, shake well and take a teaspoonful after each meal and one at retiring.

This contains no opiates whatever and may also be used by men and women who suffer with their nerves with absolute certainty of prompt and lasting benefits.

THE PNEUMONIA SEASON

MORE DEATHS FROM PNEUMONIA THAN FROM TUBERCULOSIS.

Pneumonia an Infectious Disease. It Can Be Prevented—A Remarkable Record.

[From the Des Moines Register and Leader.] Why has this season of the year become known as the pneumonia season? Why during the closing week of the old year were there more deaths in Chicago and New York from pneumonia than tuberculosis? Why are pneumonia and related bronchial troubles beginning to take the place of tuberculosis as the dread scourge of city life? Simply because we are devoting too much ingenuity and energy to dodging the fresh and invigorating winter air that every twelve months refrigerates our latitude.

It is believed now that pneumonia is an infectious disease, and that in the cities where the death rate is growing so rapidly it is communicated in the heated and crowded cars. A nickel is so small, and the cold air is so chilling, that the American people are forgetting how to walk. The old time red that turned the cheek of childhood does not visit a mature face on an average of once in the twelve months, not even the red of a chilly and pinched nose. We are getting afraid of the climate, and as a result, the climate is taking its revenge.

The remedy of turning up coat collars has killed thousands of people, and the fur box has a long list to its account, for no part of the human body becomes delicate more quickly because of superfluous covering than the throat. And yet we are multiplying devices for turning up more coat collars. It is not too early to recognize that this is all wrong; that our climate is here to stay, and that if we are going to live in it with comfort we must accommodate ourselves to it. It will pay to keep on good terms with the climate.

A great many have learned that pneumonia may be avoided by taking Chamberlain's Cough Remedy whenever they have a cold. Among the tens of thousands who have used this remedy for colds and grip during the epidemics of the past few years we have yet to learn of a single one having had pneumonia, which should certainly convince the most skeptical of the value of that preparation. Its remarkable cures of colds have made it a staple article of trade and commerce throughout the United States and in many foreign countries.
