NORMAL LOBBY SOUNDS BENSON

Governor Will Not Dictate, but Insists Special Session Should Be Short.

MAY BE LONG, HARD FIGHT

If Normal School Question Comes Up, Governor Predicts That Vetoed Bills Will Be Asked For and Fought Out.

SALEM, Or., March 12.—(Special.)—E. D. Briggs, an Ashland attorney, stopped off in Salem this morning on his way to Portland and took occasion to sound Governor Benson on the latter's attitude toward the normal schools, with a view to requesting the Governor to suggest in his message that the question be reopened and provision made for maintaining the schools until the end of the year.

It is understood, however, that the Governor gave his visitor little satisfaction. Discussing the matter with an Oregonian representative, the Governor said:

"To those who have asked my opinion in regard to bringing up the normal school question or other matters of general legislation I have replied that I am not trying to dictate to the Legislature; that the members may bring up anything they please, but that it is my desire to have the session as short as possible.

Long Session if Issue Bobs Up.

"Many of the members who are opposed to the normals have agreed to use their influence to confine the session to the work necessary to the correction of errors in bills passed by the regular session. Some of these members had bills of their own which were vetoed, and it was with considerable reluctance that they agreed to co-operate in the movement to restrict the work of the special session to the correction of errors. These members will hardly feel like taking up the normal school question while permitting their own measures to slumber. The reopening of the normal school question probably means the introduction of vetoed measures and other general legislation, and likely a long session, to which I am opposed."

Normal Lobby Active.

Notwithstanding the fact that the normal school lobby will pull every string at its command, it is not believed enough votes can be swung into line to force the Legislature to reopen the normal school question at the special session. Those who take this position, and they are men who are usually well informed, admit that the normal fight will be a warm one and that the strength of the lobby may be greater than anticipated.

However, it has been expressed that as there has been so much complaint of the "$4,000,000 session," it is believed the majority of the members will seek to avoid further criticism by winding up the special session as quickly as possible.

Ackerman Explains Board's Act.

"It does not seem to me that the Board of Normal School Regents should be accused of bad faith in providing for the maintenance of the normals until June of each year," declared State Superintendent of Public Instruction J. H. Ackerman today. "In fact the board could not well have taken any other course. The school year ends in June, and we could not engage a teaching staff with the understanding that they would be let out the first of January, which is not even the end of a term. Nor could we turn our students out in the middle of the school year.

"All appropriations made for the maintenance of state institutions are for disbursements during the fiscal year ending January 1. If any money is left on hand at that time it reverts to the state. The State Normal Board did only what the boards of all the other state schools do, including the Agricultural College. It would have been utterly impossible for the board to have taken any other course in regard to the Ashland and Weston normals, the only schools which did not have money on deposit sufficient to cover operating expenses to the end of the school year. It is easy enough to say that the board exceeded its authority, but those familiar with the situation know that we did the only thing possible under the circumstances.

Ackerman Takes No Part.

"I will be out of the city next week and am taking no part in the movement to induce the Legislature to reopen the normal school question at the special session."

BRIGGS SAYS IT WILL FAIL

Ashland Booster Declares Southern Oregon Is Friend of O. A. C.

Mr. Briggs was seen last night at the Imperial Hotel and when asked regarding the movement to defeat the Oregon Agricultural College appropriation, said: "I do not think this movement will succeed. When the petition was presented to me I refused to sign. It was in charge of A. S. Barnes, ex-Sheriff, and E. J. Kaiser, editor of the Valley Record, both old-time Populists. While the people of Ashland feel very keenly the treatment accorded them by the Legislature, they are nevertheless loyal to the Agricultural College and would not seek to hamper it, at least the progressive element in Ashland would not. I do not think the plan can succeed."

NORMAL SCHOOLS READY TO FIGHT

Led by Ashland, Supporters Are Preparing to Descend on Legislature.

NOTTINGHAM IS OPPOSED

Says Schools Should Be Cut Off and Measures of Relief Initiated by People—Governor Noncommittal About the Question.

Normal school advocates will swoop down on the special session of the State Legislature at Salem Monday and demand that an appropriation of $100,000 be made for the maintenance of the schools at Monmouth, Weston and Ashland until January, 1911. At the same time they will ask that the Legislature make provision for the question of further support of normal schools to be submitted to the voters of the state for a final verdict at the general election in November, 1910. At that election the friends of these schools want an expression from the electors on the following proposals: Support of three normal schools, support of two normal schools, support of one normal school centrally located, or no normal schools.

The proposal to renew the normal-school fight at the special session was initiated by the business men of Ashland, of whom a delegation of 12 reached Portland yesterday. During the day these men called on various of the representative business men of the city and secured the promises of about 40 that they would attend a meeting in the Chamber of Commerce assembly hall at 10 o'clock this morning, when the normal-school advocates from the Southern Oregon town will present their claims to the further support of these institutions by the state until the question of their maintenance at state expense can once for all be determined by a direct vote of the people at the next general election.

Mulit Heads Forces.

This party is headed by State Senator L. L. Mulit, of Jackson County; E. V. Carter, ex-State Senator from the same county, and Senator H. D. Norton, of Josephine. Other members of the party, which will be augmented by a further delegation today, are: R. P. Neil, Thomas H. Simpson, J. P. Dodge, R. A. Minkler, D. Perozzi, N. J. Reasoner, J. S. McNair, J. E. Young, E. D. Briggs, A. J. Biegel, G. F. Billings and Emil Piel. Other friends of the normal schools are said to be on their way to Portland from Weston; while Representatives B. F. Jones, of Lincoln and Polk, and J. C. McCue, of Clatsop, staunch friends of the Monmouth school, already are in the city.

Members of the Ashland delegation yesterday went to Salem to importune Governor Benson to give his assent to the consideration of normal-school legislation at the special session. Just what satisfaction they received the Ashlandites would not say, further than to remark that Governor Benson is not unfriendly to the schools.

However, it is known that before deciding to assemble the Legislature in special session, Governor Benson waited until he had received the assurance from a majority of the members that they would not consider any new legislation, but would devote their time exclusively to correcting defects in measures enacted at the regular session and effect an immediate adjournment. Any legislation relating to the normal schools is likely to come within the limitations to which a majority of the members have assented, but at the same time the friends of these schools urge that it would be only supplemental or corrective of the failure of the regular session to provide for the schools, which, it will be alleged, are still state institutions and entitled to receive state aid.

Governor Benson Fearful.

Governor Benson realizes that if he should let down the bars and give his consent to the revival of the normal-school fight at the special session, he would pave the way for the consideration by the lawmakers of general legislation and that, having done so, it practically would be impossible to apply the brakes. Knowing the possibilities of an unrestrained Oregon Legislature, Governor Benson is expected to be cautious about assuming that risk. While there is a general disposition among most of the legislators to confine the business of the special session to two days, if possible, it is reasonably probable that if other than defective bills passed at the regular session are taken up, the two branches may be expected to consume the full 20 days to which special sessions are limited by law.

"Fair play is all the friends of the normal schools are demanding," said Senator Mulit last night. "We regard that the regular session of the Legislature made a mistake when it cut these schools off in midyear without any funds to complete their school year and without the people being given an opportunity to pass on the question of how many, if any, of these schools should be retained.

"We have reduced our demand to a minimum and will ask the state to provide only $100,000 for the support of the three schools until 1911. We will also ask that the normal school question be submitted to the voters of the state at the general election in November, 1910, that it may be settled fairly and finally. We will be satisfied with the result, but we believe that until the people have had the right to express themselves, these institutions should be supported by the state.

Popular Vote Wanted.

"Dividing $100,000 among three schools gives only $33,000 for each for a period of two years, or less than $17,000 per annum. This is not as much as we properly should have, but we are willing to accept that amount and get along the best we can. We contend that the people have never been given an opportunity to say how many normal schools the state should support. The only time they ever had anything like a vote on the subject was four years ago when the general appropriation bill, which contained appropriations for these schools, was referred because of the normal school appropriations. But the bill was referred in blanket form without segregating the items so that the voters could express themselves solely on the normal schools. We are not contending, therefore, that the vote by which that bill was sustained correctly represents the sentiment of the state respecting these schools, for the reason that many voters supported the bill because of the other appropriation items the measure contained. What we want is that the normal school question should be submitted to the people on its merits and we will be satisfied with the result."

That the normal school friends mean business is apparent from the fact that Senator Nottingham, chairman of the Senate committee on ways and means, yesterday received a copy of resolutions adopted by the commercial organizations of Ashland, demanding that as chairman of that committee he give the advocates of these schools the "right" to appear before the committee at the special session and present their claims.

Nottingham Is Opposed.

"These normal school advocates apparently regard me as their arch enemy," commented Senator Nottingham yesterday. "Well, perhaps I did have something to do with keeping them from receiving further state aid at the hands of the last session. But I regarded that the only way to treat with this normal school abuse was to cut them off without any further appropriations and let them initiate their own measures for support with the people. If the last Legislature had passed bills providing for the maintenance of these schools until the close of the school year, we would have given them a legal recognition and merely prolonged their hold on the state treasury. And what would have been the result? These schools would continue their operations until the 1911 session convened and then come before that Legislature with bills asking for deficiency appropriations as has been the history of every session since these schols first were created.

"I sincerely trust that the members of the Legislature next week will not permit the reintroduction of the normal school fight. We should transact such business as must be considered and adjourn just as soon as possible. The people certainly do not want any extended session and surely do not expect us to take up general legislation."

With the alignment of the normal school forces that is being made, Governor Benson, President Bowerman and Speaker McArthur will have their hands full if their idea of a session of two or three days is not frustrated. It is denied vigorously, however, by Senator Mulit and his associates that it is their intention to resort to any hold-up tactics and unnecessarily prolong the session in order to get what they feel they are entitled to. President Bowerman will not reach Portland until tomorrow, while Speaker McArthur is at Salem assisting in the work of revising the House journal of the regular session.

The special session will be convened at 10 o'clock Monday morning.

ALL DISTRESS FROM INDIGESTION OR AN UPSET STOMACH VANISHES

All Misery in the Stomach Will Be Relieved Five Minutes After Taking Some Diapepsin.

Does it ever occur to you how busy that little stomach of yours is? It actually only holds three pints, though in one year you force it to take in 2500 pounds of material, digest it and prepare it for assimilation to the blood. Do you wonder at the number of cases of indigestion and stomach trouble? You crowd it with steaks and pastry, irritate its juices with spices and acids and expect this little four-ounce mill to do its work.

Is there any wonder that your food passes undigested, or lays like a lump of lead in the stomach? That everything you eat turns to acid, stomach gas and stomach poison, putrefying the intestines and digestive canals, causing Biliousness, Headaches, Dizziness and Indigestion, Heartburn, Nauseous Breath, Constipation and other more dangerous symptoms?

Call your disease what you will—Indigestion, Gastritis, Nervousness, Dyspepsia, Catarrh of Stomach, etc.—you know the real name, the real disease is fermentation of the food you eat—a sour stomach, which belches gas and erupts undigested food or causes a feeling of nausea and miserableness.

All these miseries vanish promptly when you stop this food fermentation. Take 50 cents to your pharmacist for a case of Pape's Diapepsin. Eat a triangule, and five minutes later your stomach will do what a healthy stomach should—that is, turn every bite you eat into bodily nourishment and without you realizing that you have a stomach. One triangule will digest all the food you eat without the aid of the stomach, because it contains just the elements found in a good, strong, healthy stomach.
