Hugh Dennison, manager of the North-western Collection Agency, is the man under suspicion of having attempted to bribe Juror H. G. Wright. But if he made the attempt, he failed in his mission, as is evident from the verdict, A man named Potter and several others are also said to figure in the case. District Attorney Cameron said last night that the matter will be laid before the grand jury at once, although they have only a week for the investigation of Dennison and Potter are said to have gone to Mr. Wright's home and there told him that "a piece of money" would be forthcoming if he would vote so as to cause a disagreement of the jury and save Yee's neck. During the course of the trial the County Court permitted the employment of several private detectives ceedings. None of the attorneys for the defense knew anything of what was going on behind the scenes, so far as can be learned.

Set for trial June 17.

The following were arraigned: Albert R. Anderson, charged with uttering a forged check; Andrew Dalgity, charged with the embezzlement of $1410 from the Forester.

Small Chance of Escape for Yee.

As Yee arose in the courtroom yesterday morning while the clerk read the verdict, he appeared as stoical as he has been all through the trial, and well he might, for he did not understand a word, and only when he reached his cell in the County Jall was the news made known to him that he had been convicted and was in the shadow of the gallows. Hughes Divorce Suit Continued Till Further Order.

The divorce suit of Ethel R. Hughes against Robert S. Hughes was continued by Circuit Judge Morrow yesterday afternoon until further order of the court, and it was agreed that Hughes pay his wife $25 a month for six months. Hughes contested his wife's suit, but did not ask a divorce himself. She rejented and said she was waiting for her husband to come to her for a reconcliation. They a divorce himself. She releuted and said she was waiting for her husband to come to her for a reconciliation. They were married August 13, 1906.

Hughes says the whole trouble has arisen because his wife insisted her sged father live with them. Mrs. Hughes said her husband agreed to this when they became engaged, and she thought he ought to live up to it. In the complaint she charged him with drunkenness, and with having choked her. dragged her across the floor, and kicked her. She said she married him for love, but that a woman never knows a man until after the wedding. She never knew how badly intoxicated her husband became, she said, until after they were married.

Judge Gantenbein granted Mamle Fowler a divorce from Samuel Fowler a divorce from Samuel Fowler yesterday morning. She said her husband swore he would kill her, and she was violently beaten in September, 1906. While they were living at Aberdeen, Wash, she testified, he locked her in a room. She married hum October 12, 1897, in Columbia County. She was allowed to resume her former name, Mamle Miller.

Court Contends Chief Had No Right to Reduce Him to Ranks.

Chief of Police Gritzmacher had no Chief of Police Gritzmacher had no right to reduce Detective Joseph Day to the rank of a patrolman wearing brass buttons, according to the decision of Presiding Judge Gantenbein in the Circuit Court yesterday afternoon. The salary of the patrolmen is $100 a month, while that of the detectives is $115 a month. The court's decision also affects Detectives L. G. Carpenter, Frank Snow and Joseph Resing, the Day case being used as a test for the others. Judge Gantenbein sustained Day's demurrer to Chief of Police Gritzmacher's answer in Day's injunction suit. Day had sued, through his attorney, Raiph

R. Moody, for an injunction restraining the Chief of Police from assigning him to any other duty than that of detec-

5, 1903, the employees of the police de-partment were in eight or nine differ-ent classes. In 1905 they were all placed in the same class. After Day and his fellow-officers were suspended, some time ago, and the time came for their reinstatement, they were assigned to patrol duty by the Chief. To this they objected, but to no purpose, so Day brought suit in the Circuit Court to have the Chief restrained. In ren dering his decision upon the demurrer Judge Gantenbein said that, having taken the examination and been ap-pointed before the reclassification, Day could not now be assigned to common patrol duty. But the court also inti-mated that those who have passed the examination and been admitted to the olice force since the time in 1905 when the new regime went into effect may be assigned to patrol duty, even though they took the examination for detec

Gritzmacher, in his answer to Day's complaint, said the welfare of the city demanded more patrolmen, and it was for this reason he assigned Day to such duty. VARICOSE VEINS

In the larger institutions of the East, especially the outdoor clinic of St. John's Hospital. St. Louis, I have for years devoted much time and study devising the best, safest and most successful method of curing VARICOSE VEINS, and have been rewarded with complete mastery over this most distressing ailment. My plan does not involve a single objectionable feature. There is no going to bed; no taking of chloroform or ether; no pain, and positively no bad results. The patient can resume any kind of hard work after one week, and is not required to stay in his room even a day. The organs are immediately relieved of tax, a normal circulation of blood goes to the vital organs, as was intended before the varicose veins appropriated the supply, and the patient is at once restored to a condition of health, snap and vitality, permanent and complete. Is it not about time you were looking at the logical, practical and plain fact side of this matter? If you have not yet received a cure of your varicose veins, come to me and let us talk it over. This will cost you nothing and will be helpful to you.
