Captain Ote Johnson's terrific club was responsible for a ninth-inning victory for Portland over Los Angeles yesterday afternoon.

Johnson's feat will linger in the minds of the cheering hosts who left the grounds cheering lustily.

Many Give Up Hope.

A large number of the fans, or rather near-fans, who give up hope under such circumstances, left the park when the visitors put these two over, and, thinking the game clinched for the other fellows, went home before McCredie's men opened up on Koestner.

It really seemed that some of the fanatics would drop of heart failure when Johnson's drive cleared the right garden wall and sent Ote and Spears, who had been put on to run instead of McCredie, over the register ahead of him.

For Ote's hit before McCredie's men opened up in the inning and this called Portland's total to seven, while the Angels' portion was the half-dozen aces acquired in the fourth and the half of the ninth innings.

In the latter inning the Angels went to bat with a 4-to-3 advantage over Portland, and Graney walked, the first runner, and Wheeler and Howard, which was followed by Smith's sacrifice advancing both men.

Delmas then hit for two bases, scoring the home run, and apparently clinching the game for the Angels.
