OTHER THEATERS MAY BE CLOSED

"There Will Be Something Doing Pretty Soon," Asserts Building Inspector.

Lane Should Not Have Gone Over His Head in Condemning Heilig, He Thinks-Believes Day of Frame Playhouse Passed.

Mayor Lane and Building Inspector Dobson were in conference in the office of the executive yesterday afternoon, the subject under consideration being the condition of various theaters, following the sudden closing of the Heilig Monday because of its unsafe foundations. The Mayor told Mr. Dobson that, if there are any more public buildings like the Heilig action to close them cannot be taken too quickly. Mr. Dobson's statement in reply indicates that further action along this line may be expected, as he said "there will be something doing pretty zoon." He declined to make his intentions more definite at this time.

There is a slight difference of opinion between Mayor Lane and Building Inspector Dobson regarding the condition of the Heilig Theater, the Mayor declaring that it is rotten and should have been closed up promptly, and Mr. Dobson holding to the opinion that it would have held out with comparative safety to the end of the present theatrical season. The officials had a frank discussion about it, and Mayor Lane told the inspector without hesitation that, if there are any other buildings like the Heilig they should be shut up without a moment's delay.

there are any other buildings like the Heilig they should be shut up without a moment's delay.

Mayor Lane's attention was drawn to the condition of the Heilig Theater by Thomas G. Greene, a member of the City Executive Board. The Mayor then tried to locate Inspector Dobson, but the latter was out of the city and Deputy Benvie was summoned. He reached the Mayor's office at 12 o'clock Monday, and they proceeded to the building. After an examination, it was ordered closed, causing much inconvenience to the management. Mayor Lane said:

"I consider that building rotten and absolutely unsafe. I would not take a member of my family there—I would not go myself or send any one else there. Oh, there might be a few men I would send, but no one for whom I had any particular love. If there are any more such public buildings as that one, while I'm no inspector and no architect and no builder, I'll say, Mr. Inspector, you can't close them up too quick."

"There is no question that the building is in bad shape, said Inspector Dobson. "I had made two examinations of it, and had notified the management that I would not 'O, K.' It for another season's work. I did not, however, consider it immediately dangerous."

TRIES TO SLIP FROM JAIL WESTON HAS HIGH SCHOOL

Crook Bends Cell Bars, but His Plans Are Detected.

John Stanton, suave young Eastern crook, who managed to evade the local detective bureau only to be captured by Captain William Gadsby and his son, Walter Gadsby, while attempting to pilfer the Ben Gadsby home at $20 Overton street, endeavored to slip out of the flimsy City Jall carly yesterday afternoon. But for the alertness of Day Jailer Ben Branch he would have succeeded.

of Day Jailer Ben Branch he would have succeeded.

A stout fir stick was all the implements Stanton needed. With this he bent the bars leading to the light well by which city prisoners are taken into the Municipal Court. Worming his way through the opening thus made, he had only to pick an ordinary tumbler lock, which is no trick for an experienced crook. But Jailer Branch saw the twisted bars, divined the plan, and removed Stanton to a seperate cell. Later Stanton was taken to the County Jail, pending trial in the Circuit Court on a charge of larceny from a dwelling. Stanton is a sleek young fellow, whose good clothes and easy manners rendered him immune from suspicion, wille he was operating as a common burglar. He owes his capture to the fact that the Gadsbys saw him enter the Ben Gadsby home and got the drop on him with a brace of revolvers. He is believed to come from St. Louis, but preserves a discrete silence, declining to discussy himself or his case. preserves a discrete silence, declining to discuss himself or his case.

Farmers owning land below the Minthorn springs have employed URen & Schubel, of Oregon City, to contest Mr. Johnson's right to use this water, on the theory that to de so will be a violation of their riparian rights. Mr. Johnson owned the land on which the springs are located for 15 years and recently sold part, retaining a half interest in the springs. He says he is not at all concerned over the threatened action of these owners near the spring and will proceed with the construction of the water plant.

SHIP'S COOK IS IN TROUBLE

Head of the Galley Defies Men From Forecastle of Berengere.

Trouble started yesterday morning on the French ship Berengere, when several sallors undertook to put the cook out of business. The "doctor" barricaded himself in the galley and armed with a butcher knife, announced his intention of carving any sailor who undertook to enter his sanctum. The harbormaster was called and affairs adjusted.

A number of sailors on the French craft accused the cook of carrying tales to the officers. A "sea lawyer" started the game and the men fell in. It was decided to settle matters with the cook, but the latter held the galley with the aid of a knife.
