Court Warns Attorney Barrett to Stop Practices on Penalty of Being Sentenced for Contempt.

Judge Threatens Jail.

For these remarks Barrett was sternly reprimanded by Judge Lawlor, who told the attorney that if he made another such reference he would send him to jail.

"If the court intends to punish me," Barrett answered, "then what about this man sitting over here, who has repeatedly been permitted to insult the court, the jury and the attorneys?"

Henev at once took up the fray and shouted: "These are the ebullitions of a man who was appointed to office by the crookedest Mayor the city ever had."

"Why, you've been mixed up in more crooked work than any man in this courtroom," said Barrett.

Lawlor Defends Henev. "Mr. Henev has never insulted the court," thundered Judge Lawlor, sternly.

"He has certain temperamental qualities which I have observed and made allowance for. He was stricken down in this court while engaged in the performance of his duty, and resumed his activities at an early date. Mr. Henev is laboring under embarrassments which should appeal to the humanity of any individual. That circumstance appeals to the court if it does not appeal to counsel on the other side."

"I except to the remarks of the court," said Louis F. Byington, of the defense. Alexander S. King and A. A. Moors also excepted to the remarks of Judge Lawlor, who terminated a long wrangle by acknowledging responsibility for the remarks he had made, saying:

"If it becomes pertinent the court will make a statement covering the general subject involved in this exception."

A dozen witnesses were called to the stand during the prosecution, which refused to make any statement relative to the probable ending of the state's case.

James L. Gallagher, chief of the Board of Supervisors during the administration of Eugene Schmitz, told of incidents connected with the dynamiting of his home in Oakland during the month of March, 1908.

Miss Marion Doyle, a stenographer, employed by Burr, was called to the stand by a number of reports on jurors, alleged to have been stolen from the office of the prosecution. The witness declared she could distinguish the characteristic work of different typewriting machines.

When adjournment was reached Adam Dahler, acting treasurer of the United Railways Company, was telling of payments made to various agents.

LONDON, June 8.—The second meeting of the Imperial Press Conference was held here today under the presidency of Reginald McKenna, First Lord of the Admiralty. Foreign Secretary Sir Edward Grey also was present, and both Ministers spoke on the navy. "If the navy fails," declared the Foreign Secretary, "it will be useless to discuss any other subject."

He called attention to the serious tone taken by Lord Rosebery in his recent speech to the press, and said he endorsed every word of this address. Continuing, Sir Edward summed up the policy of the foreign office as follows: "To keep what we have got and to consolidate and develop; to quarrel as little as possible with peoples and to uphold in the present world the world of the Great Britain. With so much at stake, the maintenance of the navy must be the first view, not only for the home government but for all the self-governing dominions of the empire."

In conclusion the Foreign Secretary said the present excessive expenditures for armaments made the present weather sultry. Mr. McKenna also spoke in a serious strain. He declared he would assist the development of the local navies of the overseas dominions in every way in his power, as the maintenance of supremacy on any sea meant supremacy on all seas. He said he foresaw the possibility of the empire being called upon to unite its whole strength in the common defense of the home country.

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, Eugene, Or., June 8.—(Special.)—At the close of the college hour held at the university today resolutions were passed by the student body requiring hereafter that all freshmen wear green caps, and that no freshman appear in tuxedo or full-dress attire at any of the college social functions. The reasons given in the resolutions for this edict were twofold: First, that class distinction and class spirit seem to be on the wane; and second, that many freshmen are completely shut out of the social life of the university because of the rapidly growing custom of wearing full dress at the dances and receptions.

One of the main features of the college hour was the presentation of college emblems. The 11 men who received track O's for points gained this year were: O. R. Bean, manager; Oliver Huston, captain; McIntyre, Reid, Williams, Riddell, Bristol, Hawkins, Kellogg, McDaniel and Davis. Baseball emblems were given to Harold Coleman, Clark, Sullivan, Henkel, McKenzie, Jameson and Gabrielson.

For the first time in the history of the university the interstate debaters and orators were granted college emblems, nine men—Kilpatrick, Townsend, Bond, Williams, Nicholas, Lyons, Robison, Collier and Ray—receiving debate O's.

Benjamin H. Williams was installed in the presidency of the student body for the following year. The inauguration of the president-elect will hereafter annually take place at the college hour, just before commencement.

SHEEP COME TO FRONT

ing the Dingley duties. Referring to the fact that the Wyoming Senator is generally reputed to be the owner of a great many sheep, Dolliver declared that he was "the greatest shepherd since Abraham."

Disavowing the personal ownership of a single sheep, cow or horse, except a horse he keeps for personal use, Warren added that he was a stockholder in companies engaged in such industries, as he was in railroad companies.

Dolliver had read several memorials of carded wool manufacturers, asking for an ad valorem duty as the just method for protecting all parties interested in wools.

How Much Protection Wool Needs. Warren and Smoot maintained that the admission into this country of top waste and kindred wools supplanted just that amount of American wool. Warren insisted that wools and shoddy would come into the United States under the lower duty advocated by the Senator from Iowa.

Dolliver replied that it was better for people to have their clothing than no woolen clothing at all. Smoot declared that he knew the woolen industry had largely expired because of a change in fashion from woolen clothing.

Dolliver suggested the grading of duties on wool according to its shrinkage, maintaining that because such a method is not followed there is a wide inconsistency in charges paid by importers.

Fears Disaster in Conference. While declaring the wool schedule should be revised and asserting that he favored Dolliver's proposition, Carter said he did not think such a meeting should take place at this time because he feared it might meet disaster in conference.

Smoot declared Dolliver's amendment was impossible of administration, as all manufacturers want their wool in the grease and no two manufacturers scour their wool by the same process.

Nelson argued that the woolen schedule was the most ancient in the tariff and declared its ad valorem equivalent was higher than that of any other schedule. He said the entire woolen schedule should be readjusted because it discriminated against the woolgrower of the Mississippi Valley and in favor of the mountain sheep rancher.

Dolliver said it had been proved that the scouring contents of the wool could be determined by certain scientific tests.

Colloquy on Warren's Clothes. Standing near together, facing one another and frequently gesturing with a vigor, Dolliver and Warren carried on a colloquy for more than an hour, personally arguing out their differences on the woolen schedule. Declaring against the practice of assessing the woolen duty on the entire cloth, although it had only a small percentage of wool in it, Dolliver said he would propose a duty on the value of the wool in the cloth. Meeting this proposition, the Senator from Wyoming insisted that the small duty on a suit of clothing by the garments he wore, declaring that the cloth in them cost only $4, while the making cost $30 and the price $12. The duty on the $4 worth of cloth, he said, was trifling compared with the duty of the suit.

Limit Duty to 100 Per Cent. Declaring that he would ask the Senator from Wyoming to join him in voting for a provision that no duty in the pending bill should be more than 100 per cent, Dolliver said he wanted to "make ready for the fight that is coming against the Republican party and our tariff system."

Smoot, interposing, said that, while such a provision might appear reasonable, it had happened in the wool industry that the raw product had dropped to 5 and 6 cents a pound and in such case

FLAMES EAT UP TIMBER
VANCOUVER ISLAND TREES ARE IN SERIOUS DANGER.
Nothing Can Save Vast Tracts Only Recently Purchased by Michigan Men but Rain.
VICTORIA, B. C., June 8.—(Special.)—Despite the greater stringency of the law to prevent forest fires, the fire-covered mountains fringing Vancouver Island coast are blazing lines of flame at no fewer than four points between Victoria and Clayoquot.

The most serious fire at present is in the Jordan Meadow district, where large areas purchased only a few weeks ago by Michigan capitalists are now threatened with total destruction. A telegram from the Meadows says rain alone can save the entire tract. Near Qualicum a large area of pulp forest is reported burning and there are reports of fires from various other points, both coastal and inland.
Despite these fires, earlier than the usual epidemic of flame, this is the season of bush fires. The authorities believe the loss from this source will not be as heavy this year as in the past.
