Southern Pacific New Train Will Not Run Through to Seattle.

DENIES REPORT

Line Never Contemplated Running Train Beyond Portland, but Will Make Close Connections for Sound Cities.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 15 .- (Special.) -That the Shasta Limited, the new train that is to be haugurated com-mencing June 20 between San Francisco irain that is to be inaugurated commencing June 20 between San Francisco and Portland, will not run direct to Puget Sound is the flatfooted statement by E. E. Calvin, vice-president and general manager of the Pacific system of the Southern Pacific, this afternoon to a representative of The Oregonian Mr. Calvin says also that there was never any intention of running this limited train through to Seattle, although it is expected that fast train connections will be so that the passengers from San Francisco can leave Portland the same night for Puget Sound if they so desire.

"The Shasta Limited will run between San Francisco and Portland," was Mr. Calvin's statement. "No other plan was ever considered and no official announcement made that we would run this train through to Seattle. It is, of course, our intention to afford better facilities for people from California desiring to see the exposition in the Northwest, but we also desired to improve our service between this city and Portland. It will be the finest train ever operated on that system, and the time is such that people lose only one working day in reaching Portland from San Francisco. The service will commence June 20, the trains leaving San mence June 20, the trains leaving San San Francisco. The service will com-mence June 20, the trains leaving San Francisco at 6 o'clock and reaching Portland at 9 o'clock the following night."

SOME CARS MAY RUN THROUGH

Not Likely Southern Pacific Trains Will Go to Scattle.

By means of part of the equipment of the Shasta Limited, the new train from San Francisco to Portland, being carried on to Seattle, Portland and the Puget Sound cities will at once come into closer touch. As before announced in The Oregonian the Shasta Limited will The Oregonian the Shasta Limited will be inaugurated at San Francisco. June 29, and at Portland, June 22. It will make the run, if on schedule, in 27½ hours. Only first-class Pullman passengers will be carried. The present system of reservations will be carried out. Now reservations from Portland to San Francisco outnumber those from both Seattle and Tacoma and this propostion; is expected. Tacoma and this proportion is expected

Serious doubt prevails in local Harriman offices as to whether even a part of the train will be carried on to Seattle but the general impression is that at most a sleeper, observation car and diner will be carried, together with added local equipment for local service between the

Although the original announcement made was that the Shasta Limited would consideration of the shasta Limited would run through in part to Scattle, later consideration of the situation leads to a belief that the Puget Sound sleeper or sleepers will be connected to the Northern Pacific midnight train from Portland to Scattle. Desirable as extra service might be, it is considered that even the extra exposition business will service might be, it is consider even the extra exposition busing be heavy enough to warrant great part of the train's equipment being carried to the Sound. John M. Scott, assistant general passenger agent for the Harriman lines, said yesterday he had no information one way or the other. He was confident that General Manager O'Brien, on his return from Chicago Friday, would have all required instructions regarding the new service as well as that on the Clearwater Short Line.

When local passenger officials are not advised of any change in the previous routing of the train it is a safe indicarouting of the train it is a safe indica-tion no weighty change would be made. Mr. Scott said it was his belief that mat-ters would be conducted on the same scale as before, with the exception that part of the Southern Pacific train might be carried on to Seattle either by its own locometive or as an addition to the equipment of the Northern Pacific train. If any change at all to make it. any change at all is made, it se that the only likely one is that a new daily train will be installed between Portdaily train will be installed between role land and Seattle, although with the recent additions to the service made by the Northern Pacific, this seems to be extremely doubtful.

called in the interest of Mr. Gould. Mr. Shearn, for Mrs. Gould, objected to some of the questions, but Justice Dowling ruled that it was proper to have the habits of plaintiff, Mrs. Gould, proved. Malloy said he was given control of Castle Gould and estate.

"Did you go to Europe with Mrs. Gould?"

"Yes, I went on the Kalser Wilhelm der Grosse with Mrs. Gould and Mr. Sells on February 6." "How soon after you went to Castle lould did you see Mr. and Mrs. Gould on be estate?"

"Early in June, 1906."
"At what time at Castle Gould did you find Mrs. Gould under the influence of intoxication liquous ""

"I object," said Mr. Shearn, "and I want to argue this point. If the statements show that she was under the influence of liquor it would not give him any justification for shandonment."

Mr. Shearn then cited several authorities and a number of precedents, and there was considerable argument.

Mr. Shearn declared that even if the charges against Mrs. Gould were true they could not furnish ground for a separation.

Got Drunk, Abused Husband.

"Drunkenness, it has been held, has never justified abandonment," said Mr. Shearn. "Instead of drinking on the part of his wife making his abandonment more reasonable, it makes it but more repre-

Malloy, however, was permitted to tell of various instances when he said Mrs. Gould was intoxicated.
Referring to one of these occasions, counsel asked Malloy:

"Did you get close enough to smell her breath?" breath?"
"No, I did not get any nearer than I had to," said the witness.
On objection by Mr. Gould's counsel, the witness was not permitted to give details of many incidents which occurred at Castle Gould, the court holding them trivial and irrelevant and not tending to Later Malloy was allowed to tell of other occasions when Mrs. Gould, he said, had applied abusive epithets to him. She was under the influence of intoxicants, in his opinion, on these occasions. These were for the most part after the separation of Mr. and Mrs. Gould.

Called Gould Insolent Puppy.

The court held that proof could be offreed of continuing conditions which would constitute a reason for the husband to decline to live with his wife. "Allen" and "insolent puppy" were some of the epithets, Mr. Malloy testified Mrs.

On cross-examination Mr. Malloy was asked if he had not pressed Mr. Gould for a renewal of his contract as manager of Castle Gould at an increase in salary to $19,000 a year, about the time Mr. and Mrs. Gould separated. Malloy said he had made such an effort when Mrs. Gould told him he was discharged and he wanted to be sure of his status with his employer. He now had a contract with Mr. Gould at the $10,000 a year rate, but that fact did not influence his attitude towards the principals in the present suit, he said. He felt no animosity toward Mrs. Gould for her having treated him as she did, as he realized, he said, that she was in a state of intoxication when she acted and talked as he had testified. On cross-examination Mr. Malloy was Malloy mentioned an occasion when Mrs. Gould reprimanded him and then walked away, saying her walk was unusual, and that she fell against the window and "ricochetted against the banister." He said she had only a little while previously ordered him to little while previously ordered him to go outside and then had told him to come and sit on a lounge beside her. At this point Mr. Shearn interposed with a motion to have "all that struck out except 'allen' and 'insolent reating laughter, in which Mrs. Gould
