HENEY TALKS 12 HOURS, NOT TIRED

Closing Speech Against Calhoun Keeps Vast Crowd in Courtroom.

JURY WANTS TO HEAR ALL cutor Dissects Arguments of Moore and Flings Back Charge Class Prejudice-Case Goes to Jury Today.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 18 .- Making no concession to physical fatigue or no concession to physical fatigue or strain. Assistant District Attorney Francis J. Heney, after 12 hours of argument devoted to presentation of his case against President Patrick Calhoun, of the United Railroads, refused to curtail his discourse tonight and made necessary the first night seasion of the record-breaking trial. There was every reason to believe that the case would go to the jury tonight, until Judge William P. Lawlor made direct inquiry as to the time the prosecutor still required in which to bring his talk to a close. Mr. Hency refused to be restricted. He asked for another hour to determine his power of endurance, and when judge, jury and spectators were wearled he had to be reminded that his privilege had expired.

Jurors Want to Hear All.

Speaking from his seat in the jury box one of the men imprisoned since last March expressed his willingness to stay all night and hear the final word of argument. Another jurer—an older man—suggested to the court that Mr. Heney be given the additional hour he asked.

"The court will expect argument to be completed at 10:30 o'clock tomorrow morning," said Judge Lawlor, after ordering the night session, and unless there is an unexpected disagreement between court and counsel the jury will be given the case almost on the hour of 12 o'clock Saturday.

Intense Public Interest.

As the end of the trial draws near there is expressed in gathering crowds the public interest that has attended every important issue of the graft prosecution during the last three years. Men prominent in civic affairs and women whose places in society have previously given them undisputed entrance to every function, of whatever kind, stood in line for hours outside Carpenters' Hall today hearing Mr. Heney's voice, but unable to distinguish his words.

Packed in a narrow space beyond the last tier of scats, spectators who deemed themselves privileged stood through the final hours of argument, and beyond these were others who stood on tiptoe in the lobby and oraned their necks to catch a glimpse of the speaker, 100 feet away.

Strong Guard on Building.

The policemen and agents of the District Attorney's office in uniform and in plain clothes guarded the entrance to the building, regulated the incoming stream of spectators or sat in watchful attitude hear the inner rail, where Mr. Heney paced back and forth, as his argument proceeded. Editors, clergymen and the foremost adherents of the prosecution and defense hemmed of the prosecution and defense hemmed in the tables of the attorneys.

Patrick Calhoun gave his undiverted attention to Mr. Heney's address, and his attorneys, interrupting the speaker with a dozen objections to his accusations or inferences, furnished him cusations or inferences, furnished him it with several subjects for impromptu rejoinders.

Most unusual of the interruptions made to Mr. Heney's speech was the prosecutor's charge that Dr. W. B. Coffey, whier surgeon for the United Railroads, had attempted from his place behind the defondant to influence the action of the jury during the argument by holding his hands to his temple and smiling.

Dr. Coffey arose to address the court at this instant, saying:

"The reference is outrageous. I demand an apology from Mr. Heney."

"You won't get it," said the prosecutor.

"I deserve one, because I am a gentleman and you are not," said Dr. Coffey sanding to confront Mr. Heney.

Judge Lawlor requested Dr. Coffey to sit down and ordered Mr. Heney to proceed.

Ridicules Moore's Argument.

Mr. Hency ridiculed the theory advanced by A. A. Moore in the latter's closing argument that Tirey L. Ford, of the United Rallroads, had paid a fee to Abraham Ruef, and that the supervisors had extorted the money they received from the former boss and not from the defendant. "It is fabricated evidence," said Mr.

"It is fabricated evidence," said Mr. Heney. "It shows the guilt of the defendant, even hypothetically to admit so much as that. They ask you to believe, as a reasonable hypothesis, that Ford paid $50,000 to Ruef as a fee, and that the greedy supervisors exterted $85,000 from poor Abraham Ruef, with a net loss to the boss of $35,000. Why, it is an insult to your intelligence. Even a half-witted person would know it for what it is.

Even a half-witted person would know it for what it is.
"Mr. Moore presented to you matter of this sort with a certainty and confidence for which I cannot account. I therefore rely upon your honesty or your intelli-

There was a prolonged wrangle and There was a prolonged wrangle and several further interruptions to the argument when Mr. Heney went into the matter of class prejudice, which Mr. Moore had asked the jury to ignore.

"Is there anything here?" asked Mr. Heney, "that leads to a belief that Rudolph Spreckels was perjuring himself when he told you of the time that Patrick Calhoun offered, to move a railroad off Pacific avenue, where Mr. Spreckels lived?

Class Prejudice Shown.

"Well, this was an appeal to the class projudice of Mr. Spreckels by the defendant. Mr. Moore blew hot and cold on this subject as his subjects required.

"Mr. Moors would rather be called dishonest than be called a bootblack, because he said his gorge had risen at the suggestion of performing menial service. I would rather be a bootblack than be called dishonest but Mr. Moore considers the bootblack, even though honest, so far beneath him that he will not be compared to one. Talk about class prejudice. Why, he is steeped in it.

"It did not take three months to try "It did not take three months to try Michael Coffey, the Supervisor, nor did it take two months more to convict him of accepting a bribe in this very trolley matter. That was a matter of class distinction. Coffey did not have money enough to obstruct justice. He was convicted on the same testimony offered here, including the testimony of James L. Gallagher."

There was a chorus of protest from the defendant's attorneys, who charged that Mr. Heney was again guilty of error in making such reference.

Judge Lawlor, after examination of the record, instructed the jury to distregard the remark, but not until Mr. Heney and Mr. King and Stanley Moore had indulged in flat contradictions.

Charge Ruef Held Up Calhoun.

"You have repeatedly charged that my father declared Mr. Calhoun was not held up," said Stanley Moore, inaugurating one of the wrangles that occurred during the day. "Well, he did," said Mr. Heney. "He

"Well, he did," said Mr. Heney. "He was careful to declare without qualification that Patrick Calhoun was not held up by Abraham Ruef. That was for publication by the newspapers, to he read by Ruef in his cell at the County Jail, so that he would not get the idea that he might want to testify again. They did not dare to go too far and say that Ruef held up Calhoun, because Ruef might come here and tell what he knows of the so-called holdup.

"The fighting Mr. Calhoun, who would not suffer the opposition of Mr. Spreckels; who would not allow the demands of the carmen, but destroyed their union—the who would not allow the demands of the carmen, but destroyed their union—the fighting Mr. Calboun did not allow that curly-headed rascal to hold him up. It was not in the proud spirit of Mr. Calboun to permit any such thing. He was one of the class that has for its motto millions for defense, but not one cent for tribute—until they are indicted, and then the millions flow, as they have flowed here.

Could Have Wiped Out Ruef.

Could Have Wiped Out Ruef.

"Do you suppose that if the gas and telephone and railroad officials had been invited to yield tribute and had joined hands Ruef would have been able to held them up? Don't you know that if they had determined to spend what they spent for these privileges in the municipal election they could have wiped out Ruef. Schmitz and their administration?

"But they preferred to join hands with the crooks of the tenderioin, who also wanted special privileges. They were willing to pay out as tribute a small part of the millions they reaped through increased gas, telephone and other rates."

One of the incidents of the day was the arrival of a woman who bore an elaborate basket of roses and who remained in front of the courtroom over an hour, awaiting Calhoun's return from lunch. As the automobile of the railroad president arrived the woman transferred the basket to be force.

rallroad president arrived the woman transferred the basket to her 5-year-old daughter, who presented the flowers to Calhoun. The defendant thanked the donors and placed the basket in his

ELIOT'S "FIVE-FOOT SHELF" OF BOOKS ABOUT FULL.

Bible Is Not Included and Shakespeare Also Is Missing From List as Eliot Compiles It.

NEW YORK, June 18 -- (Special.)-The NEW YORK, June 18.—(Special.)—The first list of books which ex-President Ellot, of Harvard, announced would adorn his five-foot shelf were not generally published. The entire list has not yet been announced, but there is not much room left on the five-foot shelf, and the addition will be awaited with interest.

interest.

The first list is as follows: "Autoblog-raphy of Benjamin Franklin": "Journal of John Woolman"; "Fruits of Solitude," by William Penn; Bacon's "Essays" and "New Amantis"; Milton's Areopagitica" and "Traotate on Education": Sir Thomas Browne's "Religio Medici"; Plato's "Apology," "Phaedo," and "Crito": "Golden Sayings of Epictetus"; "Meditations of Marcus Aurelius"; Emerson's "Essays"; Emerson's "English Traits"; the complete poems of Milton.

ELIOT BOOKS ARE UNPOPULAR

Only Four Read by Gotham People. Bible and Shakespeare Left Out.

NEW YORK, June 18,-The failure of ices, furnished him | Dr. Charles W. Ellot, recently Dr. Charles W. Ellot, recently president of Harvard College, to include the Bible and Shakespeare in a list of 25 books for the liberal education of any man, is causing much comment in literary and religious circles. Heretofore no educator has published a list of liberal reading without incorporating these works. Few of the books mentioned by Dr. Ellot are popular with public library readers, apparently. Reports show that in the month of April there were 25,100 readers at the Astor and Lenox libraries in this city. There were Lenox libraries in this city. There were also 632,438 readers to take books home from the various branch libraries, and 47,905 readers who use books at the branches. In that immense total there are only four books on Dr. Eliot's list for which there is any considerable demand. They are the autobiographies of Benjamin Franklin, Adam Smith's Nations," Emerson's essays and Bacon's

SHOT DEAD BY MEXICAN

Well-Known Arizona Citizen Assassinated While Prospecting.

YUMA, Ariz., June 18.-A shooting affray near Liguerta, a small station in the Fortuna Mountains, in which Peter Hodges, a member of one of the oldest and best-known families in this section, is supposed to have been killed and one other man wounded, is reported here to-other man wounded, is reported here to-day.

Mr. Hodges, accompanied by two Mexi-cans, Manuel Arviso and Francisco Mar-quez, left here four days ago on a pros-pecting trip, intending to visit the For-tuna range where Marquez was supposed to know of a rich prospect. Today Ar-viso arrived from Wellton suffering from a bullet wound in the side. He said the three men reached the mountains and a bullet wound in the side. He said the three men reached the mountains and found no sign of a mine. Marquez took a Winchester rifle and went apparently to hunt wiid sheep. A little later a shot was heard and Hodges went to investigate. Two more shots were fired and Arviss says he was suddenly confronted by Marquez, who fired at him from behind a boulder, wounding him in the side. He escaped to their camp, mounted a horse and rode to Wellton,

A party of Hodges' friends was organized and started for the scene of the shooting.

ROBBERS SHOOT DEPUTY

Men Who Held Up Freight Fight Desperately to Escape.

MUSKOGEE, Okia., June 18.—In a battle between officers and three train robbers who held up a St. Louis, Iron Mountain & Southern freight train near Bragg. Okia., early today, Deputy Constable Johnson Kirk was killed.

Paul Williams, one of the robbers, was shot through the breast and captured. The other two robbers escaped and a prosent is in pursuit.

The object of the robbers was to get the money of the train crew, who had just received their pay envelopes. The rallroad men resisted the robbers and the sounds of firing soon brought Deputy Constable Wucks to the scene.
