

OLYMPIA, Wash., June 23.-(Special.)-A. S. Ruth, of Olympia, and Leo O. Meigs, of North Yakima, presiding officers of the Senate and House respectively, in the last regular session, won on organization of the special session this afternoon, th former without a spectacular fight, but the latter only after scorching debate that exceeded in heat anything witnessed i

he recent stormy Legislature. Claiming the office of Speaker without the necessity of a vote and arbitrarily acting as preaiding officer. Meigar rul ings were hissed and condemned as "highhanded outrages" by the supporters of J W. Slayden, of Tacoma, and the invective became so bitter that finally Meign, to restore harmony, tendered his resignation. This resignation the House refused accept by a vote of 45 to 43. During the discussion acts of Governor Hay were dragged in and he was characterized as a "self-constituted dictator of the state."

House Vetoes Postponed.

The Legislature so far has organized, received the Governor's message recommanding the ousting of J. H. Schively, Insurance Commissioner, and a' continuance of the graft investigation and has adjourned until tomorrow morning. Neither house has adopted a resolution limiting the legislation t natters germans to investigation, but th House has postopend consideration of th Governor's vetoes of House measure until a fixed date in the regular session Fort Worden Gunners Hit Bullseye of 1911. The Senate vetoed bills are a special order for tomorrow.

Buch is the brief history of the first day of the special session of the 11th Washington Legislature.

In the House Speaker Meigs, of the regular session, called the body to order and after the preliminaries of swearing in two new Democratic members, Hanna of Douglas and Huffman of Grant, Meigs relinquished the chair to Bell of Pierce County.

Prior to the convening of the House, 11 of the supporters of J. W. Slayden. of Pierce, had caucused under a call pledging them to the "shortest session possible and the continuation of the investigating committee." With these 41 and two others unnamed Slayden claimed a majority of the Republican members. His followers had persuaded the eight Democratic members to caucus, and it was the Slayden expectation that the Democrats would center on Edge of Spokane. With a majority of the Republican members, but lacking four votes to elect. Slayden expected to hammer down the Meigs following on strict party lines.

The Meigs support gained the floor first, however, when Bell assumed the chair, and F. C. Jackson, of King, offered a resolution retaining the Speaker, Chief Clerk and Sergeant-at-Arms of the regular session in office.

Resolution Brings Bitterness.

This resolution brought out the first bitterness of the session. Ole Hanson, a supporter of Meigs in the regular session, but now opposed to him, characterized the resolution as cowardly. Hanso declared he wanted a clean-cut vote o the Speakership, as he desired to tell why he would not vote for Meigs.

Beach of Mason declared that a majority of the House members had caucused and decided upon a Speaker; that the Republican party was hig enough to clean fts own house, that the Democrata could support their own candidate the event of a clean-cut contest and that resolution was an attempt to evict
