Work on East Stark Street. The contractor for the improvement of East Stark street, between East Twentieth and East Forty-first, has a steam shovel at work from East Twentieth street. Complaints have been made of delay on this improvement from Sunnyside, Montavilla and Mount Tabor. East Stark street being an extension of the Base Line road, usually carries a heavy travel, but is now torn up for the entire distance causing great hardship to the public. The contractor has until November to complete the improvement and says he will take the entire time for the work. If several blocks west from East Fortieth street were completed so travel could reach Sunnyside it would remove cause for complaint by providing access to Portland. Cause Driver May Be Pardones. H

CRUEL DRIVER MAY BE PARDONED.—H.

I likin, a fruit vender who was sentenced to 60 days imprisonment by Justice Olson ten days ago for cruelty to his house, will in all probability be pardoned, after is days have expired, by Governor Benson. A letter was received from Governor Benson yesterday at the District Attorney's office and Frank D. Hennessy wrote a recommendation that the pardon be granted. Justice Olson severely arraigned the man for his cruelty and gave him the full imprisonment limit of the law. The sentence is the longest on record for a similar offense. The basis upon which pardon is being sought is the fact that likin's family, consisting of a wife and mother, both of whom are invalids, are in destitute circumstances.

RECEIVER OF DEFUNCT LA GRANDE BANK SUES.

Asa B. Thompson, ex-Receiver of Land Office, on Trial in Federal Court.

Judge C. E. Wolverton yesterday heard the case of Walter Neidner, receiver of the Farmers' & Traders' National Bank, of La Grande, Or., against Asa B. Thompson, ex-receiver of the United States Land Office at La Grande, to compel him to pay a note of $6009 he is alleged to have given the bank August 3, 1903.

August 3, 1902.

A significant circumstance in connection with the case is the fact that the note has been lost. According to the opening statement of Frederick Bausman, of Seattle, counsel for Neidner, the note was given by Thompson to ward off the suspicious of the bank examiner, who was aminer, who was sent to La Grande about that time to investigate the bank's affairs, for the Controller of the Treasury Department, and later abstracted from the paying teller by Thompson through false representations.

Inompson through false representations.

Mr. Bausman declared that a conspiracy had long existed between J. W. Scriber, ex-cashier of the bank, and Thompson and that S. W. Spencer, of I.a Grande, was an accompilice in the scheme to defraud the Government of lands. Spencer, he declared, was merely a go-between in the fradulent undertaking and both he and Thompson each gave his note for $6000 to the bank to carry their overdrafts and make it appear that these assets were part of the legitimate collaterals in order to deceive the bank examiner.

Colonel J. H. Raley, of Pendleton, one of Thompson's attorneys, ridiculed the idea of conspiracy or fraud and declared his cilent was not indebted to the bank.

Guy E. McCullough, teller of the Guy E. McCullough, teller of the bank, was the first witness for Receiver Neidner. He related the circumstances of the notes given by Thompson and Spencer and how Thompson's note became lost. According to his testimony, it was only after considerable persuasion that he consented to let Thompson keep the note until the inspector of the bank had left. But he did not return it, notwithstanding the demands made by himself (McCullough) and Scriber. The only documentary evidence to show that Thompson ever gave the note were the bank notes, showing the written record of the transaction by the bookkeeper. Guy E. McCullough, teller of the by the bookkeeper.

Scriber is now under indictment by the Federal grand jury for his part in the alleged wrecking of the La Grande bank, which was closed October 10, 1908, under orders from the Controller of the Treasury. Receiver Neidner is represented by Frederick Bausman and R. P. Oldham, of Seattle, while Raley, Richards & Raley, of Pendleton, appear for Thompson.
