CHOICE FRUIT LAND.

If you are on the market for some choice fruit land that is convenient to Portland, we have several hundred acres for sale at prices ranging from $30 per acre up. It is in the Firwood fruit belt, on the line of the survey of Mt. Hood Electric Raliroad, some 30 miles southeasterly from the city, in Clackamas County. This region is conceiled by those that know, practical orchardists, to be the equal of Hood River or say other of the older fruit sections, especially for raising first-grade apples. It has the soil, which is a shot loam with clay subsoil, free from rock or gravel, watered by numerous creeks and just the proper altitude, some 1200 feet elevation, a very essential feature in apple-raising; all go to make this an ideal fruit belt that is now for the first time demanding the attention of practical horticulturists, two of whom have just bought and will each put out large commercial apple orchards.

For full information, etc., call, and if you wish to see, our auto will land you on the property inside of two hours.
