Standing of the Clubs

BY WILL G. MAC RAE. Portland 1, Seattle 0.

An ace in the hole is worth nine goose eggs in a basket in any old market in balldom. Mr. Underhand Shooter Gough pitched the Colts to victory yesterday afternoon, slipping one over on Mr. Gus Thompson, Seattle's chief hurler, and mightily pleasing sev eral hundred feminine fans and a goodly sprinkling of males. Mr. Gough and his stable mates pitched off the victory by the tightest squeeze possible on the diamond, and while one run was the sum total of Casey's endeavor, the Turks failed to dust Portland's doorstep with a single man.

The game was a remarkable one from the viewpoint, not only of the dopester, but also from any old angle it is viewed from. Although Dugdale's people managed to ram out three neat binglets and accepted five passes, one with malice aforethought presented to Capron in the sixth, when the bases were populated with two Turks, none of the hits or passes cut a figure in the general result. Mr. Thompson was equally generous with his hits as Gough, and the best Portland could do to his offering was three biffs and a well and perfectly executed squeeze play, pulled eff by the Demon of Bloody Run, Ken-

This joyous and yelp-calling inning was our time in the seventh. All of the flower and a greater part of the manhood present rose to their collective trilbies, turned around and sat down for the big thing to land on the job. It did. Cooney beat out a bunt, but was forced at second on Bassey's attempted sacrifice. Bassey was safe. Mr. Thompson balked and threw to first to catch the Count, but he was winging and just did slide into second before Magee could relay the ball on its death message. Casey's poke was foozled by Raymond, and the fumble planted Bassey on third. Then Kennedy Bassey on third. Then Kennedy squeezed the one run necessary home, and was only caught at first by a gnat's whisker. Seaton was called upon to run for Casey and, although his attempted larceny of third caused Mr. Thompson to commit a very palpable balk, the ump did not allow it, and the

In the eighth Mr. Gough yanked himself out of an ambush of his and the unip's making. Seaton, who had taken Manager Lynch's place because the ump had ordered him out of the fray, walked, and so did Frisk. Capron, whom Casey has walked three times in the last two sames loomed to microscipthe last two games, loomed up mighty dangerous, but his pelt landed in Mr. Gough's waiting digits, and Seaton died at third. Allen lofted to Adams, and Jimmy, hearing Cooney's call for a double, whipped the ball to Kennedy in time to nail Capron before he could get back to cover. The sixth was another Inring in which the Turks were troublesome, but Cooney's brilliant stop of Allen's wallop and a bit of weird baserunning by the Turks beloed a lot anyway it was a great game. Just as good as any of your Class AA birds can furnish, even if the label carries the Class B brand. So here's the score: SEATTLE. Magee, 1b ...... 4 0 0 11 0 0 Raymond, ss ..... 4 0 1 1 2 0

LOS ANGELES, Cal., July 9 .- (Special.)—The Beavers might have done a fine piece of business by turning Heaver Willetts over on his side and out of the team, but from the noise he made yesterday in flinging against his old club, McCredie could have done worse than let him slide, for with the exception of two rounds he made Mc-Credle's men look like the colored giants playing Chicago.

In those two rounds, however, the other fellows grabbed all the runs they needed. For seven innings but one of them reached second base, and two minutes after he landed there he was grabbed out one of the content field. loubled out on a fly to center field. This is heaving some, but it was all a joke compared to what happened in the third and fourth innings, and had not Willetts been against the best heaver McCredle has, the chances are there would have been a dozen differ-ent things to talk about after the game. Graney was there all the time, and the fellows behind him gave the best they had in the way of support and were always ready to grab everything.

The flinging was so good that the Beavers had no chance to do any fancy stunts, for their work was all very easy. On the other side, they kept the "Perhaps-fielders" on the run, Martinke alone having no less than seven outs in left field, and two of these were long running grabs that brought howls of delight from the fans. Outfielder Crocker, whom Dugdale has been carrying on his payroll since the season opened, will join Casey's squad either today or tomorrow. Crocker is a righthander and is a smashing good player. He must have the goods or Dugdale would not have held to him so long.

Cooney's two stops electrified the crowd yesterday afternoon. He speared one with his meat hand just as it was making a get away over second and he put end get away over second and he put enough on the ball to get it to Kennedy at first in time to nip Raymond. His other stop came in the seventh. In retrieving Allen's poke, he slipped. He sat on his hinge and threw Allen out at first.

Gus Thrompson was sure facing the batter and in motion to deliver the ball when Seaton, running for Casey, started to steal third. The umpire refused to listen to the call of a balk.

Did D. E. Dugdale offer to bet a suit of clothes that his Turks would take the series from the Colts, or were those seated nearby just dreaming they heard seated nearby just dreaming they heard the remark? JOHN BERG BEATS TURK

DECISIVE WINNER IN SQUARE WRESTLING MATCH.

Gets First and Third Falls in Ferocious Contest-Police Interfere Twice.

BY WILL G. MAC RAE. grappling matches ever seen in Portland, and one that from every angle was on the level, last night defeated big Yousiff, winning the first fall after 1 hour 10 min-utes and 3½ seconds, and the third fall in 2 minutes and 27 seconds. The second fall, a whirlwind affair, was won by the Turk after I minute and 3914 seconds of matches that had been doled out to the public during last Winter, lovers of the The single sculler, wearing the white they would have paid in and for once gone home saying, as those who saw Berg beat the Turk did, that at last

The moment Berg and the Turk grap-pled signs of a great battle were evi-dent. Just how and why the pair of pied signs of a great battle were evident. Just how and why the pair of grapplers managed to work up so much hostility is not known, but before they had been hooked up more than a few seconds, even the most skeptical were satisfied both men were out to win. Both wrestlers gave an exhibition of roughing it that put the crowd on its mettle, and not only did they see some blee close. not only did they see some high-class wrestling, but also they saw the police take possession of the ring several times. and they witnessed an exchange of wal-lops that warmed the cockles of the hearts of the fight fans present.

Berg Gets Best of Rough House.

When it came to roughing it, the Turk when it came to roughing it, the Turk was the leader, but each time he started a rough house Berg came out on top. The Turk failed to realize, or wasn't there to care, that when he had forced Berg off the mat he was to stop. Once in the first bout he got Berg off the canvas and began slugging. He punched Berg several image and helf a deeper roller had be eral times and half a dozen police had to pry them apart.

A second siugging match was a pretty half round. Yousin led off with a right for the jaw and missed, the wallop landing on Berg's chest right under the jaw. It was no slap on the wrist, and it sounded as if the Turk had hit the head of a drum. Quick as a flash Berg's left shot out. His aim was good and the shot out. His aim was good and the kick hit the Turk flush on the ear and jaw, and he fell as if he had been hit on the head with an ax. When the 185 pounds of muscle and bone hit the canvas it jarred the whole building. What might have happened to the Turk hadn't the police again invaded the since the police again invaded the ring, would have been nice telling.

In addition to the slugging, Berg gave a demonstration of Turk nose-smashing and smearing that messed up Yousiff's features a lot, and once Berg his head back and caught the Turk flush on the beak. This hurt a lot also.

Cradle Hold Gets First.

Berg gained his first fall with the cradle hold, or as it is sometimes known, the jackknife hold. During the long bout, both grapplers supped out of many pun-ishing holds. Berg at all times was the aggressor, and while he was on top most of the time, the Turk also did plenty of work from the top. Many times during the long hour, Berg got Yousiff in chancery and he punished the Turk severely with numerous toe holds. Once Berg had with numerous toe holds. Once Berg had the Turk's shoulders within a couple of inches of the canvas. He put on a toe hold that made the bull-like Turk writhe in agony. His face was hideous and distorted, and his body, that portion of it that was trying to keep off the canvas, twisted and lashed about like the tall of a lion at bay. The referee, Joe Acton, fearing that Berg might cripple the Turk, asked him if he wanted to yield the fall, but the Turk barked his refusal, and then, like a mighty giant, his flanks collapsing like a bellows, slowly ground himself out of punishment. The fall came quickly after Berg secured his hold. He trussed the Turk up in something that resembled a bow-knot and then slammed his shoulders to the mat.

Second Fall Fast One. The second fall came so soon it almost ook the breath of the spectators. Yousiff charged Berg like a bull elephant on the rampage. In his maniac rush he literally carried Berg off his fest as if he had been hit by a cyclone. At that, the fall was a lucky one. Yousiff threw Berg with violence, and as he fell on top, he planted his knee on Berg's injured ankle. Like a flash, the hunking Turk slipped a hip-lock on Berg and pinned his shoulders to the mat. Berg's leg was so badly hurt he did not get up for several seconds. He was still limping when he entered the ring after a 10-minute rest. This fall came much after the manner of the second. The pair were up and down several times during the two minutes of wrestling, with Berg again the aggressor. wrestling, with Berg again the aggressor, Berg finally managed to get the Turk's legs in both arms during an exchange of holds, and quickly slipping his arms to the body, held the Turk's shoulders squarely to the mat, not only once, but three times before Referee Acton could get up to tan him on the back get up to tap him on the back.

The preliminary bout was won by Chick Merrill. He defeated Arndt in two straight falls. Arndt was sick and did not make much of a showing. Before and during the bouts challenges flew thick and fast and Strangler Smith and Merrick said something about wrestling for a side bet. Ed Kennedy, Casey's first baseman, was Berg's second
