

TAMMANY GIVES REFORMERS JUMP

Scalping of Bingham Brings New York Police Into Politics Again.

THAT PORTENDS DEFEAT

McCarren Now Controls Police and Tammany Only Gets Discredit. Gaylor for Mayor Does Not Please Tiger.

BY LEONARD F. LONGBERG. NEW YORK, July 9. (Special.)—The various organizations that are fighting Tammany are in a highly delighted state. For Mayor McCarren has played into their hands by dragging the police back into politics.

Ever since the day that poor, explosive General Bingham was kicked into obscurity, the indignation of the populace has increased in violence. Every New York morning and evening paper has taken a shot at the Mayor, who has hastily galloped from town on a "wooden horse."

At the present moment Senator Patrick H. McCarren, the long, lean, silent boss of Brooklyn, is the police department of Greater New York. And this is a fact nobody who has seen the conditions will feel called upon to deny.

McCarren Controls Police. Commissioner William F. Baker is McCarren's protégé. He has been in public life ever since he could vote, and has owed his successive promotions to the Brooklyn organization.

Small Gain for Tammany. The ousting of Bingham will aid McCarren in his primary fights, for the man who swings the police can generally rely upon organization support. But so far as the great mass of independent voters are concerned, it is they who decide the election.

Good Tammany men are complaining that they get mighty little, except discredit, out of the present Tammany man who has been promoted because of the retirement of Bingham as Inspector Kelly, who is made "Inspector at Large," attached to the Mayor's office, and given authority to investigate all complaints that may be sent to headquarters.

But we don't want complaints," protested one disgruntled Murphy leader. "We want the jobs, the power and the war cry, and all of these are now in the possession of McCarren. This talk about the police department being run from the Mayor's office is all rot. Kelly is simply a high-class office boy. The real boss at present is the Clarendon Hotel, Brooklyn, and his name is Pat McCarren."

Bingham Will Fight Tammany. Reform leaders expect that General Bingham, who is now in Nova Scotia, will be one of the most valuable speakers on the stump this fall. He has already agreed to speak. In fact, before he went away he said in the course of an interview:

"I am going to take a good long rest, but I promise the people of New York that I will be back in the Fall, and they will know I am here, and the politicians will know it, too."

"I am going to tell the people what I know, and will speak from the back of trucks if necessary. There are a lot of inside facts which will prove mighty interesting. Yes, I am certain the people will want to hear me when I start talking."

McCarren engineered the whole business. It is about time for little old New York to wake up and watch McCarren. He has the police department now. Give him the Mayor—Governor or anybody else—and see what he will do to the city."

Gaylor Stock Booming. Of course recent happenings have boomed Gaylor's stock, and he is now the leading candidate for Mayor. In fact, the "Gaylor tip" is being freely circulated everywhere. Within the last few days, however, several of the judge's personal friends, who have been active workers, have quieted down and privately confessed that they "don't know whether the old man would make the job or not. One man who is admittedly close to Gaylor says that he thinks his friend will remain on the bench for another year."

"The judge was after Bingham's scalp, and he got it," declares this man, "but he and all his friends are surprised at the way the public took it. We had been convinced that there was a strong public sentiment against Bingham, but the way the newspapers have shouted has convinced us that we were wrong."

Bingham, as Commissioner, was hot-headed, dictatorial, and prone to heavy and ill-considered action. But nobody has ever intimated that he was dishonest, and the way he went out of office with colors flying and shouting defiance at the Mayor has made him many friends."

Then McCarren's work was coarse. He ordered Duffy's picture out of the judge's gallery, which was all right. But he accompanied this act with numerous offensive directions, which no self-respecting man would stand."

"I am afraid that the net result of this affair will be to make it the hardest

DEVOTE DAY TO OUTING

EXCURSIONS FOR EPWORTH DELEGATES TODAY. Bishop Smith, of Portland, Leads Night Session in Convention in Seattle.

SEATTLE, July 9.—The delegates to the international convention of the Epworth League spent much time today preparing for the steamboat excursion for tomorrow, when there will be no meetings. The Kansas delegates will help celebrate their state's day at the world's fair, where Bishop William A. Quayle, of the Epworth president, will be the principal speaker.

All the meetings today discussed methods of league work. At the hotel afternoon session, Dr. H. I. Rasmus, of Spokane, led the devotions. Dr. Franklin Hamilton, chancellor of the American University, Washington, D. C., and Dr. Charles Edward Locke, of Los Angeles, discussed "The Call." Under the topic "The Equipment" Dr. E. C. McVay, of St. Louis, spoke on "Instrumentalities"; Dr. George P. Mains, of New York, publishing agent, spoke on "Books and Literature"; Dr. Stephen Herben, editor of the Epworth Herald, of Chicago, spoke on "Periodicals"; and Rev. R. D. Hamilton, of Litchwell, Ont., spoke on "Personal Training." The topic "The Service" was treated by Professor J. McHenry Jones, of Charleston, W. Va., president of West Virginia Collegiate Institute, and Dr. Edwin A. Schell, of Mount Pleasant, Ia., president of Iowa Wesleyan University.

The night session was presided over by Bishop Charles W. Smith, of Portland, Or. Rev. E. H. Mowbr, of the same city, led the devotions and the addresses were by the general secretaries of the three affiliated leagues—Dr. Du Bois, of Nashville, for the Church South; Rev. S. T. Bartlett, of Toronto, for Canada, and Dr. Edwin M. Randall, of Chicago, for the Methodist Episcopal Church.

The woman's attorney offered testimony in the form of letters of introduction given Mrs. de Noie some four years ago by Governor Frank Murphy, Speaker of the

FULLER GREW 'FULLER'

SAD CLIMAX TO ROMANCE OF PRINTER AND EDITOR. Introduction Obtained Through "Bureau" Results in Marriage, "Spree," Desertion and Jail.

THE DALLAS, Or., July 9.—(Special.)—Frank Fuller, printer, editor, sideshow "attraction," and a bridegroom since last Saturday, is today mourning the loss of his bride and storming against a cruel fate that leaves him stranded penniless among strangers. About a year ago, at the time he was employed on a Burns, Harney County, California, vowing never to see Fuller again, Fuller struck up a correspondence acquaintance with Mrs. Ellen Robblee, of California, through a matrimonial bureau. After the exchange of many burning messages of love they decided to meet in Portland and be made one, which plan resulted in their marriage last Saturday. Mrs. Fuller had money, and Fuller had an inclination to spend it, which was all very well until Fuller got full and then fell. The bridegroom's tumble from the water wagon was forgiven on his solemn promise never to imbibe again. On their arrival in this city Tuesday, Mrs. Fuller was left to while away the time in the hotel while her husband looked up some old friends, taking a watch and $50 of the bride's money with him for safe keeping. After waiting until yesterday morning for her lord and master's return, Mrs. Fuller started in search of him and discovered he was further than before. The police were appealed to and the groom's celebration ended with his incarceration in the city jail, where he was relieved of $50, all that remained of the $50, and the watch, by the frat wife. Mrs. Fuller left yesterday afternoon for California, vowing never to see Fuller again. Fuller was arraigned in Police COURT THIS MORNING AND FINED $5 BY RECORDER DAVIS.

Ford automobile No. 2, B. W. Scott, driver, and C. J. Smith, machinist, which made the distance from New York to Seattle in 20 days and 32 minutes, reached Vancouver at 3 o'clock this evening on the return to New York via Los Angeles. If the weather is good, Driver Scott expects to try for the record from Los Angeles across the continent. The car met with no mishaps from Seattle and will stay in Portland tomorrow.
