SEATTLE, Wash., July 9 .- (Special.)-With a bump and a crash, to which fightened passengers added their screams of terror, the old paddle-wheel steamer Yosemite brought up on Rock Point, in the narrows, close to the entrance of Port Washington Bay, at 6 o'clock tonight. A sharp rock crushed through the timbers of the aged craft's hull and there she hangs in a precarious position. The mishap was the finale of an afterson of pleasure and is the end of the well-known veteran which for 47 years has plied in Pacific waters.

A jagged hole was torn in the bottom. Water rushed in like a mill race, driving the engine room crew to the decks. Passengers were more frightened when the timbers grated on the harsh rocks as the old vessel reeled and pitched. Suddenly to steamer listed to port and settled. adding to the ferror. The steamers Norwood, Trans-port and Inland Flyer soon came along-side, taking off the excursionists and some of the crew. The Yosemite had been cruising about Port Orchard and was returning to Se-atile. When near Port Washington, the strong tidal current in the narrows car-ried the steamer out of her course. She failed to respond to the helm, and made straight for the reef at Rock Point. The Yosemite belongs to C. D. Hillman, of this city, and was valued at $50,000. She was built in San Francisco in 1862.
