Jeems Wiggs, elongated and all that, but sometimes referred to as the madame from the cabbage patch, put it all over the Portland team yesterday, fanning it batsmen and allowing only two hits. Even at that it took a fierce decision by Umpire Van Haltren, in calling Cameron safe at the plate in the second inning, to pull things Oakland's way.

Jesse Garrett was opposed to the lanky chap, who was known as the star "grasshopper" a few seasons ago, and had Jesse been tendered an even break on the "umpiratical" decisions, he would have gotten away with a fie at the worst. However, Van Haltren left his specks somewhere, and when Don Cameron arrived at the plate, standing up to be touched by Gus Fisher, Van hesitated some few seconds, and figuring that Oakland needed a run or so, he finally signalled that the tall first sacker was all to the good at the register.

Of course, in view of Wiggs great pitchnalled that the tall first sacker was all to the good at the register.

Of course, in view of Wiggs great pitch-ing. Oakland was really entitled to the game, still it would be much more satis-factory if the visiting club would earn decisions and not be favored by the umps in so giaring a manner. Had Cameron seen fit to silde, the play might have been close securit to warrant giving him the seen at to side, the play might have been close enough to warrant giving him the benefit, but he didn't and therefore should have been called out. As this would have made the third out, the other run scored that inning would still be due.

With two men out in the eighth Oak-land put over a legitimate run, when Carrell singled and stole second, acoring a moment later on Duffy Lewis' single over second base. In the ninth, Olson led off for Portland by finding Wiggs for a single, the second allowed by the tall chap in the game. Speas was soaked on the arm by a wild shoot, and Ryan's bunt advanced both runners. McCredle hit to McKune, and while being tossed out at first, Olson saved Portland a shutout by first, Olson saved Portland a shutout by negotiating the register.

Aside from Wiggs' pitching there were few features, for the tall chap hogged all the marbles when it came to being the show. Dick Breen was incapacitated yesterday, and Howard Guyn did the honors

Graney is slated to pitch today, while Soice will twirl for Oakland, unless Billy Reidy decides to take a fling at pitching because of the presence of the ladies. The official score of yesterday's game

EACH WANTS FIRST CHANCE AT ROLLER IN MATCH.

Interest Attaches to Event When Seattle Man Will Try to Throw Two in 75 Minutes.

Jack Curiey, the Scattle promoter, is hought to have done a good piece of usiness when he signed Dr. B. F. Roller, the Seattle physician, Charley Olson, th the Seattle physician, Charley Olson, the light-heavyweight champion of the world, and John Berg, the European light-heavyweight champion, for the wrestling show in the Exposition rink next Wednesday night. By the terms of the agreement Roller is to throw Olson and Berg both in 75 minutes, an undertaking which the latter thinks Roser is incapable of accountishing.

Since the announcement of the match was made. Olson has been importuning Curley to let him have the first chance at Roller, asserting he will make it so hot for the wrestling medico that Berg will never get a chance. Both men have met the doctor before, and each has gone the way of the defeated. Berg on his last meeting stuid longer against Roller than did Olson. Once before Berg met Roller in Portland and lost after nearly an hour's hard wrestling, during which he had Roller guessing during the first part of the bout. In Seattle about a month ago Berg had another whird against Roller, voluntarily substituting himself for Olson, who falled to arrive in time for a scheduled bout. Berg went on with a full stomach, but succeeded in holding Roller off for at hour and a half for the two falls. The first fall came after the wrestlers had wrestled about an hour.

Welle both Berg and Roller admit that Since the announcement of the match

While both Berg and Roller admit that Roller is the better man, there is an in-tense rivalry between them as to which one will last the longer. There has been some rivalry between Berg and Olson as to which is the better man, dating back from last Winter, when both were wrestling in Chicago.

The event will take place in Exposition are event will take place in Exposition rink and soat reservations may be made at the same places as before. Roller has been a most popular athlete with the Portland fans and they are expected to turn out en masse to watch him try to throw Olson and Berg the same night.

VANCOUVER, B. C., July 20 .- (Spe cial.)-In an almost no-hit game, Pitcher Kinsella, of the Portland Colts, today put it over the Beavers, to the tune of 7 to 2, and held them down through the nin innings to but two hits.

Had it not been for the poor fielding of a fly to left field by Mayse the game would have gone down in history as a no-hit game. The Beavers showed the same "form" that has characterized their play during the present series, and with the exception of some fairly good playing by Nordyke and some very poor work by Scharney, they played a very mediocre game. Up to the eighth inning the local fans sat tight, allently watching their champions of last year file to and from the plate in quick succession. Whatever had taken pos-session of Hall on the preceding day had evidently communicated itself to Hickey, for he handed out six hits and allowed the visitors to hat in the extent of seven runs.

Both sides came out of the fray even on the errors, Cartwright having made three for the home team, while Adams, not to be outdone in generosity, subscribed an equal number to the credit of the Colts. Another game will be played tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock, when the home team should, and probably will make a brave effort to at least partially atone for their past misdeeds. Score: atone for their past misdeeds. Score PORTLAND.

"It always seemed to me," said Mr. Powers, "that it was some deep personal trouble that bothered him. Billy Murphy and I used to get him when he had one of these brooding moods and take him to a matinee or something. He would go, hardly saying a word and just listening. He always was a square man. Of course, as a baseball executive, he naturally made enemies in backing up umpires, because that can't be heiped, but he would stand behind his umpires through thick and thin. He took baseusly over some trouble. through thick and thin. He took base-ball matters too seriously, I think."

ham, of Philadelphia, who died recently, expired yesterday.

Mr. Hoydler will arrange for the election of a successor to Pulliam. The belief seems general that Mr. Heydler will be chosen practically without opposition. Pulliam's death marks the passing of one of the most interesting figures of baseball. Imbued with the idea that the complete success of baseball rested on honesty, he often found himself opposed by some of his associates. Worry over his troubles with the league's leaders brought on a nervous breakdown last Winter and his temporary retirement. He resumed his active labors about a month ago.
