

The Oregonian

Portland, Oregon, Postoffice... Subscription Rates—Invariably in Advance... Daily, Sunday included, one year, $12.00

The interdiction against the traffic in alcohol is as openly and universally disregarded as though it had no existence... Perhaps there isn't much in this, but "interesting reading."

Of course it is absurd for the attorney of Insurance Commissioner Schively to assume or declare that certain State Senators are disqualified from acting as judges in his trial because they had previously voted to abolish his office.

IT IS A NATURAL APPREHENSION. The Napoleonic scare in England is one hundred years old, and more. It is survival of this scare, chiefly, that awakens apprehension about the growth of the German navy.

Several newspapers in various parts of the country are distressed about the Lincoln cent. They fear that the practice of stamping the images of our celebrated men on coins may issue in "imperialism."

It will be remembered that Governor Hughes looked to the Kansas law for some of the ideas embodied in the Hinman-Green bill which the Legislature of this state defeated last winter.

For the fourth time, last Saturday, the Georgia Senate voted down the income tax amendment to the Federal Constitution. The vote was nearly two to one—Senator Burwell, nearly the only one in opposition.

THE LABOR DIFFERENTIAL. This year, for the first time in the history of the port, practically every bushel of wheat in Portland territory is available for shipment.

Mr. Ballinger clearly set forth the attitude of the Government in his speech in Spokane last Wednesday, before the National Irrigation congress.

Chief No Shirt, of the Umatillas, is going to Washington on official business, and like the true buck that he is, will leave Mrs. Sans Brassiere on the reservation.

who were rusticated at Duncan Springs, Cal. A forest fire swept over the hills and drove out large numbers of wild animals.

Mr. James J. Jeffries, on arrival at Plymouth yesterday, was very much surprised to learn that his alleged representative had signed articles for a fight between Jeffries and Jackson.

Several newspapers in various parts of the country are distressed about the Lincoln cent. They fear that the practice of stamping the images of our celebrated men on coins may issue in "imperialism."

It will be remembered that Governor Hughes looked to the Kansas law for some of the ideas embodied in the Hinman-Green bill which the Legislature of this state defeated last winter.

For the fourth time, last Saturday, the Georgia Senate voted down the income tax amendment to the Federal Constitution. The vote was nearly two to one—Senator Burwell, nearly the only one in opposition.

THE LABOR DIFFERENTIAL. This year, for the first time in the history of the port, practically every bushel of wheat in Portland territory is available for shipment.

Mr. Ballinger clearly set forth the attitude of the Government in his speech in Spokane last Wednesday, before the National Irrigation congress.

Chief No Shirt, of the Umatillas, is going to Washington on official business, and like the true buck that he is, will leave Mrs. Sans Brassiere on the reservation.

Let no one imagine that those National Guardsmen, who are to meet here next month, are not a jovial lot of fellows.

THE WEIGHT OF EVIDENCE.

Direct Primaries as They Are Viewed in the Various States. Kansas City Journal.

When the primary law became operative it did away with party effectiveness by delegating to candidates almost the entire control of the party organization.

A Delusion. Boston Herald. Eastern States, including Massachusetts, can have the benefit of the Kansas experiment.

Governor Hughes' Model. Albany Evening Journal. The Kansas City Journal says that the thinking element of both the Republican and Democratic parties concede that the primary in Kansas is working unsatisfactorily.

Improper Control of Elections Is Increased. North American Review. The system of direct or primary nomination of candidates for office involves substantially the same principle as the "initiative" and is open to the same objections.

Prohibition in the South. Here is a paragraph from a correspondence of Harper's Weekly, who has journeyed through many Southern states:

The Flathead lottery began its drawing yesterday. It was largely attended by "flat-heads" from all over the United States, who were unaware that they could get more for their money by actual purchase of lands in Oregon.

Perhaps if the parents of Biddle, the boy burglar, and his child wife, had spanked them, instead of giving their consent to marriage last February, the youth would not be obliged now to break rock for a year at Kelly Butte.

The Utah Agricultural College is "flirting" with Professor C. I. Lewis, the horticulturalist of the Corvallis College, Oregon, would better keep Professor Lewis. He belongs to the work here.

INJUSTICE TO ALL HOMEOWNERS.

Another View of the Billboard Nuisance With Direct Application. PORTLAND, Aug. 12.—(To the Editor.)

It is so seldom the opportunity occurs for such fraternal feelings that I must hasten to express my delight that the ruling powers of the city propose to consummate a reform that I have long had deeply at heart.

My home is in a part of the city peculiarly oppressed by the outrage, namely, Holladay avenue, near East First. Along both these streets stretch enormous billboards as far as the eye can see.

Other young females with angelic countenances are reaching in beatific vision to the "merchandise" which they are said to be more valuable for influence than ten times their value in a bank deposit.

It will be remembered that Governor Hughes looked to the Kansas law for some of the ideas embodied in the Hinman-Green bill which the Legislature of this state defeated last winter.

For the fourth time, last Saturday, the Georgia Senate voted down the income tax amendment to the Federal Constitution. The vote was nearly two to one—Senator Burwell, nearly the only one in opposition.

THE LABOR DIFFERENTIAL. This year, for the first time in the history of the port, practically every bushel of wheat in Portland territory is available for shipment.

Mr. Ballinger clearly set forth the attitude of the Government in his speech in Spokane last Wednesday, before the National Irrigation congress.

Chief No Shirt, of the Umatillas, is going to Washington on official business, and like the true buck that he is, will leave Mrs. Sans Brassiere on the reservation.

CHRISTIANITY, SPIRIT AND LETTER.

Why Its First Appeal Was Made to the Jewish Nation Alone. EUGENE, Ore., Aug. 12.—(To the Editor.)

It is a commendation in one of your recent issues raises several questions of a nature bearing on Christianity and religion in general—forgetting that Egyptian is a matter of faith or emotion as well as intellect.

The appeal of the new religion had to be made to an emotional people to get its foundation and starting point. It was a matter of faith or emotion, or intellect based on the intuitive perception.

John Marshall, the great jurist, settled the question, after the manner of the Constitution had a spirit or preservative power, as well as a letter or structural power.

It will be remembered that Governor Hughes looked to the Kansas law for some of the ideas embodied in the Hinman-Green bill which the Legislature of this state defeated last winter.

For the fourth time, last Saturday, the Georgia Senate voted down the income tax amendment to the Federal Constitution. The vote was nearly two to one—Senator Burwell, nearly the only one in opposition.

THE LABOR DIFFERENTIAL. This year, for the first time in the history of the port, practically every bushel of wheat in Portland territory is available for shipment.

Mr. Ballinger clearly set forth the attitude of the Government in his speech in Spokane last Wednesday, before the National Irrigation congress.

Chief No Shirt, of the Umatillas, is going to Washington on official business, and like the true buck that he is, will leave Mrs. Sans Brassiere on the reservation.

IN THE MAGAZINE SECTION OF THE SUNDAY OREGONIAN.

HOW TO LEARN THE ART OF SWIMMING. Notable timely article by Arthur Cavill, the world's champion swimmer, now swimming instructor of the Multnomah Amateur Athletic Club.

SEATTLE FAIR SEEN WITH A WOMAN'S EYES. Unconventional letter from Mabel Howe, who finds interest in several things that most visitors do not notice.

AMERICAN WORLD-FAMOUS MEDICAL SCIENTISTS. Some of our distinguished physicians and surgeons who will be welcome at the International Congress at Budapest.

KIT CARSON, GREATEST OF FRONTIERSMEN. In his series of American heroes, Richard Spill, tells of the celebrated scout, pathfinder and Indian fighter.

ORDER EARLY FROM YOUR NEWSDEALER. The Oregonian is a paper of high quality in newspaper advertising.