SENSATION IN CORSETS

A Practical Talk From a Standpoint of Style and Comfort

In past years women and doctors have continually falled to agree as to the dan-gers of tight lacing. Women of naturally plump figure will suffer tortures and run great risk of injury to health in order to comply with the demands of style for a slim waist, slim hips, full bust, etc.

slim waist, slim hips, full bust, etc.

When the back lace corset was invented it was a relief to the old stiff board corset of our grandmothers, but its only capacity for changing the contour of the figure was in pressure, reducing the figure at the expense of elasticity of motion and grace of form. Next came the corset designed on more liberal lines, the world the form more in made to fit and to mold the form more in harmony with health ideas, and still the doctors and dressmakers were in dispute. These later corsets were to a degree more comfortable, more styllsh, and more mod-

Along these lines corset designers progressed until finally they produced the new front-lacing "Modart." We are living in an age of progression. Five years ago a Modart corset was an impossibility. Today its beautiful lines, its excellence of protects and workmanship in lence of material and workmanship, its perfect poise, its fine support to the fig-ure without compression, its adaptability

FEW THINGS STAND - REPETITION —

I Among the few things that will stand repetition, and which grows in esteem with each experience, is a visit to The Oaks.

I There is always some new beauty to be discovered in the magnificent park or its environments, and there is always some form of amusement provided that had been overlooked, or which had been installed between visits.

I The manager of a popular park elsewhere on the Coast made the remark when on a recent visit to The Oaks, "You have a location that is not approached in beauty by any I have seen-and I think I've seen them all." That's expert testimony.

I Here in Portland we are so accustomed to beautiful scenery and handsomely embellished grounds that we pick out the best to show to our visitors from less favored parts of the country. Thousands of these visitors are brought to The Oaks. That fact has only one explanation.

In such surroundings is it any wonder that Donatelli's band seems inspired? Is it any wonder that the "boardwalk" has become as famous in Portland as its prototype is at Atlantic City? Is it any wonder that people sound the praises of Portland's great amusement park?

¶ Now, Monday, this beautiful park is to be given over for the entertainment of Oregon's future citizens—the public school children. All sorts of special features are to be provided for the amusement of the little people; but they are not content to have everything done for them, for under the direction of Professor Ringler they propose to take a hand in the carnival themselves.

I There are to be evolutions gone through with, marches, Maypole and other pretty dances, and songs by the class. That should attract a host of big people, for what is so attractive and what strikes a more responsive chord than the sight of children in gleeful play?

I The Oaks has become the fashion, and it will be made better and better as time
